U.S.Demands U. N. Order Cease-Fire In Palestine

Plan Proposes Force If Arabs, Jews Don't Comply With Terms; British Support It

Lake Success, July 13 (AP).—The United States today demanded that the Security Council order an immediate cease-fire in Palestine. The proposal provides for use of United Nations force if the Arabs or Jews fail to comply.

U. S. deputy delegate Philip Jessup asked for a speedy vote and the council plunged into debate.

Sir Alexander Cadogan announced British support of the American plan with minor qualifications. Syria immediately opposed it, with Faris El Khouri reintroducing an old Arab plan to refer the whole Palestine problem to the International Court of Justice.

El Khouri conceded the U. N. could suppress the Arabs but he said the moment U. N. forces pulled out of the Holy Land fighting would start all over again.

A spokesman for the Israeli government complained the American plan would keep in force a worldwide arms embargo and restrictions on Jewish immigration.

The council adjourned until tomorrow morning, when Russia is expected to speak on the American motion.

'Not the Time for Speeches'

The cease-fire would take effect within three days and would remain in effect until the situation in the Holy Land could be peacefully adjusted.

It was the strongest proposal ever laid before the council. Enforcement would come through invoking diplomatic and economic sanctions or an international army.

"This is not the time for flowing speeches but for action," Jessup said. "Fighting is now going on in Palestine. It must stop."

The American resolution called on the Jews and Arabs alike to halt hostilities but Jessup noted that the war was resumed only after the Arabs rejected a Council appeal to extend a truce.

Jessup introduced the proposal after Count Folke Bernadotte, making a dramatic personal appearance before the Council, appealed for an order to stop the war.

"The United Nations must not allow the Palestine problem to be worked out on the field of battle," the Swedish count said before a Council chamber jammed with spectators.

Bernadotte toyed with his mon-

Truman and Barkley Ticket Expected to Be Named Today; Platform Upholds New Deal

Taft-Hartley Act Repeal, Returns to Wagner Act Ideas Are Demanded

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, (Wednesday), July 14.—A 4500-word reaffirmation of New Deal principles early today was approved by the Democratic Resolutions Committee after complete rout of sharp attacks from the Democratic party's Southern right and Northern left.

Planks calling for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, a return to Wagner Act principles, low-cost housing, slum clearance and Federal aid to education were adopted with little or no friction.

But the two wings of the party threatened to pull it apart when the committee chose a compromise civil rights road.

Administration "harmony" forces beat down one at a time an ADA-Northern Democratic move to spell out basic civil rights measures and a last-ditch Dixie effort to wedge in States' rights.

Notice of four separate minority reports were filed on the platform, assuring one last public display of still gaping rift in the Democratic Party when the Resolutions Committee reports to the Convention today.

Resolutions Chairman Frances Myers, (Pennsylvania) said both Southern and Northern extreme wings of the party had taken written exception to the compromise civil rights stand.

Myers said: "I surmise that means a floor fight."

He predicted however that the majority report of the Resolutions Committee will prevail.

Mayor Hubert Humphrey, Minneapolis, who asked an amendment pledging non-segregation in the Armed Forces, said he reserved the right to make a fight on that point, but is not sure he will do so.

The compromise civil rights plank, somewhat stronger than the 1944 stand, asserted the right of racial and religious minorities to live, work and vote on a basis of

Virginia Delegates Assured Seats Without Loyalty Pledge

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 13.—Virginia's delegation today won its right to be seated in the Democratic convention without taking a pledge of party loyalty.

At the same time, an uproarious fight on the convention floor was caused by an effort to bar the Mississippi delegation headed by Gov. Fielding Wright on the grounds that the delegation is instructed to walk out of the convention if President Truman is nominated or a strong civil rights plank is adopted.

It was the first floor outbreak of the convention on the racial-civil rights issue.

Martin A. Hutchinson, Richmond attorney, lost his appeal to the convention's credentials committee to require signed pledges from the Virginia delegates promising their support for the party's candidates in November.

Representative Mary T. Norton (D., N. J.), chairman of the credentials committee, announced that her group had voted unanimously to seat the Virginia delegation without the proposed pledge. Committee members said that since there would be no minority report, the issue would not be taken to the floor of the convention.

In the Mississippi case, the Credentials Committee voted 15 to 11 to seat the Wright delegation, overriding an appeal by Charles Hamilton, of Aberdeen, Miss., to give the seats instead to a contesting pro-Truman slate.

Opposing Hamilton in a hearing, Weaver E. Gore, of Jackson, Miss., a member of the anti-Truman delegation, said his group was properly sent to the convention in accordance with the laws of his State. He said it was "absolutely correct" that his group was prepared to bolt the convention.

Hamilton cited a resolution of the State party convention binding the delegates it sent here to withdraw from the convention unless they could secure "complete assurance" that the party nominees would fight against the Truman civil rights program.

He cited another resolution saying the Mississippi delegates could not bind their State party to support President Truman, any other person who favors his civil rights program, or anyone who refuses publicly to condemn the civil rights program.

Gore said he interpreted it as

President May Fly To Philadelphia for Acceptance Speech After Voting Ends

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 13.—The battle-weary Democrats are prepared to nominate a 1948 Truman-Barkley ticket tomorrow night, hear an acceptance speech from the Chief Executive, and wind up their thirtieth national convention.

If there is any hitch—meaning an overtime floor fight over the platform—the curtain scene may have to be delayed until Thursday.

In an effort to hasten the end of the convention, National Chairman McGrath has ordered that tomorrow's session begin at 11 o'clock.

McGrath intends to keep the convention in continuous session until it has completed its work.

President Truman's nomination for a full, four-year term has been assured since Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower uttered his final and emphatic "no"" last Thursday. Mr. Truman's Southern foes may cast anywhere from 100 to 150 votes against him, but he will go over on the first ballot with ease.

Mr. Truman will come to Philadelphia to accept the nomination just as soon as the balloting is completed, it was announced today by Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

The Chief Executive, accompanied by the First Lady and Miss Margaret Truman, may come up from Washington by plane or train, depending on weather conditions and the time element.

Mr. Truman, a not-too-exciting speaker when he uses a manuscript, is expected to make a speech that will at least smack of the impromptu. In other words, he is expected to speak from rough notes.

His task—a tough one—will be to yank the Democrats out of the slough of defeatism in which they have been wallowing here.

Senator Alben W. Barkley, the prospective Vice Presidential nominee, doubtless will get a greater vote than Mr. Truman. Indeed, he may be nominated by acclamation.

The 70-year-old Kentuckian, who has the affection of all Democrats, North and South, clinched the nomination last night with his keynote speech in Convention Hall. The demonstration that followed made it eloquently clear that he was the choice of the rank and file of delegates.

Only one thing more was needed—a favorable nod from President Truman.

That came today when Chairman McGrath, after a telephone call to the White House, said:

"If the Democratic Convention sees fit to nominate Senator Barkley, President Truman will be most happy to welcome him as his running mate."

Late today Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming, an active candidate for the vice presidential nomination, withdrew from the fight. He said he did so cheerfully because of McGrath's statement that the Kentuckian was the choice of Mr. Truman.

O'Mahoney added:

"Senator Barkley is one of the greatest leaders the Democratic Party has ever had . . . I have no hesitation in saying that he de-

Girl's Murder Case Draws Baltimorean

Police Inspector Due Before Grand Jury Here on Thursday

A high Baltimore police official will appear as a witness before the District grand jury Thursday when it receives evidence tying a Baltimore janitor to the murder of Carol Bardwell, 11, here June 27.

This was learned last night by The Washington Post from a reliable source.

The Baltimore police official is Inspector Joseph H. Itzel, who was in charge of the investigation into the slaying of Marsha Brill, also 11, in Baltimore July 6.

The janitor, Eugene H. James, 31, has admitted the murders of both the Bardwell and Brill girls under highly identical circumstances, according to police of the two cities.

Confession Held Genuine

The disclosed appearance of Itzel before the grand jury here Thursday will further bolster the confession Washington detectives said they obtained from James in Baltimore in the Bardwell case. Itzel was present when local detectives questioned the janitor in Baltimore.

Despite attacks on the confession Washington police last night repeated they are positive James killed Carol Bardwell.

Yesterday at his arraignment in Baltimore, James pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity to the Brill murder as well as the rape and robbery of a Baltimore housewife and, through his attorney, William H. Murphy, repudiated the confession of murdering Carol Bardwell.

The attorney said his client denied having been in Washington since 1940. He said James remembered signing something while he was under questioning in Baltimore about the Bardwell case, but did not know what it was.

To this, Inspector Floyd Truscott, acting superintendent of police in the absence of Maj. Robert J. Barrett, who is on vacation, said:

Firmness Can Win 'Cold' War, U. S. Chiefs in Berlin Agree

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Berlin, July 13.—American firmness, teamed with the novel use of air power known to GIs here as "Operations Vittles," can win the crucial battle for Germany's capital, military chiefs here agree.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay told The Washington Post that western Berlin's 2½ million inhabitants can get through next winter without hardship, despite the Russian "siege."

"We can stay here as long as the American people want us to stay," said Clay. The American commander in Europe made it plain that present aerial supply operations must be more than doubled by late fall to do the job. He estimated he would need about 300 DC-4 Skymasters or comparable planes to put 4000 tons of fuel and food a day into Berlin next winter. American and British planes now are bringing in 1800 to 1900 tons daily.

For winter preparations, Skymasters are necessary. They carry 10 tons to the DC-3s three. This would mean putting some 200 more American Skymasters on the Berlin airlift job—four times the present number. It would seriously disrupt American military and, probably, civil air transport. But military authorities here are agreed that withdrawal from Berlin under Soviet pressure would have such disastrous results that the costs of "Operation Vittles" are low.

There is an alternative course, if diplomatic moves and negotiations fail, which some military men advocate. It is much cheaper but far more risky—sending a strongly armed motor supply convoy into Berlin. Military leaders in Germany believe Russia will back down, once they are convinced we cannot be pushed out except by force. They are confident the Soviets will not fight over Berlin unless they already have decided on war and are seeking a pretext. And they feel the latter is not likely.

Yielding to Communist pressure in Berlin, however, would not prevent war unless we are prepared to

'Riders' Cause Rejection of 2 Belasco Bids

The Federal Works Agency yesterday turned down the two bids it received for lease of the old Belasco Theater because of unacceptable "riders" attached to the offers.

However, FWA Chief Philip B. Fleming announced that the agency is still "open to suggestions." And both bidders reported they plan to make new propositions to the Government shortly.

In rejecting the original bids—from the American National Theater and Academy and Joseph Curtis of New York—General Fleming pointed out that "qualifications" embodied in the offers "would have required the Government to reimburse the lessees for unamortized renovation costs if the lease were cancelled short of the 10-year term."

ANTA, he said, offered $120,000 and Curtis, nephew of Harry Cohn, president of Columbia Pictures, offered $250,000 for the 10-year lease in bids received July 1. Both bidders qualified their offers by

Barkley Vetoes Proposal To Name Him For President

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, July 13 (AP).—Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky said tonight he would get up and disavow any effort to put him in nomination for the Presidency.

He made this statement after Gov. Beauford H. Jester of Texas told Barkley he was "reasonably certain" the Texas delegation's vote could be counted for him on the first ballot "and straight through" for the Presidential nomination.

Jester came to the convention platform to see Barkley after he said he had been approached by delegates from Kentucky and California on the question of supporting Barkley for the Presidency.

"I will not be a party to it," Barkley told the Texas governor. "I would not condone such movement."

"Would you accept if drafted?" Barkley was asked.

"Don't ask me," Barkley replied. But he later told reporters he would publicly disavow "such a move."

South's Revolt Seems Likely To Fizzle Out

By J. R. Wiggins
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 13.—There is more "sorrow" than "secession" in the dwindling Southern rebellion against President Truman and the civil rights planks tonight.

The Southern "State's righters" are still grumbling, complaining, resisting and exclaiming but few of them now seem likely to campaign actively against the Democratic ticket.

From the beginning, the dissenters were as variegated in their gripes as an assortment of bolts and nuts. Tonight, the "bolts" have just about vanished.

The great rebellion of 1948 seems likely to splutter out after a handful of token votes for Gov. Ben Laney of Arkansas, variously estimated to run from 100 to 150 on the first ballot. It was fizzling to a finish today in a shower of phrases resurrected from the speeches of John C. Calhoun, accompanied by cautious disavowals of any intent to commit an overt act.

Senator Claude Pepper of Florida foldec up his campaign for the nomination in his headquarters in the Philadelphia Stock Exchange Building. The offices that first housed Eisenhower's headquarters, and then Pepper's, were in darkness tonight, without a tenant. Pepper withdrew his candidacy in a press conference statement issued at 5 o'clock.

"The Democratic Party," he said, "faces a repetition of the split of 1860. That breaking up of the Democratic Party assured the election of the Republican Party and that in turn the division of the Nation and the War Between the States."

He did not think Republican victory in November would lead to civil war but he feared it would contribute to a divided world. He denounced "selfish and ruthless forces in the Republican Party."

He said he had tried to stave off the "splintering" of the Democratic Party. He blamed inept party leadership for the Wallace split. He said it also caused the threatened fourth party of Southern

Rayburn Hits Party 'Apathy' In Blunt Talk

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, July 13.—House Democratic Leader Sam Raybdrn, permanent chairman of the thirtieth national convention of the Democratic Party, tonight tartly and bluntly advised the delegates here to act like members of a successful party that has led the Nation for 16 years.

Sternly the canny Texas veteran admonished this apathetic convention:

"The Democratic Party has been the majority party for 16 years. For God's sake, let's act like it."

Then, reviewing the accomplishments of the Democratic Party, Rayburn contrasted the situation at the end of World War I under a Republican Administration to the situation now after the close of World War II, when, he said, there is "prosperity and full employment such as we have never known."

In addition, Rayburn said, there is this "cold war" for leadership in peace, which this Nation is winning.

After reviewing the wartime and peacetime accomplishments of the Democratic Party in the past 16 years, Rayburn tore into the Republicans as the traditional party of privilege.

His battling speech followed a solemn memorial service for the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt and the Nation's World War II dead.

New York's Mayor William O'Dwyer presided and three clergymen, chaplains of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths, officiated.

The religious memorials to the dead of World War II and to the wartime Commander in Chief by Bishop William A. Arnold, former chief of chaplains of the United States Army; Rabbi Aryeh Lev, director of religious activities of the National Jewish Welfare Board, and a former Army chaplain, and by Capt. Francis Lee Albert, chaplain of the Seventh United States Fleet in the Pacific during World War II.

Mayor O'Dwyer, a veteran of World War II, said:

"In the solemnity of this hour, our thoughts are of those who died that this great Nation might live. Those thoughts can only strengthen our deep resolve that their sacrifices were not in vain; that those who carry on in their

'Best Dressed' Judge Admits Milking Own Bank of $657,000

Newark, N. J., July 13 (U.P.).—P. James Pellecchia, jr., 38, a police judge, bank vice president and handsome socialite bachelor, confessed today that he embezzled $657,000 from the Columbus Trust Co. and lost it by making huge but unlucky bets on race horses.

His weakness for horses and for ultraexpensive clothes got him into debt 2½ years ago. Since then the dark, curly-haired judge has taken more than half a million dollars out of his bank through an ingenious fake mortgage scheme and bet as much as $6000 a week in a desperate attempt to get in the clear.

Unshaven and bedraggled, Pellecchia pleaded guilty in Common Pleas Court to forgery, embezzlement and obtaining money under false pretenses. The Columbus Trust, of which his father is chairman of the board, announced a merger with the United States Trust Co., opened all its branches and said that its depositors' funds were guaranteed.

School Board Invites Parents To Discussion on Curriculum

Montgomery County parents who don't like modern methods of education are going to get a chance to discuss curriculum revision next month.

The County School Board yesterday invited the parents to attend a workshop at which they will be able to confer with school officials on the county education system.

Although the curriculum workshops, held annually, are open to parents, the board voted a special invitation to the parents who have been outspoken in their criticism.

Assistant Supt. of Schools E. M. Douglass read to the board about a dozen letters from county civic groups and from parents indorsing the school program and school officials.

Mrs. G. Beale Bloomer, chairman of the education committee of the Montgomery County League of Women Voters, and Mrs. Ben B. Baylor, jr., president of the Leland Junior High School Parent-Teacher Association, appeared at the meeting to express their confidence in the schools.

U. S. Freighter's Mutiny Dies As Grim Warships Converge

London, July 13 (AP).—The battleship Missouri messaged today that "everything is under control" aboard the U. S. freighter William Carson. The freighter flashed an SOS last night that her crew had mutinied.

United States naval headquarters here said the message was received from Rear Admiral A. J. McLean, aboard the Missouri.

Admiral McLean said he had been in contact with the American tanker Hampton Roads which, in turn, had received the message from the Carson that "everything is under control."

The master of the Hampton Roads in a message to the Associated Press said he passed the William Carson about 35 minutes after the freighter sent the message about the mutiny.

He said the mutiny message had been canceled 25 minutes after it was sent—or 10 minutes before he passed the freighter.

McLean had been directed by naval headquarters here to investigate the trouble aboard the Carson. The freighter radioed her distress

Meat prices will continue their steady climb, spokesmen for the industry declared yesterday.

A wholesaler said wholesale prices jumped from 3 to 8 cents a pound this week and predicted this increase may be tripled before it reaches the consumer.

"Some of the retailers may have to get as much as $1.50 a pound to break even," he said.

A quality retailer on Connecticut ave. said the jump in wholesale prices might raise retail prices of choice cuts to $1.35 or $1.40 a pound. The meat buyer for one of the chain stores said he does not expect so drastic an increase in retail meat prices although the trend is definitely up.

Democratic Platform Committee Chairman Is—and Needs to Be—a Philadelphia Lawyer

Senator Francis J. Myers, a Philadelphia lawyer, needs all the astuteness usually implied by that term, as he struggles, as chairman, to mold a Democratic platform agreeable to all the diffuse elements within the party.

Friends of the Pennsylvania Senator point to his past record and insist that anything but a liberal platform would be unthinkable as long as Myers heads the platform committee.

FRANCIS J. MYERS
Platform-builder

For the Senator, who was elevated to the Senate in 1944 after serving three terms as a New Dealish Representative from Philadelphia's Sixth Congressional District, clings to the principles of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

His record in Congres has been prolabor and he was an ardent fighter in behalf of fair employment practices.

His interest in world affairs, whetted by experience on "the Hill," has led him to adopt an "internationalist" viewpoint.

This view was manifest in June, 1947, when, in a speech unsuccessfully opposing a bill for higher tariffs and import restrictions on wool, he said:

"If we retreat, and this bill is the first step of retreat, the nations of the world may well be driven into the all-embracing arms of communism.

"If we back out of Europe tail first, and this bill is a first step in backing out, God help those throughout the world who look to us for aid.

"And if they go down, I say, God help America."

Myers also fought for the confirmation of David E. Lilienthal as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Answering an attack on Lilienthal, Myers declared the blows came from those "who appear less concerned over Mr. Lilienthal's qualifications for the work than over the fact that he is reputed to be a New Dealer . . ."

The Senator, looking younger than his 47 years, is slightly under 6 feet tall and weighs about 190 pounds. His straight black hair shows few signs of graying.

Main interest outside of his family and politics is poker—usually played with a group of cronies at the Mayflower.

He is a lover of good food with steak his generally first choice.

A Philadelphian, Myers was graduated from St. Joseph's College in 1923. In 1927 he received a law degree from Temple University. After several years of private prautice, he was appointed deputy attorney general of Pennsylvania in 1937. He is married to the former Miss Catherine M. Hall. They have three children.

Dewey Asks Taft Election Aid; Will Dine 100 Farm Editors

New York, July 13 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) tonight discussed domestic issues on which the New Yorker will campaign for the presidency.

The G.O.P. nominee and the Ohioan held a dinner parley in Dewey's hotel suite. While it was in progress, Dewey released this statement:

"Senator Taft and I had a thorough discussion of a large number of legislative problems which will come before the next Congress and some of which will be the subject of campaign discussion.

"There will be no further comment from the Senator or from me."

Seeks Campaign Aid

Dewey requested the conference, and it was understood generally that he sought Taft's assistance in the Republicans' drive this fall.

Taft arrived today from Washington en route to his summer home at Murray Bay, Quebec. Dewey motored down from his Pawling farm.

Before returning Thursday the Governor plans to talk with John Foster Dulles, his foreign policy adviser, and Herbert Brownell, jr., his campaign manager.

Dewey today invited more than 100 editors of farm publications to be his guests at a dinner in Pawling Saturday, July 24.

Solicits Farm Views

In his invitation Dewey said:

"We would like to get your views on the country's current and long-time agricultural problems.

"In view of the serious decline in the country's livestock population and the chance that we may soon be producing a surplus of grain and forage, we should like to have any suggestions you may have as to how the country may expand its production of animal product food and maintain its entire agriculture on a firm foundation."

States. He warned that the party could not stand these breaks.

Pepper said he had tried to get his fellow Southerners "now at this critical period for human freedom to array themselves as their forefathers did in 1860 against human rights for any part of our people." He confessed he had failed. He acknowledged that continued efforts on his part would only make things worse.

He said he would make a last appeal to all groups to get together and "save the party for America." He promised never to fail the Democratic Party. No matter what the convention does, he will support the party. He will support its nominees.

Laney Drops Bolt Talk

Governor Laney of Arkansas, at a 4 o'clock press conference, was still full of "State's rights" philosophy, but was no longer talking about bolting the party.

He said he was surprised at the interest in his candidacy. He found "a lot of people who would like to support someone other than those formerly proposed."

He was fighting, he asserted, "strictly on the right of a State to enjoy the rights reserved for the States by the Constitution." Other considerations were called byproducts of this issue.

"People of the South," Laney argued, "have no objection whatever as to the imposition of social legislation pertaining to civil rights if that legislation is acceptable to the people of the respective States; but we say it is wrong and unconstitutional for the Federal Government to pass a legislative act taking away rights guaranteed under the Constitution."

Centralized Government Hit

He protested that this was tried in the Federal Reconstruction Acts declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court. It is now proposed, he insisted, that the same thing be done over again.

This, he pictured, as the issue at the convention.

He declaimed against the imposition on the majority of the will of a minority.

He denounced efforts of the Federal Government to write for the States their own election laws. If States permit it, he predicted, "they will surrender the right of government by States." He called it "lynching the Constitution."

Laney assailed a tendency to centralize government. He said if that is to be done, the States might as well be abolished.

The Governor declined to say how many votes he would have. Someone suggested 150 and he thought that might be correct. He hinted he would have some votes outside the South. He mentioned West Virginia but wouldn't name any others. A committee is picking a man to nominate Laney.

Second Place Discounted

Asked to comment on Barkley as a vice presidential candidate, he said he thought the second place on the ticket not important.

He wasn't sure what Alabama would do.

He was asked about the proposed State's rights meeting at Birmingham. He replied that no arrangements had been made for the meeting and that "matter" was not "material as far as this convention is concerned."

But Laney was cautious about what he will do if Truman is nominated. He sparred with reporters in the following exchange:

"Who will you vote for if Truman is nominated?"

"I don't know who I will vote for."

"Any chance of your voting for Dewey?"

"No."

"Any chance of your voting for a fourth party candidate?"

"I don't think so."

"Would Barkley be acceptable as a presidential nominee?"

"Yes. But I haven't considered him a candidate."

"Would you vote for Wallace?"

"No."

"Would you abstain from voting?"

"I could do it if I want to."

Decision Is Deferred

"This does not seem to indicate that you would actively oppose Mr. Truman."

"No, I don't say I would actively oppose Mr. Truman. I said I would not vote for him."

"Do you mean you will not actively oppose him?"

"Will make that decision after this convention. So far, I have never violated a principle or rule of the Democratic Party. I will come out of this convention without violating any rule."

"Would you consider not supporting President Truman violating any party rules?"

"No. I have not fought Mr. Truman after nomination. He is not the nominee for President and never has been. He never was nominated for the presidency by the Democratic Party."

"Would you say that failure to support a Democratic nominee for President would aid the Republican nominee?"

"I don't know that I am that important."

Among delegations he will have on the first ballot, Laney said, were Texas, Mississippi and Arkansas.

The anti-Truman developments of the day were sometimes noisy but none of them portended any party calamities.

Delegations of South Carolina, Virginia and Mississippi were seated by the credentials committee in spite of "bolt" commitments. In the Virginia contest, intent to bolt was denied before the delegation was seated. The Mississippi fight was hot until its "bolt" instruction was interpreted as not inescapable. The Truman forces probably could have pushed the issue harder if the bolt threat was regarded seriously.

Oklahoma caucused without definite results but a majority appeared willing to go along with a Truman-Barkley ticket.

Georgia definitely decided to put Senator Richard Russell in nomination but delegates said the delegation want no part of any "revolt" and will not back Laney.

Fourth Party Plan Denounced

They denounced all talk of forming a fourth party out of rebel Southern factions led by Laney. A. L. Hinson of Atlanta said setting up a new party would be "the biggest fool thing the South can do." Chairman James S. Peters of the delegation said Georgia opposes President Truman and his civil rights program, but he said the State would "stay regular and support the ticket in November."

The Texas delegation, which voted Monday to back Laney on the first ballot, is not hitched to any fourth party move and required assurance that Laney planned to work within the party before it agreed to support him.

Laney, himself was under fire. Lee Seamster, an Arkansas delegate, said Laney should have stayed home from the convention if he intends to stay home on election day. He said Laney had no more right in the Democrat Convention than Tom Dewey.

Thirteen Alabama delegates still plan to walk out of the convention after the platform is adopted. This decision was made in a secret caucus of the rebels. The plan may miscarry. Eight of the alternates of the 13 delegates are ready to step into their seats, members of the delegation said today. That would cut the "bolters" to five delegates.

Southern Veto Fades

The rules committee stripped another row of threads off the Southern bolt by rejecting the forlorn effort to reinstate the rule requiring a two-thirds majority to nominate candidates. The rule was abandoned under President Roosevelt's prompting in 1936. Delegates from Georgia, Texas and Mississippi vainly urged its reinstatement. The vote against the two-thirds rule was 24 to 6. Repeal of the rule, of course, would have put the Southern dissenters in a stronger position.

The "great rebellion" had all but completely collapsed tonight under the promptings of party regularity and the threats of vengeance to come. The disintegration of the anti-Truman forces of the South was so far advanced tonight that the historic Southern veto on the actions of Democratic conventions looked like a thing of the past.

Contest Winner Gets Kiss From Barkley

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, July 13 (U.P.).—Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky today crowned and planted a kiss on Anita Kitz of New York as "Sweetheart of the Young Democrats."

The Young Democrats picked the pretty 22-year-old New York brunette over eight other regional contestants last night, but it remained for Barkley as temporary convention chairman to crown her today.

After Barkley crowned Miss Kitz with a wreath of flowers, photographers instructed him to kiss her. But Barkley was coy, and a photographer shouted:

"Go ahead, Senator. It's all right."

Miss Kitz Ends Stalemate

Miss Kitz ended the stalement by planting a kiss on Barkley, whereupon the temporary chairman gave her one right back.

"I can continue this all afternoon," Barkley said.

Miss Kitz is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Kitz of Bayside, Queens. Her father is a Guaranty Trust Co. executive. She is engaged to marry Harry D. Evans of Cleveland.

Mrs. Winifred Galbraith Todd, 22-year-old honeymooner from New York, was stopped when she tried to ride a "Pepper for President" horse into convention hall today.

"Hey, lady, said Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms William Romano, "He can't come in here. He hasn't got a badge."

"There are a lot of horses' necks in there," she snapped back.

"Yes, but they've got badges," said Romano.

She Doesn't Get In

Slight Mrs. Todd, who said she recently was named Miss Equestrienne of 1948 by the Riding Masters of America, sat calmly on the nervous white-maned Palimino and argued. But she didn't get in.

She said she and her husband, William Todd, president of the Pan-American Banking Corporation in New York, were honeymooning after their wedding 10 days ago when they decided to come to Philadelphia and give Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) a boost in his campaign for the presidential nomination.

"You should have tried it on a donkey," said G. V. Saile, in charge of police protection at the hall, who hurried up to get in on the argument.

"Trigger here is pretty close to a donkey, but he's much nicer," said Mrs. Todd.

She finally gave up and turned the horse around.

Mrs. Todd is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bullock Galbraith of White Plains, N. Y., and Todd is the son of Mrs. Wilfred Todd, Woodstock, N. H. They live at the Park Central Hotel in New York.

D. C. Delegates Forecast New Suffrage Call

By a Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 14 (Wednesday).—District delegates early today forecast a new Democratic Party campaign call for suffrage in the Nation's Capital.

The suffrage plank in the 1948 Democratic Platform, picked up word for word from the 1944 platform, puts the party on the record this way:

"We favor the extension of the right of suffrage to the people of the District of Columbia."

The plank was approved by the Convention's Platform Committee shortly after midnight today near the close of a session that started at 2 p. m. Tuesday.

Committee approval for the suffrage plank was disclosed by Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox and Mrs. Ernest K. Lindley. They are the District delegates serving as members of the Resolutions Committee for the Democratic Convention.

They said a move was made in the committee meeting to knock out the District's suffrage plank but it was shouted down by a voice vote.

The suffrage plank was backed by the entire District delegation. The group, however, had given its first preference to a plank saying, "We favor self-government for the residents of the Nation's Capital." Identical language was written into the Republican platform for this year.

Convention approval of the District suffrage plank is expected today.

Maryland Unit To Caucus on Vice President

Philadelphia, July 13 (AP).—Gov. William P. Lane, jr., of Maryland said today a caucus of that State's Democratic convention delegation will be held before the group makes a vice presidential nominee choice.

The delegation, which came here instructed for the candidacies of President Truman for top spot and Senator Tydings as a "favorite son" for Vice President, was left without a second place candidate when Tydings withdrew his name last night.

Tydings, at the time of withdrawal, said he would support the candidacy of Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky.

No time was set for the delegation caucus. The delegation operates under the unit rule.

AMG Mutes Red Press In Bavaria for Cartoon

Frankfurt, Germany, July 13 (AP).—The United States Military Government today suspended the publishing license of the Communist Party in Bavaria for one month, the Army newspaper Stars and Stripes reported.

Stars and Stripes said the Communist Party had published a "malicious and inflammatory" cartoon which pictured the British and American zones of Germany as a "vermin-infested garbage heap" used as a dumping ground for worthless Allied products.

San Diego, Calif., July 13 (U.P.).—The navigator's plexiglass "bubble" blew off a B-29 bomber today, and an Army lieutenant was sucked out of the plane and hurled 26,000 feet to his death.

The victim was identified as Lieut. Walter H. Hilbert, 31. His home address was not immediately available.

Hilbert's body smashed into an alfalfa field near the Mexican border, completely burying itself in the soft earth.

It was the second such known accident in the United States in the past 2 years. The navigator's dome of a commercial plane blew off while the transport was over the Atlantic ocean off Newfoundland. In that incident, the terrific suction also dragged the navigator out of his cockpit and dropped him to death in the Atlantic.

Roman Women Stage Near-Riot at Trial

Rome, July 12 (Relayed) (U.P.).—A near-riot broke out today at the trial of Nazi SS (Elite Guard) Lieut. Col. Herbert Kappler and five codefendants when a woman defense lawyer criticized Italian Partisans for setting off a bomb which killed 32 Nazi soldiers and led to the infamous Ardeatine Caves massacre of 335 Italian hostages.

Hysterical women—mothers, sisters and wives of the Ardeatine Caves victims—screamed insult at the lawyer, Maria Theresa Piatti. They cried, "Decorate Kappler with a gold medal," walked out in protest and continued the demonstration outside for half an hour.

Thieves Cart Off Television Sets, Radios in Truck

Thieves early yesterday broke into the Economy Refrigeration and Appliance Co., 3524 12th st. ne., and took television sets, radios and vacuum cleaners valued at $3000, which they hauled off in a pick-up truck.

The theft was discovered about 3 a. m. by police scout car men who noticed the front door open and all the lights out. The door had been jimmied, they said.

Two girls, Joan Fitzpatrick, 22, and her sister, Rita Ann, 17, later told police they were on their front porch at 1034 Newton st. ne., when they saw a truck, black without letters, pull up and drive slowly around the corner about 1 a. m. They said they also saw a man standing on the corner at the time. Police believe he was the lookout.

Democrats Reject Two-Thirds Rule

By a Post Reporter

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, July 13.—The Democratic National Convention refused tonight to restore the rule requiring a two-thirds vote for nomination of Presidential candidates.

The South long exercised a veto power over nominations through the rule, which, however, was repealed in favor of a majority vote at the 1936 convention. The late President Franklin D. Roosevelt brought about repeal.

The convention's Rules Committee today rejected a plea for restoration of the rule, presented by Wright Morrow, Texas national committeeman-designate, who placed John Nance Garner in nomination for the presidency in 1940. Morrow filed a minority report with the convention tonight.

Support from Southerners

He said the two-thirds rule was the instrument by which the majority gave authority to its decisions. Abolition of the rule, he asserted, permitted unpopular candidates to be nominated. He cited the rule as the bulwark against actions that might break down party lines.

"We appeal to this convention," said Morrow, "to recognize that the 1936 abrogation of the rule was a mistake."

State Senator Edgar Brown of South Carolina seconded Morrow in supporting the two thirds rule. He said he advocated the old rule "not from a sectional or selfish reason." He said the rule had served the party well since it was adopted 116 years ago.

Solid sections of the Democratic South will vote for an independent Democratic candidate, Brown predicted. He blamed the repeal of the two thirds rule for the divisions within the party.

Robert Elliot of Georgia said the two thirds rule would be "good for the party." He said the rule would prevent any candidate from being nominated without the support of more than one pressure group.

Ewing Backs Majority Rule

Oscar Ewing said that the minority report would reimpose on the Democratic conventions a two-thirds rule that produced some very sad experiences. He said the rule nearly wrecked the party in 1924.

"There's no magic in 'two thirds'," said Ewing. "A majority," he argued, "is democracy." He asked why not make it a three-fourths rule, or a seven-eighths rule or a 99-per cent rule.

"The two-thirds rule is not what's bothering the South," he said. He contended that the worst thing the party could do would be to back down from majority rule in the convention. He warned that under the rule, one-third could block anything done. He called it a sacrifice of democracy and charged it would lead to dictatorship.

Chairman Barkley put the question to the convenation following Ewing's address. He called for the ayes and nayes and ruled that the minority report was rejected.

Virginians Voted Down . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

AT COMMITTEE MEETING—Martin A. Hutchinson (left), Richmond attorney, and Henry A. Fowler of Alexandria, yesterday lost their appeals to the Democratic National Convention's Committee to require signed pledges from the Virginia delegates. The pair sought the delegates' promise of support to party candidates in November authority for the delegation to walk out when it saw fit.

Virginians Assured Convention Seats Without Loyalty Pledges

The fight was carried to the convention floor tonight by George L. Vaughn, Negro attorney from St. Louis, Mo., who filed a minority report.

Boos Interrupt Speaker

As Vaughn spoke he was interrupted by repeated "boos" and protests from Southern delegations.

Sharply Convention Chairman Alben W. Barkley rapped the convention to order, asserting this was a Democratic convention in which every delegate could have his say.

But as Vaughn continued detailing what the President's civil rights program involved, there were more boos, more catcalls and from the other sides applause and cheers.

As Vaughn concluded all the 1000-odd delegates were on their feet—some yelling down the report, some yelling for it, but all creating bedlam.

Quickly, Barkley, wielding the gavel with all his force hammering for order, rushed Senator Carl Hatch (D., N. Mex.) to the microphone to talk for the adoption of the majority report permitting the Mississippi delegation to be seated.

Minority Report Defeated

Hatch asked that the majority rule and the convention support the majority report.

Then without delay Barkley recognized and put through a motion to shut off all further debate before the howling, booing, screaming delegates knew what was happening.

Still hammering for order, Barkley put the question first on the minority report and then on the majority report.

When he announced the minority report was defeated on a voice vote, delegations from Illinois, New York and California screamed for a roll-call.

Barkley announced that it was his understanding the minority on the committee had agreed there would be no roll-call asked for and went on to the majority report.

Amid constant interruptions from the excited delegates Barkley put the adoption of the majority report to a voice vote and ruled it was adopted.

Repeatedly he called upon the Sergeants at Arms to clear the aisles as noisy, hot and angry delegates swarmed about demanding to be put on record.

Various State leaders clamored to be counted with the minority against the seating of the Wright group, and after the address by Permanent Chairman Rayburn, Barkley announced that the following States had voted in favor of the minority report:

Connecticut, 20 votes; Ohio, 50; Michigan, 42; Minnesota, 26; Nevada, 10; Pennsylvania, 74; Washington, 20; Wisconsin, 24; District of Columbia, 3; Illinois, 60; California, 54; New York, 97.

This added up to a total of 503 votes, less than a majority.

In the South Carolina case, the present delegation was seated by a vote of 24 to 2, according to Senator Olin D. Johnston, (D., S. C.) a member of the delegation who sat in the credentials committee meeting.

The action overrode two appeals. Dr. L. A. Fletcher of Leesville, S. C., speaking for the "Citizens Democratic Party" asked that his group be given the State's 20 seats in the convention.

A. J. Clement, Jr., Negro of Charleston, S. C., speaking for the Progressive Democratic Party, said that his group should have at least 3 of the 20 seats, on the ground that more than 40 per cent of the State population is Negro.

Both spokesmen sharply criticized the South Carolina primary voters' oath which requires a pledge to uphold and support racial segregation and to oppose a fair employment practices law. Fletcher called it a "fascistic, thought-control" oath. Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina strongly defended the official delegation as having been properly selected.

A question from committee member Vaughn about whether Negroes were admitted to South Carolina Democratic precinct meetings brought an angry retort from Thurmond.

"I'll answer you nothing," said the Governor.

Thurmond warned the committee that if the proportional representation for Clement's group were approved "we will walk out of the convention and will not participate."

One result of the Mississippi fight was committee approval of a plan by Senator Carl Hatch (D., N. Mex.) to ask the convention's rules committee to draft a rule for future conventions to cover such cases.

Senator Hatch said if there had been such a rule this time, the Mississippi delegation would not have been seated. In the absence of such a rule, he said, he had voted to seat the group. He said it would be up to the rules committee to work out the language of the plan. He said his concept of its major purpose would be that there should be no racial discrimination in any of the States in the selection of delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

Czech Hospitals Will Eliminate Special Services

Prague, July 13 (NYHT).—Legislation is being prepared here to eliminate all special services in Czechoslovak hospitals.

Wealthy patients will be forbidden to offer extra pay or tips to obtain more or better medicines, operations or services than anyone else in the country. Doctors and nurses will likewise be forbidden to accept any extra stipends.

The traditional division of patients into first class (a private room), second class (two to a room) and general wards will also be done away with under the government's bill on nationalization of hospitals

National health insurance will become obligatory for the entire population of 12 million. About eight million persons are already covered by this type of insurance, which was widespread in Chechoslovakia before World War II.

Drugstore Loses $275 to Bandit Who Covers Face

A total of $275 was taken from the proprietor of the Hilton Professional Drugstore, 1033 22d st. nw., last night by an armed bandit who pinched his nose to cover his face and disguised his voice.

Charles L. Williams, proprietor, told police $190 was taken from the cash register and $85 from his pocket by the bandit, who first hit him between the eyes with the butt of a .22 caliber pistol. Four other persons in the store were herded into the cellar.

Williams, who said the store has been operated since 1899 and never before robbed, was taken to Emergency Hospital. He was released after six stitches were taken in his forehead.

The holdup occurred at 8:50 p. m. The bandit was described as 30 or 35 years old, 5 feet, 3 inches, 135 pounds, blond, and wearing a white shirt and blue pants.

Wattawa Named Truman Second

By a Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 13.—John Wattawa, chairman of the District delegation to the Democratic convention, will be among those officially seconding the nomination of President Truman.

The District group agreed at a caucus today that Wattawa should be assigned to make the speech.

Still open is the question of what vice presidential candidate the District delegation will support.

Newark Jurist Embezzled to Play Races

"comer" in Republican politics, and as a "tough" but fair jurist specializing in family and morals cases. Shortly after his arrest he resigned as judge of Newark's First Criminal Court and of the city's Family Court, a post he had held for three years.

The Pellecchia family, one of Newark's most prominent and influential, held about 75 per cent of the stock in the bank. The good-looking judge has been seen regularly in the company of the town's debutantes and with New York models.

But investigators said that while Pellecchia dated many pretty girls, there was no evidence he spent an unusual amount of money on them. He squandered virtually all the embezzled funds on gambling they declared.

Pellecchia had been a campus leader and tackle on the football team at Blair Academy. Upon graduation, he went to George Washington University law school in Washington, D. C., and spent summer vacations working in the Newark bank. He was graduated from the law school in 1932.

Recently he was voted by tailors the "best dressed" jurist in the United States because of his wardrobe of 400 neckties, 14 suits, 18 pairs of shoes and 15 sports jackets. He took a delight in wearing startlingly bright neckties under his black judicial robe.

Phone Call Gave Lead

State Banking Commissioner John J. Dickerson said his office got a lead on Pellecchia's spectacular embezzlement through an anonymous telephone call.

Dickerson said Pellecchia, as vice president of the bank, devised a scheme to lend money for fictitious mortgages on more than 20 properties, mostly solid-looking apartment houses. Other bank officials would look over the property and readily approve the mortgage. Then Pellecchia would make out checks, some for as much as $25,000, to fictitious payees, forge the indorsement and deposit the cash in his personal account.

Reds, Socialists Unite in Fight on De Gasperi Rule

Rome, July 13 (AP).—Italy's Communist and Socialist Parties tonight announced a "pact of unified action" against Premier Alcide de Gasperi's government. They said they would join in battle against De Gasperi's "clerical and police regime."

Meanwhile, the government rejected labor's urgent wage demands as inflationary and announced instead a program of higher taxes, lower costs and increased employment.

2 Youths Clinging To Capsized Boat Rescued by Navy

A Navy crash boat yesterday rescued two Washington youths left clinging to the side of their 11-foot sailing dinghy after high winds capsized it in the Anacostia River at 3:20 p. m.

Picked up from the river, halfway between Ft. McNair and the Anacostia Naval Training Station were Humphrey W. Johnson, 22, of 3829 S st. nw., and James P. Noffinger, 23, of 1717 G st. nw. The two had clung to the craft for 10 minutes before the rescue boat sent out by the naval station spotted them. The crash boat towed the dinghy to the Buzzard's Point Boat Club and landed the youths there.

serves every consideration at the hands of the Democratic Party. There is no honor to which he is not entitled, and no responsibility which he could not discharge with dignity and effectiveness."

Representative John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, another contender for the No. 2 place on the ticket, said tonight that he was still in the race. However, he declined to say that he was in it to the finish. He pointed out that Barkley has not yet said he would accept the nomination.

The Kentuckian has explained that he will make no statement until he concluded his duties as temporary chairman of the convention. These duties ended tonight.

There was no doubt in anybody's mind that the ticket would be Truman and Barkley.

Frank Hague, the dandified New Jersey boss, had been opposed to Barkley. Asked today who he thought would be nominated for the No. 2 place, Hague exploded:

"What the hell, you aren't stupid, are you? You saw that demonstration out there last night, didn't you?"

Lillian B. Robbins To Analyze Jobs For Welfare Head

The U. S. Civil Service Commission has approved District Welfare Director John W. Tramburg's request for a job analysis of positions in the Welfare Department, Tramburg announced yesterday.

Mrs. Lillian B. Robbins, a job analyst and organization investigator selected from the Civil Service register, will be employed to make the check, Victor Howard, secretary to the District Personnel Board, revealed.

The survey is designed to determine whether employes are properly classified and receiving proper pay and and if duties are assigned on an efficient basis.

Mrs. Robbins, who will get a salary of $4149, is a former OWI and OPA employe. For the past six months, she has been making a similar job analysis for the District Engineer Department Howard said.

D. C. Builder Gets Bladensburg High Shops Contract

A $319,789 contract for construction of the first unit in the proposed new Bladensburg High School was awarded by the Prince Georges County School Board yesterday to P. F. Dulaney of Washington.

The District firm was the lowest of six bidders. The project provided for a vocational building housing 10 shops at the site of the new school in eastern Bladensburg adjacent to the Sunnybrook community. Additional buildings, providing classrooms, gymnasium, auditorium and cafeteria will be erected as money becomes available, school officials said.

The vocational shop, first of its kind in nearby Maryland, is expected to be ready by September, 1949.

equality with all citizens and called on Congress again to assure and protect those rights.

The liberal wing effort to say more, and Southern insistence on saying less, were defeated by lopsided votes.

In the foreign-policy field, the platform called for "sound, humanitarian" administration of the Marshall Plan and—something the Republicans omitted—to "implement with appropriations the commitments which are made in this Nation's foreign program."

The plank pledged full support to the United Nations, its growth and development and "to lead the way toward curtailment of the use of the veto."

The party promised "our best endeavors" to conclude treaties of peace with remaining enemy nations, and vigorous efforts within the United Nations to bring about effective international control of the atom bomb and other weapons of mass destruction.

The Palestine plank pledged Israel the "full recognition" it seeks, and urged lifting of the arms bargo to "accord to the state of Isreal the right of self-defense."

This additional language, reportedly opposed by the State Department, was approved:

"We pledge ourselves to work for the modification of any resolution of the United Nations to the extent that it may prevent any such (arms embargo( revision."

Leading off the domestic planks was a charge that the Republican Congress is directly responsible for the present and ever-increasing high cost of living.

The plank promised to "curb the Republican inflation." It said spiralling costs resulted from GOP failure to adopt President Truman's comprehensive program to control the high cost of living."

Demanding repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, the platform charged the number of labor-management disputes has increased under the law, NLRB cases have doubled, litigation has mounted and the net effect has been to undermine the established policy of collective bargaining.

In lieu of the Taft-Hartley Act, the platform recommended legislation establishing "a just body of rules to assure free and effective collective bargaining, to determine, in the public interest, the rights of employes and employers, to reduce to a minimum their conflict of interests, and to enable unions to keep their membership free from communistic influences."

Some other planks called for:

Comprehensive housing legislation, "including provision for slum clearance and low-rent housing projects initiated by local agencies."

Reduction of taxes, when possible without unbalancing the Nation's economy, "by giving a full measure of relief to those millions of low-income families on whom the wartime burden of taxation fell most heavily."

Opposition to the imposition of a general Federal sales tax.

Federal aid to education, with local control of funds.

Repeal of the Federal margarine tax.

Development of regional power systems.

The civil rights plank, as finally adopted after bitter clashes with the party's right and left, provides:

"The Democratic Party is responsible for the great civil rights gains made in recent years in eliminating unfair and illegal discrimination based on race, creed or color.

Support Equal Job Rights

"The Democratic Party commits itself to continue its effort to eradicate all racial, religious and economic discrimination.

"We again state our belief that racial and religious minorities must have the rght to live, the right to work, the right to vote, the full and equal protection of the law, on a basis of equality with all citizens as guaranteed by the Constitution.

"We again call on Congress to exercise its full authority to the limits of the Constitution to assure and protect these rights."

Mayor Hubert Humphrey of Minneapolis, following a 12-State caucus, sponsored by Americans for Democratic Action, and instructions from his own Minnesota delegation, promptly moved to make the civil rights plank more specific.

The eleventh-hour, spelled-out plank pledged "Federal action" to prevent lynching and mob violence, equal job opportunity, "full and free" political participation and "equal treatment" in the armed forces.

Army Nonsegregation Beaten

This was shouted down after bitter debate. Later Humphrey tried again with a separate plank for nonsegregation in the armed forces. This, too, was voted down.

Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.), one of the leaders of the administration's "harmony" move, later criticized Humphrey for making the fight.

Lucas said the 18-man Democratic subcommittee, which framed the compromise civil rights plank, "adopted Humphrey's language in the first place, and now he wants to amend it."

"This is a move to absolutely destroy the harmony in the party we are trying to build," said Lucas.

Humphrey replied almost as sharply. He said it was true that he had proposed the language now in the compromise plank. But, he said, he also reserved the right to try to tighten it up in the full committee.

Bitter Row Over Tidelands

Just before the committee clashed on civil rights an almost equally bitter row broke on the tidelands oil issue.

A plank asserting Federal control of submerged coastal oil lands, extending seaward to the continental shelf, was unexpectedly offered in committee.

Committee leaders had refrained from submitting a strong Federal tidelands plank, despite the Supreme Court's ruling and the administration's clear stand for Federal control.

They held it back in an effort to persuade the South to go along with the compromise civil rights stand. When the surprise amendment was sprung, the Texas members, leading a hot fight against it, got support from the "harmonizers." As a result, the tidelands plank was defeated and there is no mention of the issue in tha platform.

The Southern States' rights plank which was slapped down by the resolutions committee, was offered by former Gov. Dan Moody of Texas. It read:

"The Democratic Party reaffirms its complete adherence to the principle of States' rights as reserved in the Federal constitution and pledges it will not sponsor the invasion of the exclusive jurisdiction of the States in their domestic affairs by Federal legislation or otherwise."

After three all-night subcommittee sessions in 72 hours, the full Democratic resolutions committee met in the heavily guarded Rose Garden room on the roof of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel at 3 p. m., with no quitting hour set.

By dinner time the group had approved a plank for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and adopted strengthening changes in the Israel plank. Then escape valves were thrown wide open for the civil rights blowoff.

Rayburn Hits Party's Apathy, Recalls 16 Years of Leadership

absence need not try to settle the problems of a chaotic world through another orgy of bloodletting—which never solves anything."

Paying tribute to President Roosevelt's wartime and peacetime leadership, Van Heflin, a Hollywood movie star, said Roosevelt had "simplicity, courage and patience."

"That the nations of the world could unite to secure liberty and justice for all, to keep the peace is a daring plan and a simple one. It is based on human need and self-evident truth. On us has fallen the task of making that bold, plain program work without him to lead us, to help us, to speak for us. But he showed us the way.

"We can keep to that way, if we are strong enough and good enough, if we truly remember him. The grave in Hyde Park holds his body, but his truth is marching on."

Lawrence Tibbett, Metropolitan Opera star; Lucy Monroe and the Negro choir of St. Matthews' Methodist Church of Philadelphia rendered several musical selections. Miss Monroe sang the favorite hymn of the late President, "There Is No Death."

The memorial services concluded with "Taps."

Rayburn hailed the Democratic Party as the guardian of the freedom of the American people between two "false fronts," one the false front for the Communist Party led by Henry Wallace and the other the "false front" led by Govs. Tom Dewey and Earl Warren, to mask the Republican Party "as the continuing party of privilege."

"There is nothing the American people want more than peace," the 66-year-old House Democratic leader told the convention, "but they will not let Henry Wallace exploit their yearning for peace in order to encourage an illusory isolationism, Communist aggression and war.

Labels Party Red Front

"The American people," he added, "will forgive Henry Wallace for some of his many mistakes of the heart. But they will never forgive him his cruel and heartless opposition to the Marshall Plan to restore health to a sick, a hungry and war-torn world.

"This attempt of the Wallace Party to kill the Marshall Plan has made it a Communist front, despite the good faith and idealism of some of its supporters.

"Put the front of privilege," Rayburn continued, "is even more dangerous, because it is the abuse of privilege—what Grover Cleveland called the communism of pelf—upon which the other communism grows and thrives. Privilege which divides people and turns group against group—is the seed from which totalitarianism flowers."

It was a fighting speech the doughty veteran legislator gave.

He told the delegates, many of whom have been walking around in an air of unmitigated gloom, that the Democratic Party need not fear next November "as all the paid machines of defeatist propaganda are trying to make us afraid," because the American voters are politically wise and politically educated.

"We are the party of the common man and the American people know it," said Rayburn.

"On the right threatens the front of privilege. On the left threatens the pied piper of the Politburo."

Rayburn's address was followed by a brief demonstration with the band playing "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You."

Delegates—particularly the 500-odd women delegates and alternates—received another dose of straight-from-the-shoulder advice from a second Congressinoal veteran.

Representative Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, who has served in Congress for 24 years, said women should be ashamed of themselves because never since they won the right to vote have more than 50 per cent of those eligible cast their ballots.

"The fact that the men haven't done any better doesn't excuse us," she said.

"Apparently women have never seen the connection between their objectives—health, education, the standard of living, security—and their Government.

Urges Political Action

"Most of us, even after 28 years, still think of politics as something having no relation to our homes and ourselves," Mrs. Norton declared.

Pointing to the terrific sacrifices that many women make to secure an education for their children, Mrs. Norton declared that a fraction of that drive turned into political action would attain the objectives all women seek.

The convention tonight heard from another woman speaker—Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas of California, who to her own disgust is frequently mentioned as the Democrats' answer to the GOP's glamorous Clare Boothe Luce.

Mrs. Douglas opened up on the Republican Party as the party of isolationism and inflation.

"The greater the Republican majority, the greater the power of the Republican leadership in Congress which has again and again shown its isolationist bias," Mrs. Douglas told the delegates.

Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Administrator, told the delegates this afternoon that if the Republicans come into power they will "bring about another economic debacle that will make 1929 seem a pink tea party."

And for the especial scorn of Democrats, Ewing singled out "the Feudal Four" he termed the "real doers" of the Republican Party—"Taft, Taber, Martin and Halleck."

With echoes of the derision with which President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1940 used the names of Martin, Barton and Fish, Ewing played again and again on the names of the four GOP congressional leaders—Senator Robert A. Taft, House Appropriations Chairman John Taber, Speaker Joseph Martin and House Majority Leader Charles Halleck.

"No matter what Tom Dewey may propose, no matter what the Republican platform makers may say, the American people know who make the Republican laws and control Republican policy," Ewing told cheering delegates.

"Who are they? You know them—the country knows them—Taft, Taber, Martin and Halleck."

Refers to Gifts

Then with a reference to the gifts passed out at the Dewey campaign headquarters during the Republican Convention here, Ewing said:

"How can this 'Feudal Four,' so slighted by the Republican Convention, be lined up to support the promise of the Republican platform? This is a very hard question and difficult to solve. But it may be that Tom Dewey has a plan in mind.

"After all, he used some good tricks during the Republican Convention. Doubtless he thinks that Taft, Taber, Martin and Halleck will fall into line with the Republican platform in exchange for a few friendly gifts, perhaps a pair of nylon hose, perhaps a silver compact, perhaps a cigarette case, or some fine Havana cigars."

The crowd laughed and applauded as he continued that Dewey would get the "Feudal Four" to the White House and give Taft a pair of nylon hose, Taber a silver compact and Martin a cigarette case. "Charlie Halleck would have to get along with a few Havana cigars," he told the roaring delegates.

Mrs. Charles W. Tillett, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, called upon women voters to support President Truman because he is undertaking "bold, gallant and unwavering action to secure peace."

Representative Michael J. Kirwan of Ohio termed the Republican Party's record in the Eightieth Congress a miserable "do-nothing" score.

Ray G. Baker, president of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, also addressed the delegates.

Yugoslavia Dissolves Its Socialist Party

Belgrade, July 13 (AP).—Yugoslav authorities announced today the dissolution of the Socialist party. The move bolstered further the leadership of the Communist party, now under attack by Communists outside Yugoslavia.

The statement declared the party had already ceased to function. The party was never strong. The various democratic and republican pleasant parties outranked it.

Increasing Share Of U. S. Resources Seen School Need

The Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers opened its annual summer conference at the University of Maryland in College Park yesterday and heard an estimate that schools require an increasing share of the Nation's resources.

Dr. Agnes Samuelson, chairman of school education for the national congress, said that "based on the increased birth rates," she said, "in the next decade school enrollment at its highest point will require provisions for four million more children.

"This means a million more teachers, and millions of dollars."

Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, jr., Maryland's State superintendent of education, echoed Dr. Samuelson's ideas.

Some 150 delegates from parent-teacher organizations had registered by mid-afternoon and more were coming in as the first day's sessions drew to a close.

Wednesday morning's schedule calls for group seminars on cooperation of schools with colleges, high school service, visual education, mental and social hygiene, school legislation, parent education, character and spiritual education, and school lunches.

Coal Socialization Costs Britain 93 Million in Year

London, July 13 (AP).—The National Coal Board, operator of Britain's publicly owned coal pits, reported today its first year's operations resulted in a loss of £23,255,586 ($93,022,344).

The figure included approximately £19,000,000 spent to begin modernization of some mines. (The British pound is worth about $4.)

Net operating loss was £6,187,300.

U. S. Rejects Soviet Protest on Air Lift

Berlin, July 13 (AP).—The American deputy military governor rebuffed tonight Russian protests that American planes bringing food to Berlin are guilty of "disorderly flights."

Gen. Hays

He also challenged quickly a Russian hint that the American airmen must have Soviet permission to use the 20-mile-wide air corridor to Berlin. He said American rights to the corridor are clear.

The official, Maj. Gen. George P. Hays, said a preliminary check showed the Soviet charges are unfounded. He promised a thorough investigation.

Hays said each complaint in the past—about 30 since April—had been investigated and not one violation of safety regulations had been found.

The Russians complained July 10 that Americans violated flight safety rules in the corridor on three occasions recently and flew over Soviet military installations.

New controls on travel by Germans between Berlin and western Germany were imposed tonight by the Russians.

The order, announced by the Soviet-controlled German news agency ADN, said henceforth any German in Berlin wishing to travel to the western zones must obtain a travel pass from the Russian military administration. Any German coming from the west into Berlin must have a certificate from the Soviets permitting him to enter.

Heretofore, Berliners could obtain interzonal travel passes from the commandant of the Berlin occupation sectors in which they lived—United States, British or French. Western Germans coming to the city needed only passes issued by officials in the western zones.

The Russians claimed the new controls were needed because interzonal passes recently have become "irregular and misused" Public safety officials of the U. S. military government said the move violated a four-power agreement of interzonal travel and was "another turning of the screw" on Berlin by the Russians.

L. T. Steck, food chief for the American Military Government, said tonight that, thanks to the airlift, western Berlin has food stocks on hand sufficient to feed its two million Germans for at least four weeks.

Reds Demand Capitulation

Other prime developments in the Berlin situation were:

1. Authoritative government sources in London said Britain is preparing to step up greatly the number of men and aircraft assigned to the air lift.

2. The Russian-controlled press called on western Berlin to capitulate. It claimed the notes from the United States, France and Britain demanding that Moscow lift the blockade were not an ultimatum. This was seen as an indication Moscow could take as long as it desired to answer.

3. Arthur Henderson, British Secretary of State for Air, said on an inspection trip the British will open a second air base at Fassbert, in the British zone of Germany, to be devoted exclusively to the air lift.

4. The Americans kept workmen busy constructing an additional runway at Templehof, the U. S. Army's Berlin air base.

Lieut. Gen. G. S. Lukianchenko, Soviet chief of staff in Berlin, wrote about the flights to General Hays.

Hays answered he was at a loss to understand the Russian complaints.

He said American rights within the corridor are clearly defined in four-power agreements governing the operation of the Berlin air safety center and the corridors as well as in the understanding reached among the powers prior to the entry of American troops into Berlin.

Another British visitor was Anthony Eden, former Foreign Secretary, who came with the British commander in Germany, Gen. Sir Brian Robertson. Robertson has been in London. It was said Robertson and Eden planned to confer with the American commander, Gen. Lucius D. Clay.

Firmness Held Winning 'War'

get out of Europe and call it quits, say these officials. Rather, it would hasten war, in their opinion. Berlin has become the symbol of American determination, it is felt. If we give in here, western Germany will conclude that it is next. Then France would weaken and the European Recovery Program would receive body blows. The fact that the odds are against us makes victory in the "cold" war all the more important. Firmness when our position is weak will have greater effect on western Europe than if it were strong, in the opinion of our experts here.

100 Airplane Engines Being Sped to Reich

By the United Press

The Air Force revealed yesterday it was rushing 100 aircraft engines to Frankfurt, Germany, to keep transport planes flying into blockaded Berlin.

Four commercial airlines will fly a total of 15 transatlantic cargo flights to ferry the engines to Frankfurt, where they will be used as replacements on C-54's and C-47's.

The Air Force said it called on private carriers for the ferrying job because the Military Air Transport Service already is overloaded by the Berlin situation.

The Air Force said the ferrying job would begin today and be completed by July 21.

Red Zone Interior Head Picked

By Marguerite Higgins

Berlin, July 13 (NYHT).—Police state forms of eastern European countries closed on the Soviet zone of Germany tonight as the Russians for the first time disclosed the existence of a Ministry of Interior for the entire zone.

The existence of the Ministry of Interior, apparently parallel to those which, with their broad police powers, have gained increasing control in all Soviet satellite countries, was acknowledged for the first time here late tonight when the Soviet-licensed news agency announced the appointment of a permanent president for this organization. The president will be Dr. Fischer, former Minister of the Interior in Saxony, and a veteran, tough-talking Communist.

Actually it has been an open secret in Berlin that a Ministry of Interior with wide police powers was functioning as part of the central administration for the Soviet zone directly responsible to Marshal Vassili Sokolovsky.

But until now both the Russians and the Soviet and Communist newspapers have maintained discreet silence on the subject.

The public acknowledgement that the zone-wide Ministry of Interior exists fits in with the recent pressure being put on the zone to make it conform with the pattern of the eastern European states.

Otto Grotewohl, chairman of the Communist-dominated Socialist Unity Party, officially signalized this move when he said at a recent party congress that from now on the full control of the zone lay in his party's hands.

King Urges America, Britain Collaborate

London, July 13 (AP).—King Georgie VI appealed today for close collaboration between the United States and Britain to assure world peace.

Welcoming more than 300 bishops attending the Lambeth Conference, the King noted that the largest single delegation came from the United States, "at a time when that great country is assuming heavy responsibilities for the healing of a torn world."

Rees Insists Ewing Quit Security Job

Representative Rees (R., Kans.) yesterday called on Oscar R. Ewing to quit as Federal Security administrator.

Rees, chairman of the House Civil Service Committee, accused Ewing in a statement of "continuing his political activities" while serving in the security post.

In a speech before the Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia yesterday, Ewing lambasted the Republican Party and the Republican-controlled Congress.

He told the convention the GOP will wreck the Social Security program and keep none of the promises made at the Republican Convention three weeks ago.

Rees also accused Ewing of being "unqualified to administer the Nation's most important Federal Security program." He said the FSA "is in conflict, turmoil and confusion."

The Kansan referred to the recent resignation of Dr. E. B. Norton as Deputy Commissioner of Education. He attributed this to political activities of Ewing.

Rees quoted Dr. Norton as saying he was quitting because of "the rate at which the political administration" of FSA was taking over functions of the Office of Education. Rees continued:

"In my judgment this is a disgraceful commentary on American government. It demonstrates that it is politics rather than salary that is driving out the best-qualified career Federal administrators."

A number of Federal officials who have resigned in recent months have said they were leaving to better themselves financially. President Truman has urged higher salaries for Federal officials so that better men may be obtained and kept in the posts.

British Exports Top Target, Set Record

London, July 13 (NYHT).—Britain's all-important export drive during June was "considerably ahead" of the mid-1948 target figure, Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, disclosed today.

Exports, upon which Britain is dependent for her economic health, jumped in value by four million pounds over the May figure, to a new record of 134 million pounds. The volume target for the middle of the year, fixed in the government's economic plan, was 140 per cent of the 1938 volume. This has now been achieved.

Wilson told the Anglo-French Chamber of Commerce in London that continuing high import prices left Britain with "no real narrowing of the gap" between payments for imports and receipts for exports.

The high level of exports is not likely to continue during the next month, for the effects of the three-week dock strike are still to be felt in export figures. Wilson explained that because exporters are allowed six days after clearance of ships to send in their returns, much of the shipping loss will be reflected next month.

The achievement nevertheless represents an important milestone in Britain's recovery. It is the first major economic target, aside from steel production, to be achieved.

Vengeful Italian Kills 3 Witnesses in Suit

Rome, July 13 (AP).—A vengeful peasant bent on wiping out all who testified against him in a suit over water rights held a village in south Italy in terror today.

Dispatches from Cosenza, Calabria, reported that the man, Martino Pietro, 47, was still at large after ambushing and killing three witnesses at the nearby village of Santa Caterina. He also killed one man and wounded another who had nothing to do with the trial.

D. C. Eskimo Expert North To Study Ruins

While Washingtonians swelter, Dr. Henry B. Collins, jr., must be finding his latest assignment particularly appealing.

The Government archeologist was reported in Greeland yesterday, preparing for a summer expedition into the Arctic Circle. His quest is to study migrations of prehistoric Eskimos from northern lands their present-day descendants shun.

He and fellow scientists plan to study Eskimo ruins in the long uninhabited, mysterious Arctic wilderness north of the seventy-fifth parallel. The project is sponsored jointly by the Smithsonian Institution and the National Museum of Canada.

In 1936, Dr. Collins won the annual gold medal of the Royal Danish Academy of Letters for his findings on the cultural origins of the Alaska Eskimo. During the expedition this summer, he hopes to strike even further north than his previous diggings.

The region to be explored consists of the Parry and Sverdrup groups of islands, where for at least 100 years various expeditions have reported finding many old village sites with ruins of crude stone houses. The houses are said to have rafters of whalebone, which, Dr. Collins said, was characteristic of prehistoric Canadian and Greenland Eskimos.

Some of the sites, apparently extensive, have been reported on Cornwallis Island, 200 miles due north of Winnipeg and 800 miles above the rim of the Arctic Circle.

No natives, said Dr. Collins, have lived north of the 75th parallel in the Canadian archipelago during historic times.

When Dr. Collins is not searching out Eskimo ruins he lives here at 2557 36th st. nw. His home here, however, is not available. It's been rented for the summer.

rall from a position 250 miles northeast of the Azores.

The message was received as planes from the aircraft carrier Coral Sea were poised to search the Azores area for the Carson. The U. S. Coast Guard cutter Campbell was racing full speed toward the Carson. Until the message came from the Missouri, nothing had been received directly or indirectly from the freighter since the mutiny report.

The Missouri, Coral Sea and Campbell are part of a midshipmen's 13-vessel practice cruise squadron which sailed from Gibraltar two days ago en route to Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Carole Landis' Mother Left Whole Estate

Hollywood, July 13 (U.P.).—Actress Carole Landis left her entire estate, which, aside from her house and personal belongings, totals less than $50,000, to her mother, Mrs. Clara Landis, Attorney Jerry Giesler said today. Miss Landis committed suicide July 5, taking an overdose of sleeping pills.

The will, dated in 1944, specified that her mother should get her house, jewels, clothes, furniture and books, and that the remainder should go in trust for mother.

Peru Congress Call Is Issued In Little Hope

Lima, Peru, July 13 (U.P.).—An executive decree published today called Congress into regular session beginning July 28. A simultaneous official communique said legislators were free to ignore the call.

Congressional action has been paralyzed since last year's session by a strike of right-wing senators, preventing the required quorum. The Chamber of Deputies cannot meet unless the Senate does.

President Jose Luis Bustamante announced on June 28 that it would be useless to call Congress since striking senators were determined to stay out. He added, however, that he had asked for a legal opinion as to whether he was bound to call Congress every year.

Striking senators collect their salaries as usual, and it was indicated that a move to take them off the government payroll might persuade them to go back to work.

Bustamante has indicated that if Congress does not heed his call, he will continue to govern Peru by decree.

Scientists Dig To Uncover Secret Of Newport Mill

Newport, R. I., July 13 (U.P.).—Shovel-wielding scientists dug at the heart of America's oldest riddle today in an effort to learn whether Viking explorers or colonial settlers built Newport's famed and mysterious "old stone mill."

William S. Godfrey, director of the project sponsored by the Society for American Archeology, said his group hoped to find the answer in relics that may be buried around the foundation of the circular tower in the city's center.

Some archeologists contend the tower was built by roaming Norsemen around the year 1100. That would make it perhaps the earliest structure built by white men in America. The other faction believes the tower was built by Benedict Arnold, first governor of the Rhode Island colony, to house a mill, around 1663.

32 Americans, Detained in Beirut, Assail U. S.

New York, July 13 (AP).—Thirty-two Americans removed from the steamer Marine Carp by Lebanese authorities in Beirut harbor May 19 returned today aboard the same ship and charged the American Government "failed to protect us."

Sixty-nine persons, 41 of them Americans, were removed from the ship by Lebanese, who claimed they were en route to Palestine to join Jewish fighting forces.

Eli Kalm, 27, of New York, who acted as spokesman for the returning Americans, said their seizue was "a most disillusioning experience."

He asserted the United States Government "not only failed to protect us, but allowed insult and injury to be heaped upon American citizens by a fifth-class country which had jailed us on a flimsy and unsubstantiated charge:

"I categorically deny that any of us were on our way to Palestine to join the fighting there. Most of us were going there to join other members of our families, on business or in connection with seeking relatives among displaced persons who had come from Europe, or to make arrangements for homes for such relatives."

Mediator Reports on Palestine . . .

Arabs Plan Intensified War; Jews Foresee Another Truce

Cairo, July 13 (AP).—Arab leaders huddled in Amman today to plan intensified war against the Jews but a well-informed Jewish source said a new Palestine truce is likely.

In the battle areas, air and ground action mounted. Haifa had its first air raid of this war. Two bombs were dropped.

British sources said Britain is now ready to join in strong United Nations action to halt the fighting. This would represent a shift in British policy. Previous American-Russian moves for forceful action in the Holy Land crisis were blocked largely through British opposition.

The Arab office in London contended that Britain is trying to "coerce" the Arab states into accepting a Jewish state in Palestine. It forecast a "widespread explosion" in the Arab area if the attempt succeeds.

'No Question of Truce'

The Arab League secretary, Abdel Rahman Azzam Pasha, said "there is no question of a truce." In Amman, the Trans-Jordan capital, Azzam Pasha said his meetings there with Iraqi, Syrian, Lebanese and Trans-Jordan officials were "in the interest of intensifying the Arab war effort in Palestine."

But a source close to the Israeli government said in Tel Aviv that there seems "every reason to expect" a new truce, possibly by the end of this week.

He predicted a new cease fire would result from modified proposals which Count Folke Bernadotte, the United Nations mediator, is expected to place before the Security Council. It is regarded as doubtful, however, whether any permanent basis for peace will be found.

The Jews seemed to be preparing for an attack to drive the Arabs from Jerusalem.

Tel Aviv Bombed

Egyptian planes bombed Tel Aviv shortly before noon.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

WAR FRONT—Jewish forces held out in Lydda against counterattacking mechanized Arab columns yesterday, according to dispatches from the front. Arabs, however, succeed in taking Beit Nabala and Deir Tarif, three to five miles to the northeast. Egyptian mobile forces claimed to have penetrated Jewish lines south of Jerusalem (B)

The Israeli air force struck the main Egyptian base at Gaza in southwest Palestine last night.

At the eastern end of the Jerusalem-Tel Aviv highway the Jews strengthened their position by capturing Suba, a strong point just below that highway, 5 miles west of Jerusalem.

An Israeli army spokesman said Jewish possession of Suba "finally puts an end to the Arab dream of cutting the road to Tel Aviv."

Israeli troops also occupied the Arab village of Ras El Ain, the terminus of a water pipeline to Jerusalem.

U. S. Demands Cease-Fire

ocle as he addressed the Council personally for the first time since he took over the job of trying to mediate Jewish-Arab differences. He remained calm even when subjected to a sharp cross-examination by Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko over his powers.

Bernadotte's Plan Attacked

Gromyko and Council President Dmitri Z. Manuilsky of the Soviet Ukraine challenged Bernadotte's peace suggestions, including his plans to alter the partition boundaries and suggestions for a plebiscite. Manuilsky said that both were in direct violation of the U. N. Assembly's decision to partition Palestine.

Bernadotte said he was given the task of mediating and not enforcing partition. "If I should be 100 per cent bound by the partition decision, there would be no need to have a mediator because no mediation would be necessary," he added.

Gromyko also questioned Bernadotte closely on his suggestion for the demilitarization of the Haifa oil refinery areas. The mediator admitted under prodding that the United States, Britain and France had suggested the move and he fully agreed with it. He said the Jews had objected to the idea and the Arabs agreed.

"This is all very enlightening," Manuilsky commented after Bernadotte told of the three powers taking the initiative to keep the oil moving.

On his other suggestion for the demilitarization of Jerusalem, Bernadotte said he would need an absolute minimum of 1000 men for guard duty. He said he would really like 2000 or 2500.

Prices Hit Conscience, Butcher Closes Shop

New York, July 13 (U.P.).—Anthony D'Amelio, 32, padlocked his butcher shop today. He said he felt like a thief behind the counter and raising prices every day.

A war veteran, D'Amelio hung a sign in his window. It said:

"The management of this store will not continue to sell meat. Prices are entirely too high!"

Tomatoes, Potatoes Grow on Same Vine

Mamaroneck, N. Y., July 13 (AP). Mr. and Mrs. Walter Allikas expect a lot of raised eyebrows over this one, but they vow they have tomatoes—or pomatoes—in their garden.

They explained today that they planted potatoes this spring in a garden where they grew tomatoes last year. Now they have a vine with five tomatoes above ground and several potatoes underground on the roots of the same vine.

Government Offices Close As 1,500,000 French Strike

Paris, July 13 (U.P.).—More than 1,500,000 civil servants joined the six-day nation-wide strike for more government pay today and communications workers threatened to walk out Thursday if their demands were not met.

The strike closed courts and most customs offices. Government finances were snarled, the national lottery was disrupted, hundreds of government offices were shut down and for 24 hours Paris was almost completely cut off by air from the rest of Europe.

Stock exchange employes and law clerks also struck for the day.

Jean Biondi, secretary of state for the civil service, informed the strikers the government had set Thursday morning as the deadline for civil service workers to return to their jobs. If they do, he said, they will get the wage increases promised them with partial payments to be made at once.

The first break in the walkout came tonight, when ground personnel at airports reached an agreement with the Transport Ministry. Terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

The strike movement gained momentum after the cabinet, in a night-long session ending at 2:30 a. m., announced it would not knuckle down to the demands of 60,000 Finance Ministry workers, whose walkout six days ago precipitated the crisis.

Most of the civil servants walked out on orders of the French Workers' Force, a non-Communist labor organization, which today rejected government reclassification offers as "utterly insufficient."

The Federation of Christian Workers, with a membership of about 200,000, approved the government's compromise reclassification scheme and told members to remain at work "pending further discussions."

The regrading plan raises the classification of civil servants so they would receive more pay, but does not break the freeze on wages in any classification.

VA Turns Down Hospital Request

An official thumbs-down by Veterans Administration yesterday was given Maryland officials seeking a 15-million-dollar VA hospital in Montgomery County.

Replying to a letter from County Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter, which had been forwarded to Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland, requesting VA to consider a county site, a VA assistant administrator, F. H. Dryden, wrote that such a move would not be feasible. A final go-ahead has been given the Washington area veteran hospital on the Nevius tract in Arlington, he said.

Transit Profits

A rise in Washington transit fares cannot be forestalled merely by wishful thinking, and the Public Utilities Commission is not likely to be influenced by arguments based only on an emotional resistance to higher prices. Nevertheless, an increase in transit fares is something that affects thousands of Washington residents, and the public interest is served by keeping those fares at the absolute minimum consistent with sound operation of the Capital Transit Co. Accordingly, before allowing the 25 per cent basic hike requested by the company, the PUC has an obligation to reexamine the entire basis on which a "fair return" is calculated. This obligation is recognized by Chairman Flanagan in his statement that "arithmetic" will decide the issue here.

In 1945 the PUC established 7½ per cent as a "fair and reasonable" return on investment for the Capital Transit Co. This contrasts with the 5½ per cent return just set by the utilities commission for the Potomac Electric Power Co. There is, to be sure, a difference between the two utilities in scope of operation. It can be argued that investors in Capital Transit undertake a greater risk. Moreover, the valuation on which PUC bases the 7½ per cent rate is substantially lower than what Capital Transit contends is equitable. There is reason to believe, however, that the 7½ per cent rate is not wholly realistic in terms of what transit companies generally are earning today.

Assuming that Capital Transit's plight is as serious as the company maintains, a reappraisal of what constitutes a fair return might merely confirm the need for an increase in fares. Rising costs have made it difficult for transit companies in a number of other cities to make ends meet with the 10-cent fare. Nevertheless, if some readjustment is to be granted here, it is essential that the increase be based on a rate of return consonant with today's conditions. The fare should be based not on an arbitrary estimate, but on what is clearly justified by the facts.

Fly In The Ointment

The agreement achieved with three railway brotherhoods, the engineers, switchmen and firemen, retroactive to November first, marks the end of a dispute that lasted more than a year—so long, in fact, that the rail unions are getting ready to launch another drive for wage increases in which the three intransigent unions will, of course, join. It is cause for moderate rejoicing that the demands of this minority group for a 30 per cent wage increase were successfully resisted and that they were finally induced to accept, with some modifications, the recommendations of the fact-finding board set up under the Railway Labor Act. But the settlement was reached only after the Government had seized the railroads to avert a strike and after issuance of an injunction forbidding strikes during the period of Government operation.

In the face of this disheartening record the President's enthusiastic indorsement of the settlement as an agreement reached by bargaining is a rather sorry joke. For the agreement is actually a compromise forced on the parties to the dispute by governmental pressure. Moreover, while the railroads will regain control of their properties (a control that was never lost) they are still involved in a grim contest to build up their revenues by freight rate and fare increases in an effort to overtake rising material and wage costs. They have been making some headway, as the ICC has granted them substantial freight rate increases since last fall. Passenger fares have also been raised and the latest increase for the Eastern roads, announced last week, will be a boon to those carriers deriving a considerable part of their revenue from passenger travel.

However, the struggle to keep rates in line with rising costs is likely to prove a losing game. Although the ICC has speeded up its regulatory machinery of late, relief in the form of rate increases naturally has come in response to the pressure of higher operating costs, rather than in anticipation of further increases. Apart from the unavoidable lag in such compensatory adjustments, the roads cannot continue indefinitely to depend on rate and fare increases to solve their problem. For as rail charges advance, competition from other transport agencies grows.

The virtual certainty that the rail unions will demand and receive third-round wage increases in the near future emphasizes the dilemma in which the roads are now placed. The solution of their financial problem would not be easy under any conditions, but if the inflationary rise in living costs could be arrested, they would be in a better position to resist demands for wage increases that they cannot afford to pay. As it is, the unions have the upper hand in bargaining negotiations.

Crisis In The Kremlin?

When Mr. Churchill in a speech to his constituents at Woodford last Saturday referred to the possibility of a quarrel among members of the Russian Politbureau over questions of foreign policy, he was merely giving voice to some of the rumors which have been multiplying since the public excommunication of Marshal Tito by the Cominform. "We cannot," said Mr. Churchill, "tell what internal stresses are at work in this grim oligarchy. It would seem to me they must be very severe at present."

The absence of any real information concerning the supposed quarrel or of the personalities who may be involved in it has stimulated rather than discouraged speculation. Something perhaps may be inferred from the fact that Comrade Zhdanov was present at the meeting of the Cominform in Poland and must have prescribed the terms of the pronouncement against Tito. Now Zhdanov is said to represent the faction in the Kremlin which is most fanatical and aggressive in matters of foreign policy, or, to put it more accurately, the faction which is least disposed to caution. Thus the quarrel, if there is one, probably involves a question of tactics rather than of ultimate aims. It is not unreasonable to surmise the existence of another faction which feels that the Soviet policy has for the moment overreached itself, by uniting the rest of the world against it, and which proposes for the time being a policy of retreat and conciliation. Under this hypothesis, the quarrel to which Mr. Churchill referred would be one of extremists versus opportunists.

The fact that Zhdanov has apparently been authorized to enforce a stern program of discipline on the Communist Parties outside Russia seems to indicate that his star is ascendant, and that he is supported by Comrade Beria, who is said to control the GPU, or MVD as it is now called. President Truman was no doubt extravagant when he referred recently to Stalin as the prisoner of the Politbureau, but in the last analysis of power the Politbureau is itself the prisoner of GPU, or at any rate of the man from whom secret police are willing to take their orders.

The suspicion that the conflict between Tito and the Kremlin is in some degree a reverberation of a conflict within the Russian Communist Party itself is strengthened by rumors of impending purges in all the Communist Parties outside Russia. This, of course, was the case after the other great proscriptions of "deviationists" of one kind and another. A warning of what is coming can be read between the lines of ideological jargon in the instructions of the Cominform and published in Sunday's edition of the New York Daily Worker. Among other things, it was stated that there must be > ". . . strict centralism, conscious discipline, unity of will and action, no factions and groups permitted, individual selection of people joining the party, guarding the party against opportuniist elements . . . These principles derive from the bitter struggles against the Mensheviks, Trotskyites, Bucharinites and other enemies of the working class who throughout the history of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union frantically tried to undermine and destroy the organizational principles of the party."

We cannot, then, entirely eliminate the possibility that another purge of some proportions is now in progress within Russia itself. But to entertain such a notion is of course to raise the question of what part Stalin may be playing in the business. This in turn gives rise to conjectures concerning the state of Stalin's health. Until now Stalin's policy in both domestic and external matters has been distinguished by cunning rather than by recklessness, in other words the opposite of the policy attributed to Zhdanov. Thus if Zhdanov and the faction which is disposed to gamble everything on the possibility of wrecking the Marshall Plan, are really in the saddle, it may even suggest that the strange affair of Marshal Tito is somehow related to the long-anticipated fight over the succession.

Intra-European Trade

A revival of trade among the countries of Europe is quite as essential to success of the European aid program as an expansion of trade with the United States and other hard-currency countries. As Camille Gutt, director of the International Monetary Fund, recently pointed out, Europeans must not only increase their production in order to increase their exports to this country; they must also take steps to decrease their dependence on the United States as a source of supply by expanding the volume of intra-European trade. For, as he says, the present unbalanced situation which resulted last year in a colossal deficit of 7½ billion dollars in Europe's balance of payments with the United States cannot last.

The problem, then, that has been engaging the attention of the ECA authorities in the Paris conferences is how to revive intra-European trade, which has bogged down of late because of a lack of acceptable means of payment. Since the war a great part of this trade has been carried on under bilateral agreements which, in effect, provided for an exchange of goods against goods, with arrangements for limited credits to cover deficits in the trade balance of either party to the agreement. However, purchases that could not be financed by such means had to be paid for by shipments of gold or dollars. And as these reserves dwindled, trade also began to languish. In short, Europe today provides an outstanding example of the deadening effect on trade of the lack of stable, readily convertible currencies that would enable country A to sell its goods to country B and use the proceeds of such sales to buy and import goods either from country B or another European country.

Under present conditions a country in the position of France, whose gold and dollar reserves have been shrinking at an alarming rate, cannot afford to step up buying of goods from her neighbor Belgium unless supplied with fresh credits or additional dollars. Consequently, as a first step toward revival of European trade the ECA authorities are prepared to allot a certain amount of dollars to be used to pay for purchases by one European country from another. They are also willing to allow European countries to make grants in their own currencies from the special currency funds set up under ECA pacts. By such means it is believed that a comparatively small dollar outlay will provide the financial assistance needed to make possible a shift from restricted bilateral trading to an expanded multilateral system of trade among the countries of Europe.

Bernadotte's Plea

When Count Bernadotte says that "prompt and effective intervention by the Security Council now could well be the decisive factor in the solution of the problem," he is saying the obvious. Time and again it has been said since the November 29 resolution on Palestine by the U. N. General Assembly. With point and clarity it was made back in February by the U. N.'s Palestine Commission. But the Security Council ducked intervention. And not having been given the armed assistance with which to carry out the task assigned to it, the Palestine Commission adjourned sine die on April 10, though not without reporting that the dominant fact "that in the absence of forces adequate to restore and maintain law and order in Palestine following the termination of the mandate, there will be administrative chaos, starvation, widespread strife, violence and bloodshed in Palestine." This came to pass. And now, after a six-week cease-fire, the same situation is being repeated, with the mediator making more or less the same forecast of the consequences of action and nonaction. The difference is that this time the Security Council is on specific record in favor of the imposition of restraint against the truce-breaker.

The Palestine Commission was never dissolved, so that the Security Council has merely to direct the group to proceed to Palestine, with the force necessary to restore peace that it asked for before the termination of the mandate. In this respect, some progress has been made. A world force under United Nations auspices is at present merely a corporal's guard, nevertheless the creation of it is a first step in backing U. N. authority. The nucleus of what has been called "Lie's Legion" needs to be broadened for the present purpose. As to this, further procrastination will mean a repetition of the farce over Ethiopia which filled the halls of Geneva with hypocrisy and sounded the death knell of the League of Nations. That simply cannot happen again.

The mere taking of the step urged by Count Bernadotte may be sufficient to break the deadlock in Palestine. In spite of the renewal of the fighting, neither the Jews nor the Arabs seem anxious to engage in full-scale hostilities. Israel knows that success of the new state is bound up with the development of good relations with the Arabs. The Arabs on their part have had a demonstration that people who are fighting for their homeland are far from pushovers. They must fear change in the balance of power among themselves and the disturbances that might be caused in their countries as a result of a long and wasting war. They should be made to feel what it would also mean to be officially castigated as aggressors.

The trouble is that no leadership is available to turn the Arab mind to a constructive solution. The leadership must therefore come from the outside. As Mr. Churchill said in 1937, when the last partition proposal was made, no solution is possible in Palestine unless it is imposed. After 10 weary years the observation has remained the only true comment on the world's most complicated dispute. The negative front of the Arab League can be broken, in our opinion, if the United Nations takes over the responsibility of halting war and seeks actively to promote King Abdullah's interest in a division of Palestine preparatory to an arrangement for economic union.

"Very Inefficient"

'Ike's' Shadow On Candidates

By Malvina Lindsay

Campaign Portents

THE BIG moment that never quite came off at the Republican National Convention was supposed for a time to be waiting in the wings at the Democratic conclave. But now that the Eisenhower demonstration is off, the party convention season of 1948 will lack any big, single, spontaneous combustion for a presidential candidate.

Nominations today at the Democratic gathering will draw tame enthusiasm—and that is not entirely because of the split in the party. Even the Republicans with their many candidates and their aura of victory were unable to stage a spectacle that produced an historic, political thrill. Harold Stassen's came the nearest, but didn't quite make the grade.

Many Democratic convention-goers, listeners and watchers were looking forward to a demonstration for General "Ike" that would give them a good show, even work them up personally in the manner of a revival meeting. Now they bring a sense of letdown to the expected demonstrations for President Truman and his opposing candidates—if any.

THIS foreshadows an unexciting campaign. Governor Dewey arouses enthusiasm of the mind rather than of the heart. President Truman has personal warmth, but has only lukewarm devotion within the party. The New Party convention may be counted on to produce genuine personal enthusiasm for Henry Wallace, but this will be among a relatively small group.

This situation in the two big parties has one advantage—it may focus interest more on issues. Yet the man elected to the Presidency in November will need to bring to his grueling task the intense and sustained devotion of his followers.

The people's crush on General Eisenhower—as distinct from that of the politicians—also holds portents for the coming campaign. For polls taken after the Republican convention continue to show that the general could be President if he were a nominee.

This strong feeling of the public for one man reflects, among other things, a widespread reaching out for a strong and warm-hearted protector. As a recent Gallup poll revealed, Americans want their President to be above all else a humanitarian, one who cares about the "little fellow." And into the conversation of the day, the word "humanitarian" creeps increasingly as people seek to describe those whom they admire.

Much of General Eisenhower's popularity rests on his ability to make people feel he responds to them personally. He has been able, more than most men in the high brass, to impart a sense of his democracy of spirit.

NATURALLY today's presidential candidates could not and would not make themselves over in the image of "Ike." But can they prove themselves to be humanitarians?

Take Governor Dewey. What is back of the "don't like Dewey" sentiment voiced even by some of his professed admirers? There are two schools of thought on this. One says the Governor is an introvert who simply doesn't get across to the mob, though his intimates give him tremendous devotion. The other school says there is nothing personal in this feeling, that it is an instinctive reaction to the efficiency expert atmosphere that has developed around the Governor's administrative set-up.

A strong effort will be made in the campaign to let the people see a warmer and more human Dewey. By November he may become to them much more than the "good administrator" candidate. President Truman, despite his many handicaps, is in a position to present himself as a friend of the little fellow. His best hope lies in making contacts with the people in ways that will show his friendly, personal concern in their daily problems.

For many a voter is looking for a friend, and even more for a Daddy. Though this is a time of high employment, and on the surface totally unlike those panicky days when voters rushed to the outstretched arms of Roosevelt, people have their fears and their troubles. Their feeling for General "Ike," the strong man who could fight the Nazis successfully and come home smiling, a man of achievement yet aloof from the viles of partisan politics, a general with five stars who could still give the impression of a being a sympathetic neighbor at the country store, is something for presidential candidates to think about even though the general remains safely cloistered from the fray.

Letters To The Editor

*Communications must be addressed to the editor and must carry the complete name and street address of the writer, though pen names will be permitted at the editor's discretion. ### Merchant Veterans

Under the former draft law merchant seamen who received a certificate of substantially continuous service were officially regarded as having served their country in a way equal to that of the armed services. There is no reason why such an exemption should not be granted under the present draft.

Unfortunately the new draft act does not contain any similar provision. After having served for two years or more in the merchant marine, the merchant marine veterans who did not receive any of the GI Bill of Rights benefits now are liable to be drafted and to interrupt their work or study for two more years. That puts them at a very serious disadvantage.

It would be reasonable and fair to exempt those merchant seamen who served in the last war and were granted a certificate of continuous service from the new draft. Such a measure would also help to increase the status of the merchant marine which during the war rendered significant service and may be called upon to do it again. It will then be badly in need of additional trained men.

"Superseniority"

The "superseniority" of veterans in Government positions, as deprecated in your June 30 editorial, is more apparent than real. Most Federal positions with any degree of responsibility are filled from unassembled Civil Service examinations. In these examinations the number of years experience count most heavily. Thus a man who for two to four years left his vocation for military service lost many more examination points than he could hope to recoup by the meager 5 points allowed (if uninjured) for his military service.

Your belief that this quasi-compensatory procedure impairs efficiency is questionable. To support it one should demonstrate that the margin of error in examination marks as a measure of the applicant's suitability is less than 5 per cent, which is extremely doubtful. Actually the spotted 5 points simply resolve ties in favor of the veteran. Surely this is trifling coin in which to pay our gratitude to those whose bodies stood between our homes and the barbarians.

ALLAN F. MATTHEWS.
Arlington.

Up-To-Date Schools

The articles criticizing the Montgomery County schools have been most interesting to me.

When a school system decides to revolutionize its schools in accordance with the needs of the twentieth century, much ground work in regard to parent education must first be accomplished. Even if parents have gone through college, they are not specialists in curriculum and school administration. Their viewpoint is colored by the type of college from which they graduated—conservative or liberal, progressive or nonprogressive.

The hardest thing in the world to effect is change. Why gear our school system to the needs of the horse and buggy age rather than to the changing needs of the twentieth century? It is true that the thee R's need to be taught and taught well, but if that is all that we are going to give our children, they will be totally unprepared for living in the twentieth century.

I, a former school teacher, would not step into a school room without first taking a "refresher course" at my alma mater.

GRACE ROSE.
Riverdale, Md.

Crime Stories

How sad you must feel that so much time and energy should be devoted and so much space in your paper used for so sordid a subject as crime.

I realize that murder, burglary, suicide, all crimes in fact, must be reported, not concealed. But such reports should inspire poignant regret and disgust and not be presented as exciting news. It is deplorable that such a lack of consideration for the rights of one's fellow man should be rife in the world. There should be pity for the wrongdoer.

Can we do better than abolish capital punishment and the pardoning power, make our prisons real reformatories, where each inmate is taught to work, preferably at some congenial employment, the proceeds of his labor, as restitution for his crime, to be given to his victim wherever possible, otherwise to the family of his victim?

EVA SMITH SNYDER.
Washington.

"Who Wrote What?"

In your very interesting editorial of July 10, "Who Wrote What?" discussing the authorship of the plays and poems known as those of Shakespeare, you comment that the argument that the plays "are just too damn good to have been written by anybody below the rank of a baronet" does not "go down very well in a democratic country like ours."

Are you quite sure?

A great deal has been published in recent years which derives its sole popular appeal from the exalted "rank" of the author in whose name the matter is presented.

Whether Edward de Vere, the Seventeenth Earl of Oxford, Lord Great Chamberlain of England, and a patron of actors, wrote the poems, and the plays, and for reasons, which at the time were weighty, concealed his authorship, or whether they were written by an actor who played in them, is a question which may long remain finally unanswered. The question in Barrell vs. Dawson appears to be quite a different one.

Your reference to the "rank of baronet" leads me to say that the baronetage was established by King James I in 1611, and that the plays were written in the time of his predecessor, Queen Elizabeth.

Anachronisms should not however disturb us. I have no doubt that it will ultimately be found that the plays and poems originated at Hyde Park.

HARRISON TILGHMAN.
Easton, Md.

Central Valley Reclamation

Your June 16 editorial, "Congressional Club," has fallen into my hands and, as an engineer of more than 40 years experience in the Central Valley, I desire to comment upon it.

You say Senator Downey "has succeeded in punishing two Government officials, Michael Straus, reclamation commissioner, and Richard Boke, regional director of the Reclamation Bureau, because they dared, in opposition to his wishes, to insist upon application of acreage limitation provisions of the reclamation law to the Central Valley of California."

You go on to say, "Mr. Straus and Mr. Boke, although they have admirable records of service in the bureau, do not possess this particular—and wholly irrelevant—qualification" (that of being engineers).

You further state: "It will probably entail a huge handout to a few of Senator Downey's large landowning constituents and a total denial of the Central Valley project's benefits to veterans and others who would like to be small landowners."

The Reclamation Bureau's activities in California for the past 10 years have been devoted more to propaganda than to construction of the project. Tremendous sums of money have been expended by the bureau in an attempt to establish an "authority" without the consent of Congress or the people and to drive the Army engineers out of projects which have been authorized to them.

As to the enforcement of the land limitation in this valley: To do so would force the small landowner to carry the entire cost of the project, while the large landowner got substantial benefits by accretions to underground water which he can pump without contributing one cent. The Central Valley is an area in which, for a substantial part of every season, practically all farmers must pump because river supplies fail in the late summer.

The project will undoubtedly furnish substantial accretions to the underground water, which in many places is failing. There is no way to prevent its spread beneath the lands of large (or small) landowners who are not within districts purchasing project water. If these large landowners are denied project water by reason of the land limitation feature of the law, they will simply get a "free ride" without paying for it.

Considering the second quotation above, dealing with the "admirable records" of Messrs. Straus and Boke—before making such a statement you should read the sworn testimony before congressional committees, much of it by these gentlemen. No such record of mismanagement, deceit, deliberate misstatements to Congress and falsification of records has ever been brought before the public as has been disclosed by the testimony against these men. As you say, neither of them is an engineer or a trained administrator, but I challenge your statement that this qualification is irrelevant. In the 46-year history of the bureau every commissioner but one and, I believe, every regional director, has been an engineer.

What do you think of a commissioner who will put a man in charge of one of the most complicated engineering projects in the United States, costing more than 400 million dollars, who is not an engineer and who has never had business or administrative experience? But Mr. Straus characterized him "as one of the new school of thought which we are injecting into the bureau."

The Kern County Land Co. is the most advertised large land owner. It already owns enough water to irrigate all its good land and has repeatedly stated that it is not in the market for project water.

There are other large holdings in the Tulare Lake district but these lands are subject to periodic flooding and no small landowner could survive under such conditions. Moreover, most of this land has no gravity supply but depends upon pumping.

Wells and pumping plants in this area cost from $20,000 to $30,000. Could any small landowner make such an investment? Many large holdings have been and are being cut up but few of the large owners want project water. There are plenty of small farms for sale in settled communities which the veteran can buy.

The administration of Messrs. Straus and Boke has added millions of dollars to the cost of the project through delays, shutdowns, waste and propaganda and it is high time to place it in the hands of capable engineers.

Matter of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

The Democratic Bankruptcy

Philadelphia, July 13.—President Truman is coming to Philadelphia to accept the nomination of a party which is bankrupt, not only politically, but also in the simple financial sense of the word. The best test of the dreadful state of the Democratic Party is the dreadful state of its treasury. This is a perhaps squalid practical fact, which will nevertheless intimately affect the course of the coming campaign.

Officials of the Democratic National Committee talk airily about "several hundred thousand dollars" being in the till. But if this money is there at all, most of it is obligated. Insiders who know their business say that the National Committee actually has about $80,000 on hand, which is peanuts measured against the huge bills of the future.

Partly this is the result of sheer folly. Over $20,000 was wasted, for example, on the silly little "Truman victory kits" containing thimbles, whistles and the like, which were distributed with the apparent intention of mollifying peevish female delegates. Mainly, however, the trouble is that the fat cats have either been alienated or have ceased to regard the Democratic Party as a good speculative investment. The contrast with the past is sad indeed.

In 1944, the big money was raised at a sort of marathon cocktail party in the New York hotel suite of Chairman of the National Committee Robert E. Hannegan. Every afternoon for 60 days, suitable prospects were entertained, and at the psychological moment retired with Chairman Hannegan to the rare privacy of the bathroom. There, among the plumbing fixtures, the checks were signed, for $1000, $2000 or $5000, as the case might be. Among the contributors of those days, one very large group has become unapproachable now because of the Zionist issue, and other groups have been lost to the cause in other ways.

Worse still, the professional touch of Chairman Hannegan, who is an extremely able practical politician, is now unhappily lacking. He and his cohorts kept the very fatest of the fat cats in reserve until the difficult days at the close of the campaign, when they were individually touched for really big contributions. The present National Committee, in an evident moment of despair, has already done the opposite. Registered letters were recently sent by the current national chairman, Senator J. Howard McGrath, to all the largest contributors of record, asking them to mail their checks at once.

The result has been that men who used to give $1000 have hastily forwarded $500, while former contributors of $5000 have sent checks for $1000. The rather peremptory device of registered letters caused some resentment. But on the balance, the large contributors were delighted to be given this chance of getting off cheaply. When they are solicited later, they can say they have already laid their contributions on the line, and send the solicitor away with a flea in his ear.

Nor is this matter of campaign finances likely to remain a mere headache for Whitney. President Truman and his entourage plan an extremely expensive campaign. A single one of the long barn-storming tours now projected is estimated by experts to cost over one million dollars. There will also be all the infinite varieties of other bills, for everything from radio time to paying off phony leaders of phony groups of Albanians-for Truman, Buryats-for-Truman, Afghans-for-Truman and the like. Even if Whitney is more than generous, there will always be desperate money pressure.

Getting up cash in politics is never difficult if you are willing to make the right concessions. For instance, The Atlanta Constitution has reported, without contradiction, that the big sum needed to finance the forthcoming rump convention of Southern rebels at Birmingham has been supplied by the oil companies. The sordid connection between this fact and the Southern delegations' feverish support of a platform plank indorsing the tidelands oil grab is to obvious to need further discussion.

There are all kinds of groups, besides the tideland oil grabbers, to which the stupider Democrats may be tempted to promise concession if they will only get up a little folding money. It can naturally be assumed without question that neither Whitney nor, of course, President Truman will become involved in anything of this sort. Yet it is also true that both as a result of this money problem and in other ways, one of the really grave dangers of the next four months is that the Democrats may be driven by despair to do idiotic or dangerous or downrgiht improper things.

Democrats In The Senate

PHILADELPHIA.—What is happening here is so completely out of focus that, judged by ordinary political standards, it makes no sense at all. Like mirror-writing, it needs to be seen in a glass that will correct the distortions.

Childs

The reason is obvious enough. No one, but no one at all, believes in the future of the party or the candidates to be chosen by the party. That is true particularly since so many eager beavers have worked to destroy the slim chance that may once have existed.

Take the Barkley boom for Vice President as an example of the upside-down quality of the goings-on here. (You are hardly entitled to use that overworked word, boom, at this convention.)

Those behind the Barkley move have no illusions that the Senator from Kentucky would add much strength to the ticket nationally. His Senate colleagues want him to have the honor as a kind of capstone to his long and faithful service in the Senate.

But he will be 71 years old in November. That doesn't matter, his friends say, since in any event the ticket will not be elected. He will make a respectable campaign, so the argument goes. All this sounds a little as though he were being selected as chief pallbearer.

THERE IS, however, a practical political reason advanced. Barkley would help the ticket in his native Kentucky, a border State that went Republican two years ago. This is not so much, you are soon made to understand, in order to deliver Kentucky's electorial vote to a Truman-Barkley combination as it is to knock out a Republican Senator up for reelection.

In other words, you would be nominating a vice presidential candidate in the wistful hope of strengthening the Democratic opposition in Congress. Strange as this may seem, it makes more sense than a great deal of the double talk that has been heard in the 10 days leading up to this meeting.

A few elemental political facts should have been plain long ago. Since President Truman could not be sidetracked as a candidate in the face of his determination to see it through, the only possible place where liberal-labor elements in the party might make their influence felt was in congressional contests in behalf of candidates considered progressive.

In spite of the fiasco here, that opportunity still may be open. Some Democrats, who all along have tried to keep alive a sense of continuity and the importance of coming back to fight another day, are pointing to a chance to capture control of the Senate from the Republicans even though this is a Republican presidential year.

They may not be so far wrong. A shift of four seats from the Republican to the Democratic side would do it.

IT COULD happen. In Oklahoma, former Gov. Robert Kerr, who seems certain to be the Democratic candidate for the Senate, is said to have a good chance against Representative Ross Rizley. Rizley, who tried to put over the Federal Power Commission deal that would cost users of natural gas many millions in increased rates, is running instead of Senator Ed Moore, who is retiring.

In Wyoming, Gov. Lester C. Hunt, the Democratic candidate for the Senate, has repeatedly demonstrated his vote-getting ability even in Republican years. He is given the edge over Senator Edward V. Robertson, Republican, a wealthy rancher who has worked chiefly to break grazing restrictions.

The Senate race in Minnesota is hot. There the Democrats have a dynamic vote getter in Mayor Hubert H. Humphrey of Minneapolis. The latest Statewide poll taken by the Minneapolis Star-Journal showed Humphrey with 46 per cent and the incumbent, Senator Joseph H. Ball, with 38. This was a distinct gain for Humphrey.

In some States, Democratic Senators are threatened. In Montana, Senator James E. Murray is in a tight race. In Colorado, Senator Edwin C. Johnson is fortunate in that thus far no formidable Republican opponent has entered the field.

Even with Barkley on the national ticket, the Democrats cannot be too hopeful over Kentucky. Senator John Sherman Cooper, who came in on the Republican sweep of two years ago for a short term, has a good record on both the domestic and the foreign side. But Barkley would add strength in his own State where his old-fashioned oratory and his long and distinguished career are greatly admired.

Should the Democrats capture the Senate despite a Republican victory for the national ticket, the new President in the White House would quickly know some of the pangs of frustration that Mr. Truman has suffered in the past two years. That is the great game of American politics under our system of divided powers.

Anti-Soviet Bloc Will Seek Military Aid From America

London, July 13 (U.P.).—Foreign Ministers of five western European countries will meet at The Hague Monday to discuss plans for getting American military aid in support of their "Stop Communism" campaign.

A second meeting, in which the United States will join, probably will be held in Paris late this month on plans to fit the German Ruhr into the Marshall Recovery Plan.

Both these meetings are implicit notice to Russia that despite all her opposition, including the blockade of Berlin, the western allies intend to proceed with all their political plans for Europe.

British Envoy Reports

Sir Maurice Drummond Peterson, British Ambassador to Russia, arrived in London today on leave and reported at once to Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

Exactly one week after the powerful protest to Russia by the United States, Britain and France against the Berlin blockade, there was still no sign of a reply from Moscow.

It is indicated here that the three allies may wait at least another week before taking further action in the Berlin situation.

They probably have reached at least a preliminary agreement, however, on what this action will be if Russia either ignores their protest or rejects it.

CIC Returns to Berlin

Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British commander in chief in Germany, flew back to Berlin today after a series of conferences here and Bevin reported to the cabinet at its meeting this morning.

The western powers told Moscow in their protests against the Berlin blockade that they would not be bluffed by Soviet "threats, pressures or other actions."

ECA Nations Take Over Task Of Dividing Aid Among Selves

London, July 13 (U.P.).—The 16 Marshall Plan countries have reluctantly agreed to take the responsibility for making their own division of the "kitty" authorized by the United States Congress, it was learned today.

They had tried to make the United States, the donor of the funds, assume the difficult task of deciding how much each participant would receive. The decision to do the job themselves was taken by members of the Council of Organization for European Economic Cooperation in Paris, but only after considerable pressure by the United States.

W. Averell Harriman, roving Ambassador for the Marshall Plan, finally had to tell the 16 countries bluntly that in no circumstances would the United States consider cutting up the Marshall Plan pie itself.

This is only one of the major difficulties the Marshall Plan is running into in its early stages. Others include:

1. Reluctance of the European countries to come forth with any projects qualifying them for loans. Under the Marshall Plan Act 20 per cent of the total funds must be lent rather than given away.

2. Failure to date of the Marshall Plan countries to build up an adequate secretariat, with competent personnel to handle the great mass of details and make decisions required for the operation of the plan.

Trieste Elected For Aid Benefits

Paris, July 13 (NYHT).—The Association of Sixteen Marshall Plan States known formally as the Organization for European Economic Cooperation unanimously elected today the Free Territory of Trieste to membership and benefits under the European Recovery program.

Only the Anglo-American sectors of the territory were included in the action taken by the OEEC Council. The sector administered by Yugoslavia was excluded. Yugoslavia refused to join the recovery propect along with the other "iron curtain countries."

Stormy Weather Delays Jet Flights

Goose Bay, Labrador, July 13 (U.P.).—Stormy weather over the North Atlantic tonight delayed the pioneering transocean flights of a squadron of 14 United States jet fighter planes en route to Germany and of six British planes en route to Canada and the United States.

The six British Vampire jets were grounded in Iceland by bad flying weather and were not expected to take off until tomorrow.

The American P-80s and accompanying transports and bombers were expected to remain here to rendezvous with the British squadron. The British flight will be the first East-West crossing by jet aircraft and the American, the first Atlantic hop in the opposite direction.

Two of the 16 P-80s that started the flight from Selfridge Field, Mich., were left behind in Bangor for mechanical repairs.

200 Battle Flames In Isle Royale Woods

Houghton, Mich., July 13 (AP).—Two hundred fire fighters tonight were slowly halting spread of flames which in four days have eaten through 1100 acres of timber on Isle Royale, a National Park, in Lake Superior.

U. S. Part Service officials here said if today's favorable fire fighting conditions continued 24 to 36 hours the fire would be brought under control.

The Gallup Poll

Voters See Little to Choose Between 2 Parties' Abilities

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 13.—American voters today place almost equal confidence in the ability of the two major parties to solve the Nation's most important problems. This is in contrast to the attitude of voters prior to the 1944 election when a substantial majority had greater faith in the Democratic Party to handle both domestic and foreign affairs.

When representative voters throughout the Nation were asked by the Institute to name the country's most serious problem they named foreign policy first followed by the high cost of living, strikes and labor problems, and housing.

The same voters were then asked which party they felt could best handle that particular problem. Eliminating all votes except those which named one of the two major parties, the voting goes this way:

|---|---|
| Republican Party | 48 |

Elections are usually decided on the basis of two considerations; first, voter appraisal of the merits of the candidate; and, second, voters' convictions on which party can do the best job handling major problems of the day.

On the last point, it is enlightening to compare today's figures with results of a survey prior to the 1944 presidential election and a similar poll for the 1946 congressional election.

When the identical question was put to the people in 1944, those voters naming either the Democratic Party or the Republican Party voted this way:

|---|---|
| Republican Party | 45 |

The same question was repeated just before the off-year elections in 1946. By that time voter sentiment had changed as shown in the following table:

1946

|---|---|
| Republican Party | 60 |

In the 1946 election the Republicans captured control of both the Senate and the House.

The fact that there is today very little difference in the confidence that voters place in the two parties provides further evidence that the election this year will likely hinge to a great degree on how voters appraise the candidates themselves.

Strategists of the major parties casting about for ammunition will want to know which party the voters feel can do a better job handling each of the two major problems of the day.

Voters give the nod to the Democrats when it comes to keeping reins on the high cost of living, but believe the Republicans can do a better job handling our relations with foreign countries. This is shown in the following table:

FOREIGN POLICY

|---|---|
| Republican Party | 52 |

HIGH COST OF LIVING

|---|---|
| Republican Party | 45 |

To test sentiment on what constitutes America's major problem today voters were asked:

What do you think is the most important problem facing this country today?

The answers:

|---|---|
| Foreign policy | 44% |
| High cost of living | 23 |
| Domestic policies; presidential election; education, racial problems | 9 |
| Strikes, labor problems | 5 |
| Housing | 4 |
| Communism at home and abroad | 4 |
| Preparedness, Army and Navy | 3 |
| Miscellaneous | 5 |
| Don't know | 4 |
| | 101%* |

 Totals to more than 100 per cent because some respondents gave more than one answer.

Alert Sergeant Aids in Rescue of Fishermen Adrift

Mitchel Field, N. Y., uly 13 (U.P.).—An alert Air Force sergeant, using equipment inoperative for over a year, Monday guided the Coast Guard to the rescue of 14 persons aboard a fishing boat which was drifting to sea 50 miles east of New York.

T/Sergt. Frederick W. Singer was on duty at the Air Force airways and air communications transmitter at Bellmore, Long Island, when the Coast Guard asked if he could trace a distress signal.

Remembering a high frequency direction finder which had been on a stand-by basis for over a year, Sergeant Singer jumped into his car and sped to nearby Wantagh. There he tuned up the old direction finder and picked up the boat's feeble signals.

The Coast Guard sent a rescue craft.

Police Sure Baltimore Janitor Killed Carol Bardwell Here

and no additional development to date has in any way changed the statement released by Major Barrett and Capt. Mark Raspberry (head of the Park Police) to the press last Friday on the Carol Bardwell murder case."

In that statement, local authorities said James had admitted "in detail" the sex slaying of the Bardwell girl in Rock Creek Park. The statement said that in his confession the Baltimore janitor had related certain details known only to Washington police.

Truscott was seconded by Capt. Robert V. Murray, assistant chief of detectives, who said witnesses, some of them high Baltimore police officials, were present during the entire time James was being questioned by Washington detectives.

"Let the grand jury decide," said Murray, "but I'm positive he's the man."

One Baltimore police official who was present while James was being questioned by Washington detectives told a reporter of The Washington Post that the janitor picked up a pencil and drew an accurate diagram of the area in which the Bardwell girl was slain.

Fay Also Convinced

United States Attorney George Morris Fay has also been convinced that the confession is valid, it would seem, for he announced yesterday that evidence in the Bardwell murder case will be presented to the grand jury as soon as possible.

Fay's announcement followed a two-hour meeting with one of his assistants, Charles B. Murray, and Capt. Robert V. Murray, assistant chief of detectives.

Fay was asked by one reporter if he was convinced James was the killer of the Bardwell girl.

The United States Attorney replied he couldn't answer that question but told reporters that inasmuch as he had decided to present the case to the grand jury they could draw their own conclusions.

At yesterday's arraignment, James, who has a previous record as a sex criminal, learned that he will go on trial August 3 for the murder of Marsha Brill.

The slightly built janitor, released from prison only last December after serving about seven and a half years of a sentence for knife attacks on women, hung his head and said nothing during the brief arraignment formalities.

Murphy, the defense attorney, asked for three weeks to prepare his defense. State's Attorney J. Bernard Wells said the State would like to proceed as soon as possible and was ready to present evidence.

Defense Request Granted

"The request for three weeks seems entirely reasonable," said Judge John T. Tucker as he set the trial date. He indicated it could be postponed if difficulties arose.

The defense counsel also requested that James be tried by three judges instead of a jury.

Chronologically, the history of the Carol Bardwell and Marsha Brill murders is this:

On Sunday, June 27, Carol Bardwell, who had left home on her bicycle, was found slashed to death in underbush in Rock Creek Park, near 17th st. and Colorado ave. nw.

On Tuesday, July 6, the Brill girl, also out on her bicycle, was stabbed to death in a wooded, remote section of Baltimore. Two other children told police they had witnessed the murder and said a Negro had jumped from the woods and stabbed Marsha.

Within four hours, James was in police custody and within 48 hours Baltimore police announced he had confessed and had been charged with the murder.

Washington detectives rushed to Baltimore and took over questioning of James. They said he admitted killing Carol Bardwell after four hours of interrogation.

Local police admitted there were some gaps in the story told by James but said this was to be expected in a sex crime. They said also these points could probably be explained if James is brought here from Baltimore to reenact the crime.

One point still to be explained is that of rape. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said laboratory tests proved conclusively the girl was raped. However, in the confession obtained by police said he experienced his "sexual James denied raping the child and gratification" by the act of killing and the sight of blood.

Chinese Navy Battles Reds Near Hong Kong

Hongkong, July 13 (AP).—The New Life Evening Post, Chinese newspaper, reported today that Chinese naval units joined Chinese defense forces in a four-hour battle yesterday with an estimated 300 alleged Chinese Communists at Mirs Bay, 11 miles north of Hongkong.

The paper said the Communist attackers had inflicted only minor casualties on the government garrison and were forced to flee after heavy naval gunfire.

Tito-Moscow Cells Break in Trieste

Trieste, July 13 (U.P.).—The pro-Tito and pro-Cominform factions within the Trieste Communist Party Central Committee broke openly today, each expelling "rebel elements" and accusing the other of "treason."

Seventeen pro-Tito Communists met last night at Capo d'Istria, capital of Yugoslavian-occupied Trieste, and purged Vittorio Vidale and Ferninando Zidar on charges of treason.

Vidale, Moscow-trained, once was expelled from the United States. He took refugee in Mexico, where he was active in the Communist Party before coming to Trieste.

In the Anglo-American zone of Trieste free territory the pro-Cominform Communists appeared to have gained control.

Chinese Communists Denounce Tito Stand

From the New York Times

Nanking, July 13.—The Chinese Communist Party, the second largest in the world, has lined up squarely behind the Soviet Union in supporting the attack of the Communist Information Bureau on Marshal Tito and other Yugoslav Communist leaders on charges of ideological derelictions.

In a Chinese language broadcast heard here, the Red radio reported that Mao Tze-tung's Central Executive Committee had adopted a resolution denouncing Marshal Tito for allegedly straying from the Marxist-Leninist path, taking an "anti-Soviet stand" and displaying a "continuously hostile attitude toward international communism."

Despite the basic ideological ties between Moscow and the Chinese Communists the resolution aroused especially keen interest here because Mao Tze-tung has, in a number of respects, been espousing exactly the sort of policy for which Marshal Tito was excoriated by the Cominform.

The Chinese Reds have emphasized the revolutionary role of the peasants over the proletariat and have advocated a program that includes small individual peasant proprietorships, broad economic cooperation with the middle class groups and an interim capitalist period prior to the establishment of socialism.

One on the Aisle—

Guild Considers A Baltimore Bus

By Richard L. Coe

MAIL CALL: The following letter from the Theater Guild to its 12,000-odd Washington subscribers is now being toted by those hard-working men in gray:

"Dear Subscriber: As you have no doubt read in the press, the National Theater will be devoted to the presentation of motion pictures during the coming season. The position of the National Theater is stated in the letter attached hereto, which we have received from the management and in no way involved the American Theater Society and the Theater Guild, Inc.

"Meanwhile, no other suitable home has been found for the legitimate theater in Washington, D. C. However, the Theater Guild-American Theater Society subscription season in Washington will be held in abeyance for the present and all seat locations recorded for future reference.

"It has been suggested by some of our Washington members that they would like to subscribe for our Baltimore season. If enough Washington subscribers would like to see the plays in Baltimore, we will endeavor to arrange a special train or bus service to accommodate our members. If you are interested, will you please sign the enclosed postcard.

"We are sincerely grateful for the interest and support you have given our subscription series in the past, which, we trust, will continue through the years."

THE "ATTACHED LETTER" referred to was written to the Guild April 26 by Marcus Heiman for the National Theater. Here it is:

"We have been advised that unless the National Theater changes its racial policy by August 1, 1948, that the theater will be boycotted by several groups in the theater.

"The policy will not be changed and the theater stands steadfast to the position they have previously stated.

"The theater will continue its picture policy until the group realize their methods are unfair and impractical and the entire matter should have been approached from the over-all racial situation in the District of Columbia and any changes in the District should come by orderly and lawful means."

IN ST. LOUIS, Irvin Dagen, of University City, writes the Post-Dispatch:

"Washington is losing its legitimate theater. St. Louis might lose its theater and it behooves us to do something about it before it is too late.

"It would seem that there are enough public places right here in St. Louis which have no policy of racial discrimination and which have continued to function without any difficulty and which prove that this is possible. Either the management of the American Theater (the St. Louis legit house) here will change its policy or we stand the chance of losing stage performances."

FROM CHICAGO comes a note from one-time critic Harry W. Malm about our theater situation:

"It reminds me of the old Wabash R. R. in my home village. No one could agree as to what taxes the railroad should pay for running the spur line into the town. Well, the road finally tired of it all and one day pulled out, track, stock and barrel. Now no one rides and the town has no taxes.

"Here in Chicago the Guild has the problem in seating, but the end results are satisfactory, not perhaps all they should be, but at least a modus operandi."

FROM BRADDOCK HEIGHTS, near Frederick, comes an invitation to visit the mountain top theater which has had its Equity summer company for nine years (wartime excepted) . . . This week's bill, opening Wednesday and continuing through Saturday night, is "The Man Who Came to Dinner," with "Dream Girl" set for the following week . . . The company is under the direction of James Decker, its founder, and promises "thoroughly professional performances on the mountain top these hot nights." . . . We've always wanted to get out to Braddock Heights, but the Carless Coes must, alas, Mr. Decker, put off your kind invitation for a spell, at least.

FROM CHARLOTTESVILLE comes word of tonight's opening of the University of Virginia Summer Session of Theater Arts . . . Saroyan's "My Heart's in the Highlands" is the opening play under the direction of none other than Ezra Stone, who 'pears to be growing up . . . Stone's services were arranged through ANTA, one more piece of the growing list of liaison work at which the American National Theater and Academy has become so skilled.

POSTMARKED WASHINGTON comes this brief message from Joyce David:

"After reading your criticism of and seeing 'Dream Girl,' may I suggest that you take a nice long vacation? You must be sorely in need of one."

Emergencies Sap Budgeted Tax Surplus

Arlington County tax collections for 1947 probably will be about $300,000 more than that year's budget, but county officials aren't too happy about it.

A great deal of the $300,000 surplus already has been spent on emergency projects not included in the 1947 budget, and, in anticipation of a surplus, county officials put an extra $150,000 in the 1948 budget.

Arlington County Treasurer John Locke Green, who predicted the $300,000 surplus, said tax collections for 1947 will, by next June, exceed 98 per cent of the total levy.

Thus far, $3,115,546.31 in real estate taxes, of a levy of $3,234,739.24, has been paid. Of the remainder, $10,711.94 represents relieved taxes and $108,480.99 is collectible.

Personal property taxes paid so far are $450,461.46, of a total of $543,467.60. Of this total, $5,931.08 is relieved.

Green said he expected full collection on all real estate taxes assessed. At least half of the personel property taxes outstanding will be paid during the remainder of the fiscal year, he said. Such taxes that are unpaid will be owed by persons who have moved from the county.

Southeast Group Backs Fare Hike

The Southeast Businessmen's Association Monday voted in favor of a "fair and reasonable increase" of Capital Transit Company's streetcar and bus fares.

Members are "not necessarily in favor of the increased rates proposed by Capital Transit," a spokesman said. "The increase should be determined by the Public Utilities Commission."

The company's financial problems were outlined by E. H. Giddings, special assistant to Capital Transit's president, at a meeting of 23 association members at the Donohoe Real Estate Co.,

German Field Marshal Von Brauchitsch Freed

Diss, England, July 13 (AP).—Field Marshall Walter von Brauchitsch, former commander-in-chief of the German army, was discharged tonight as a war prisoner. He boarded a train to begin a trip back to his fatherland.

Left behind with a few German attendants were Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt, who engineered the Batle of the Bulge, and Field Marshal Erich von Mannstein. Both are too ill to travel now.

ABA Disputes 'Record High' Credit Claim

By S. Oliver Goodman

Consumers are still buying on a cash basis to a larger extent than in prewar years and the American Bankers Association has figures to prove it.

Although current figures on consumer credit show the all-time high of close to 14 billion dollars, the ABA statement declares this "is far below the prewar peak in terms of national income and in terms of number of borrowers."

Moreover the volume of instalment sales credit for the purchase of durable goods such as autos, refrigerators, radios, etc., outstanding is actually 600 million dollars below the prewar peak of 1941, the ABA states.

In addition, it points out, whereas between 18 million and 20 million American families were users of consumer credit in 1941, only nine million families are now users of it.

The ABA makes a distinction between consumer credit and instalment credit. "It should be remembered," the ABA said, "that more than half of the consumer credit outstanding, now close to 14 billion dollars, consists of non-instalment items such as store charge accounts, service accounts like end-of-the-month bills for utility services and many other items paid on a monthly basis."

WHO'S WHO TODAY: John W. Waddill has been appointed senior traffic representative in Washington for Trans World Airline following a two-year assignment for TWA in India. He is a native of Washington . . . Milton C. Cross has been elected executive vice president of Harriman Ripley & Co., Inc., and Harry W. Beebe has been named senior vice president in charge of public relations . . . ABC Publication, Inc., which will publish and distribute a Sunday pictorial section for newspapers in 20 Latin-American countries, has announced appointment of Herbert C. Henderson as director of advertising. Robert R. Nathan, economic adviser; Frank Kizis (former secretary of Herbert Hoover), executive secretary.

STUMPED: The local office of the U. S. Employment Service recently received a call for a "mattress walker." It frankly admitted it was stumped on this kind of employment "until research revealed that a mattress walker is a man who walks over custom-built mattresses in his stocking feet." The office commented that it was not sure about the amount of skill required, "but what a job to lie down on!"

BRANCH MOVES: The Northwest Branch of the American Security & Trust Co. today will open for business in new quarters at 15th and M sts. nw. The branch formerly was located at 1140 15th st. The enlarged, air-conditioned branch is equipped to give more complete branch banking service, according to President Daniel Bell.

RIGGS DIVIDENDS: Directors of Riggs National Bank yesterday declared regular quarterly dividends of $3 a share on capital stock, payable July 15 and October 15 to stock of record July 13 and September 30.

MORE POWER: Potomac Electric Power Co. yesterday reported June sales aggregated 160,698,435 kilowatt hours, a gain of 7.25 per cent over the same 1947 month. For the District of Columbia alone, last month's sales totaled 135,702,755 kilowatt hours, up 5.52 per cent over the like period last year.

ODD LOTS: Possibility of an increase in cigarette prices is rumored in trade circles as time draws near for auctioning of the flue-cured tobacco crop. Industry sources claim that practically everything that goes into the cost of processing the "smokes" has increased . . . Northern States Power Co. awarded 10 million dollars of 3 per cent first mortgage bonds to Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane and associates on a bid of 101.1699. Reoffering is planned at 101.59 to yield 2.92 per cent . . . Members of Electric Institute of Washington will frolic at outing Friday at Manor Country Club . . . N. J. Bell Telephone Co. awarded 55 million dollars of 40-year debentures with a 3⅛ per cent coupon to Halsey-Stuart & Co. on a bid of 102.60 . . . Commerce Department reports that 40.3 per cent of the Nation's rated annual steel producing capacity of 94,200,000 tons is located in Pittsburgh-Youngstown district. Second is Chicago district with 21.8 per cent . . . White Motor Co. stockholders will vote August 18 on a proposal to issue 120,000 shares of new $50 par convertible preferred stock, which would provide six million dollars of additional working capital.

EARNINGS: Loew's, Inc., reported net earnings of $4,729,063 for the six months ended June 3, equal to 92 cents a common share, compared with $10,904,821 or $2.12 a share in the same 1947 period. Other earnings reports:

Coal Strike Ended In Captive Pits

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough, acting as a volunteer mediator, yesterday ended the strike in the "captive" coal mines owned by the steel industry.

Judge Goldsborough announced a compromise settlement of the strike at 2 p. m. The 52,000 strikers will go back to work today.

An hour later John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and Harry M. Moses, representing the 18 mines owned by 10 steel companies, signed the agreement in Lewis' office.

Terms of Agreement

Under the agreement the steel company owners of the captive mines sign the same contract signed by owners of commercial coal mines June 25. However, the agreement provides that if at any time any of the terms of the agreement are held illegal by the Appellate or Supreme Court, those terms will be waived.

The steel companies refused to sign the previous contract because of a clause providing for a union shop. They argued that such a provision was illegal under the terms of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act, without a vote by the mine workers. Such an election could not be held unless the officers of the UMW signed a non-Communist oath and made public a financial statement of the union. Lewis refused to comply with those provisions.

The contract calls for a pay increase of $1 a day for each coal miner, plus a doubling of the payments into the mine workers welfare and retirement fund. The new payments will amount to 20 cents a ton on each ton of coal mined. Last year it was 10 cents a ton. The royalty payments will furnish, it is estimated, 100 million dollars a year for disability, health and death benefits and pensions.

All UMW Workers Eligible

Any member of the United Mine Workers, whether employed by a contributor to the fund or not, who is 62 years old and had worked in a mine 20 years, will be entitled to $100 a month in addition to his social security payments.

The ending of the strike came with dramatic suddenness. Goldsborough called reporters to his chambers at 2 o'clock, where it was revealed that attorneys for both Lewis and the steel industry had been in sporadic conferences since last Friday.

The jurist outlined the stipulation in the agreement that the union shop issue "shall be carried to its conclusion before the National Labor Relations Board and Appellate Courts." The final court ruling will be incorporated in the agreement.

Goldsborough, in a cool summer suit and without his bench robes, declared he was "very happy" with the settlement. He said it is "a good thing, or I wouldn't have initiated the talks in the first place."

The judge declared that both sides "were very cooperative and anxious to get rid of the litigation—as was this court."

Last Thursday Lewis was cited to appear before Goldsborough today to show cause why he and the UMW should not be enjoined from carrying on the strike. Goldsborough issued the citation upon the request of Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board.

At the same time, Thursday, Denham filed a formal complaint before NLRB against Lewis and UMW at the request of the steel companies.

A hearing on this complaint will be held July 24, before a NLRB trial examiner. Both sides can appeal from the trial examiner's ruling directly to the Appellate Court, and from there to the Supreme Court. The final settlement of the dispute probably will come from the high court.

Newsmen Witness Signing

Lewis and Moses signed the agreement in the presence of newsmen shortly after 2 p. m. As reporters waited for a statement, Lewis turned to Moses, and asked: "Mr. Moses, will you do the honors?"

With a courteous, "Yes, sir, Mr. Lewis," Moses read the following statement:

"Under the guidance of Judge Goldsborough, a compromise settlement was made today in the dispute between the captive mine operators and the UMW over the union shop provision in the 1948 Bituminous Wage Agreement. Mining of coal is expected to be resumed tomorrow.

"The parties stipulated that the new wage agreement would be effective and fully operative from July 1, 1948, to June 30, 1949, subject to a final decision of the court of last resort to which any party may appeal which decision shall, when entered, be by the parties made effective."

A few minutes later news photographers were taking pictures of the signing of the contract. When one picture-taker asked Lewis to "lean over closer while Mr. Moses signs," Lewis snapped back: "This is as close as Moses and I have ever got."

Boycott Ban Held to Apply To Railroads

Frederick B. Parkes 2d, an NLRB trial examiner, ruled yesterday that the Taft-Hartley Act's ban on secondary boycotts applies to railroads and their employes.

His precedent-setting decision found that the Teamsters Union (AFL) sought to prevent the Southern Pacific and Missouri Railroads from doing business with six rice mills at Crowley, Abbeyville and Kaplan, La.

Parkes said the practice was "illegal" under the new labor law and recommended that the board issue a cease and desist order against the union. Unless either party files exceptions in 20 days, his recommendation will become automatically the terms of the board ruling.

The teamsters had struck the rice mills to force recognition of the union as bargaining agent for their employes. It picketed sidings of the two railroads to prevent trains operated by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen from servicing the mills.

The teamsters based their defense on arguments that the railroads and their employes are specifically exempted from the Taft-Hartley law and are covered by the Railway Labor Act, which contains no ban on such secondary boycotts.

Parkes dismissed that contention.

IF STOMACH BALKS DUE TO GAS AND BLOAT

Help Get Food Digested to Relieve Yourself of This Nervous Distress

Do you feel all puffed-up and miserable after every meal, taste sour, bitter food? If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in helping your stomach do the job—it should be doing—in the digestion of its food.

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Sandstone Spike Saves Girl Falling In Bryce Canyon

Bryce Canyon National Park, Utah, July 13 (U.P.).—A 14-year-old Buffalo, N. Y., girl said today a sandstone spike on a wall of Bryce Canyon probably saved her life.

Nancy Mabey and her parents, Dr. and Mrs. William Mabey of Buffalo, were viewing the oddly shaped, wind-blown rock formations, when Nancy slipped over the rim of the canyon.

She slid down the canyon wall nearly 100 feet before she was able to clutch the sandstone spike—one of the many projections which made the canyon famous. A park ranger heard the girl's screams, climbed down and carried her to safety.

Reuther Quits Pay Talks With Blast at Ford

Detroit, July 13 (AP).—A CIO-United Auto Workers strike threat at the Ford Motor Co. was underlined today by Union President Walter P. Reuther, who stalked out of wage talks with a blast at the company.

"All they're doing in there is fighting theoretical windmills," Reuther charged after he had walked out.

In rebuttal, Ford Vice President John S. Bugas said:

"When Reuther talks of theoretical windmills, he means we are not acceding to the union's full demands."

The UAW president entered the negotiations Monday.

His brief appearance was his first return to the labor front since he was seriously wounded by a would-be assassin last April.

The union has threatened to strike the big automotive company any time after Thursday unless a new contract agreement is signed.

Ford has offered an 11 to 14 cent hourly wage increase, while the union is demanding a 14-cent raise plus other benefits amounting to another 14 cents.

The conferees will meet again Wednesday in efforts to settle the contract issues.

Prosperity Note

New York, July 13 (AP).—Directors of Prosperity Co., Inc., today declared a dividend of 50 cents on class "A" and class "B" common stock, both payable August 16 to stock of record August 6. Previous payments were 25 cents in July and March, 1947.

6000 End Day's Protest Strike Over Loyalty Dismissal of Two

Philadelphia, July 13 (AP).—The 6000 CIO electrical workers at the Lester plant of Westinghouse Electric Corp. ended today their 24-hour walkout over dismissal of two workers for "security" reasons.

Frank Bradley, business agent of Local 107, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, CIO, announced the union's executive board voted to ask the members to return to work.

Most of the 4 p. m. shift showed up, Bradley said. He added a conference between top officials of the union and the company has been called tomorrow in Pittsburgh "to discuss and resolve the issue that resulted in the protest demonstration."

There was no comment from the company.

The stoppage began with a brief sitdown yesterday following a mass meeting. It spread at subsequent shift changes until virtually all production workers and most of the office staff were included.

John Schaefer, president of the union local, said the two men involved—Frank Carner, 30, an engineer, and Herbert Lewin, 28, sheet metal worker—were "branded poor security risks" by the Navy, which has contracts with the plant for construction of aircraft gas turbine engines. Schaefer said they were "placed on a forced leave of absence and escorted from the plant."

In Washington, the Navy said its action was based on Federal Bureau of Investigation security checks. From these checks, the Navy said it had reason to believe the two men were members of an organization listed as subversive by Attorney General Tom Clark.

The Navy did not name the organization.

A spokesman for the local quoted Carner as saying he had worked in war plants during the war and doesn't "understnad what the 'poor security risk' charge stems from."

Lewin said he also worked in war plants and has "never been challenged before."

Reynolds of the Public Building Administration, in recommending rejection of both bids, advised General Fleming that the offers were unacceptable because "the amounts paid by the lessees for improving and adapting the building to theatrical purposes would result in no benefit whatever to the Government."

'More Reasonable' Attitude Hoped

Furthermore, he said, "if the lease is terminated prior to the end of 10 years, the reimbursement to the lessee could not be made except from funds especially appropriated for that purpose." Current plans call for demolishing the structure once Congress appropriates the necessay funds.

Pointing out that rejection of the bids may mean that Washington will be without a legitimate theater after August 1, spokesmen for ANTA expressed hope that "further negotiations will induce the Government to take a more reasonable attitude."

Wallace Cohen, counsel for Curtis, reported "we haven't given up hope of getting it" and will shortly submit a new offer to the FWA.

Both bidders have promised to use the structure for legitimate theater purposes and, unlike the soon-to-be-closed National Theater, will practice a nonsegregation policy.

Board Invites Parents' Views

who attended Monday night's protest meeting of 100 parents at the Boulevard Bowling Alleys in Bethesda, declared the meeting a result of "misunderstanding and misinformation."

"Most of those attending" were "in earnest," he said, but "they do not understand what the schools are trying to do and the methods by which they are trying to do it."

Parents protested that their children are not learning to read, to write, or to spell and that too much emphasis is placed on extracurricular activities, that no homework is assigned and that college preparation is not stressed.

School Supt. Edwin Broome said the workhop will be held weekdays during August from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. with additional night meetings.

Letter Praises Policy

A letter from the Eastern Suburban Area P-TA Study Group, read at the meeting declared:

"In our studied opinion, the educational philosophy in Montgomery County is neither radical, dangerously experimental, nor extravagant. Instead, it is sound, verified, and accepted modern practice, as found in good educational systems the country over.

The Leland Junior High P-TA also stressed the need for more funds if county schools are to be improved.

A letter from the Montgomery County League of Women Voters said:

"While it is undoubtedly true that many individuals achieve some degree of personal success or failure in relation to their mastery of the basic elements of learning . . . our recent civilization shaking experience of World War II surely must have demonstrated that proficiency in these disciplinary subjects, though still important, is not enough."

Moral Code Lack Threatens Peace, Pius XII Says

Vatican City, July 13 (U.P.).—Pope Pius XII said today that the perils to peace and the instability of treaties are rooted in the "lack of a moral code recognized by all."

Wherever the Christian faith prevails, he said, "divergent opinions can be brought together in an atmosphere of moral seriousness and mutual loyalty which opens the path of sure solution for even the thorniest problems."

The disappearance of a moral criterion stems from a lack of faith in God, he said in a seven-minute talk in Spanish delivered after the new Ecuadorean ambassador to the Holy See, Prof. Manuel Larrea, had presented his credentials.

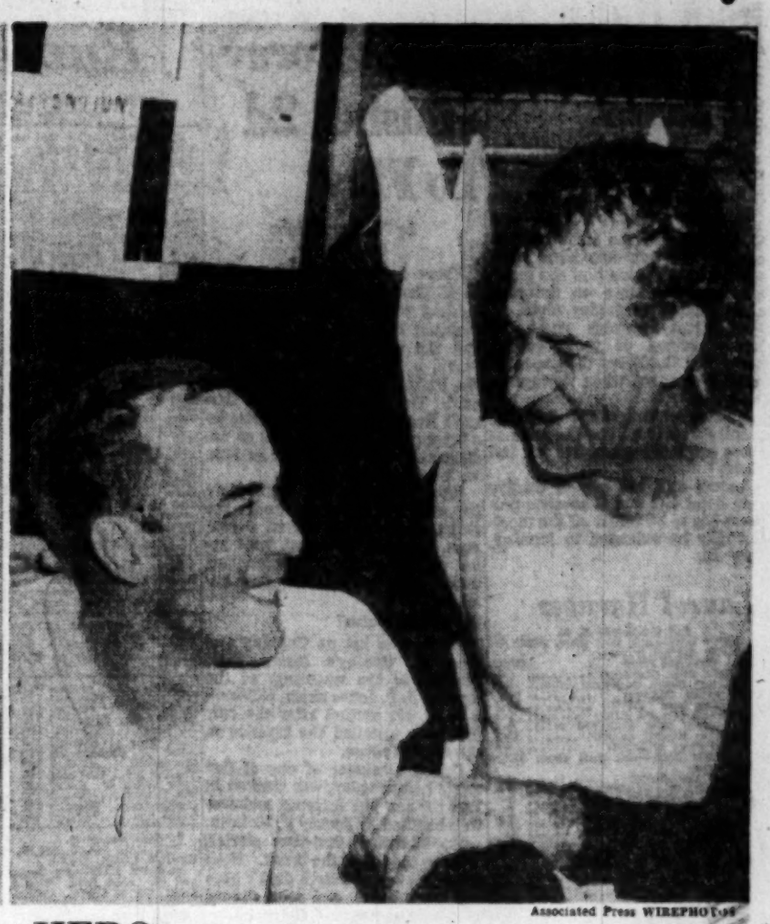
Raschi Leads American 'Cripples' to 5-2 Victory

FRIENDS—Among the interested spectators at yesterday's All-Star game at St. Louis was Burt Shotton, left, manager of last year's pennant-winning Dodgers. He's chatting with Leo Durocher, who returned to pilot the Bums this year after sitting out a year's suspension. With his return to Brooklyn, Leo also became manager of this year's N. L. All-Stars.

HOMER—Stan Musial, St. Louis Cardinal left fielder staked the National League All-Stars to a 2-0, first inning lead yesterday when he belted a Walter Masterson pitch for a home run. Ritchie Ashburn (1) of the Phillies and Johnny Mize (15) of the Giants welcome Msial home as Stan completes his trek around the bases. The Nationals couldn't hold the lead, however, losing 5-2



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

HERO—Vic Raschi, left, New York Yankee right-hander, receives congratulations from Yankee Manager Bucky Harris, who skippered the American League Stars yesterday. Raschi pitched runless ball for three innings to gain credit for the victory. More important, however, Raschi singled in the fourth inning to drive in two runs and break a 2-2 tie

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

ST. LOUIS, July 13.—All Stardust:

Hal Newhouser reported to American League Manager Bucky Harris in uniform despite announcing his withdrawal from the American League lineup yesterday on account of a sore arm.

POVICH

Newhouser was apologetic about his inability to pitch. "My arm really is sore," he said. "I don't want people to think I'm another Bob Feller.' For the first time in history a pitcher was objecting to being compared to Feller.

Among baseball's high officials on the scene were Dixie Walker of the Pirates and Freddie Hutchinson of the Tigers. As cochairmen of the powerful Players Committee they sit down with league presidents and Commissioner Chandler and make straight talk.

It was Walker and Hutchinson who recommended penalties for any players who ducked out of future All-Star games. The form of the punishment was left open, however.

"How about sentencing 'em to Leo Durocher's dog house?" Walker was asked by a reporter.

"That cant be done," said Walker. "It's full already."

BUCKY HARRIS was seething at Bill Veeck, the Cleveland owner, who in a published statement told Harris to "Mind his own business" following the American League manager's criticism of Feller's withdrawal. "If I'm the manager of another American League All-Star team, I'll never select Feller," Harris had said.

In reply, Veeck lashed out with (1) "Harris' memory is faulty. They let Spud Chandler of the Yankees ask out of the 1946 game." (2) Harris has a big enough job running the Yankees without trying to run my club" and (3) "Why didn't he put his man Allie Reynolds on the team. Reynolds has a better record than Feller."

According to Harris, Veeck struck out on those three cracks. "Veeck's own memory is faulty. I wasn't managing the All-Stars when Chandler asked out and anyway it was '47 not '46. Part of my job of running the Yankees is running the Indians out of first place. And as for the Reynolds-Feller debate we'll swap Reynolds for Feller any day and give 'em $100,000 to boot."

THE BIGGEST TRIBUTE to the American League was the fact that it was still the betting favorite even with guys like Williams, DiMaggio, Feller, Newhouser and Kell out of the lineup. The club that Harris did put on the field he called "My What's Left" team.

Walter Masterson qualified for one distinction. As the American League's starting pitcher he probably took the worst record of any starting pitcher in All-Star history into the game. He could show only six wins and six defeats.

But to Manager Harris particularly, Masterson undoubtedly had certain charms. His last two victories were against Harris' Yankees—one of them a 1-to-0 shutout job, and the other a 2-1 win in 12 innings.

MANAGER LEO DUROCHER, recognized as the top disciple of pitcher-changess, set a new mark even for himself during the big third inning of the American Leaguers. He was changing pitchers in the bullpen, even before changing 'em in the game.

With Ralph Branca in trouble, Durocher had Johnny Sain of the Braves warming up. A bit later, he waved Sain back to the bench and ordered Johnny Schmitz to warm up.

Schmitz threw a dozen balls and then Durocher scratched him, and moved Sain into action again. But when he finally pulled Branca it wasn't Sain but Schmitz who got the pitching job.

EWELL BLACKWELL'S herky-jerky windup and delivery was worth the price of admission to lovers of acrobatics. He goes into a one-man melee before coming through with his pitch, but Johnny Mize hung the best descriptino on Blackwell when he said, "That guy pitches looking like a man falling out of a tree."

Detroit's Hoot Evers duplicated the 1940 stunt of Max West of the Braves when he whacked a home run in his first time at bat in his first All-Star game, but he's hoping the similarity ends there. West was waived out of the big leagues a year later.

Bassler's 142 Wins Md. Open Title

The pupil and his teacher combined to monopolize the honors in the twenty-eighth Maryland Open Golf championship yesterday at Chevy Chase.

Charlie Bassler, youthful Rolling Road Country Club of Baltimore professional captured his first tournament and his former boss, Bob Barnett, veteran pro of the host club ran a close second.

Bassler, playing exceptionally steady golf over the elongated Chevy Chase course, shot 36—35—70 in the morning and finished with a 37—35—72 in the afternoon for a 142 total and victory. Barnett, now in his twenty-fifth year at the club, was a serious contender all the way.. He started with a 37—34—71 and finished with a 39—34—73.

Leading the amateur contingent was Billy Griffin, Prince Georges Country Club lad who is the bulwark of the George Washington University golf team.

Griffin shot a 72—73—145 to trail Barnett by a stroke.

Behind the three leaders was Bobby Brownell, a former Maryland Open champion himself, with 73—73—146.

Wins Title and $200

In winning the $200 first prize, the lanky Baltimore pro had to battle his way through a terrific downpour midway through the afternoon round. That cloudburst, which let up after about an hour and became a steady drizzle for much of the afternoon, sank many of the early challengers.

Among the leaders in the morning round who fell by the wayside in the afternoon were Pros. Al Houghton, Wiffy Cox, Sam Bates and Amateur Joe Barse of Columbia.

It was a coincidence that four players grouped at 148 all had won the Maryland championship in past years. They were Defending champion Spencer Overton, Houghton of Prince Georges with 72-76; Ralph Beach of Baltimore with 76-72, and Cliff Spencer of Elizabeth City, N. C., with 74-74.

Tees Moved Back

Nominally a 6675-yard par 89 course, Chevy Chase's tees had been moved back as far as they would go. Several pros estimated the length of the course as around 7100 yards.

Over this layout, Bassler had 15 pars in his morning round, three-putted two holes and dropped a 40-footer for a birdie on another. In the afternoon round he had 13 pars, 1 birdie and 4 bogies.

It remained for a foursome made up of Henry Robinson, Hugh McLellan, John Kelly and Bill Clarke to pull one of the tournament's oddities. All four scored birdie 3s on the fifteenth hole.

Bosox Recall Tex Hughson From B Loop

AUSTIN, TEX., July 13 (AP).—Texas weather got another boost today. At least it was good for the Boston Red Sox, who sent Pitcher Tex Hughson down here to straighten out a sore arm.

Hughson was recalled today by the Sox. Tex had been working with Austin of the Class B Big State League on 24-hour recall, having been here since last May.

Last night Hughson pitched his final game for Austin, beating Waco, 9-4. Tex was in 10 games with Austin, winning four and losing two.

Williams Helps Olympics

Philadelphia, July 13 (AP).—Ike Williams, who successfully defended his lightweight boxing title last night with a six-round knockout of Beau Jack, announced today he would give $1000 of his winnings to the United States Olympic fund.

Williams collected $30,000 for slightly more than 15 minutes of work.

'Trouble-Maker' Quits

MANHATTAN, KANS., July 13 (AP).—Clarence Brannum, Kansas State College's All-Big Seven basketball center, around whom an eligibility storm blew last season, said today he would not return to school this fall.

Instead he will play professional or AAU basketball. Brannum's eligibility was questioned last winter by Dr. F. C. (Phog) Allen, Kansas basketball coach, but the conference faculty committee upheld his right to play.

Never Too Old

Milwaukee, July 13 (AP).—Aged Phil Zwick, who had to win a court battle for a license, is in good shape for his 10-round bout with Charles (Cabey) Lewis in the auditorium Thursday.

That's the view of Secretary Fred Saddy of the Wisconsin Boxing Commission after watching the 44-year-old featherweight, veteran of some 200 professional bouts over nearly 30 years' work out today. "I'm satisfied with the way Zwick appears, physically," Saddy reported. "His weight is satisfactory and he worked surprisingly well."

The Babe Arrives But Rain Dampens Baltimore Show

Baltimore, July 13 (AP).—Babe Ruth came here today to take part in Interfaith Night festivities at Baltimore Stadium—but rain forced postponement of the annual charity event until tomorrow.

The famous baseball player who learned the game on backlots here, will not be able to stay over.

Ruth has been suffering from a throat ailment for nearly two years. Although he was obviously tired and ailing, he managed a wide grin when he spotted a welcoming committee at the airport after his flight from New York.

He put his arms around his sister, Mrs. Wilbur M. Moberly of Baltimore, and had a warm welcome for Brothers Patricius and Charles of St. Mary's Industrial School, where the Bambino spent most of his childhood.

One of the features of the scheduled Interfaith Night was to have been a baseball game between the Baltimore Orioles and the Jersey City Giants of the International League.

Harris Let Hurler Hit--It Paid Off

Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, July 13 (AP).—It hadn't occurred to Vic Raschi that he was the first pitcher to win his own All-Star game with a base hit.

"Hasn't it been done before?" he wondered aloud, above the mild chaos of back-slapping in the American League dressing room after the game this afternoon. Then he flashed the warmest smile in the room.

He said he had "been in a batting slump" up to this game, but, across the way at another row of lockers, Manager Bucky Harris said he never had the slightest idea of pulling Raschi for a pinchhitter in that fourth inning when the Yankee pitcher slapped a line drive just over the third baseman's head and brought in two runs.

The score at the time was tied, 2-2.

Harris High on Him

"That boy's liable to poke one at any time, said Harris.

Two innings later Raschi saved his victory margin by striking out Richie Ashburn of Philadelphia with the bases loaded, ending the threat. Ashburn had already hit two singles, but this time he was fooled by a curve ball.

Over in the National League dressing room, the vanquished players were naturally disappointed over the outcome but appeared to be something less than broken hearted.

"We had our chances," said Ewell Blackwell, the Cincinnati hurler who worked the last three innings. "We had men on the bases but we just couldn't get any base hits when they counted."

Blackwell wasn't even satisfied with his own performance, although he held the American Leaguers to a pair of harmless singles in the last three frames.

"I was too wild," said the Cincinnati thin man, noting that he walked one man in each of the three innings he pitched.

Leo Durocher, who managed the National Leaguers by virtue of Burt Shotton's having won the pennant with the Brooklyn Dodgers last year, had little to say.

"We got beat," said Leo. "What more can I say?"

With that, he straightened his necktie and left the clubhouse. Leo is becoming accustomed to defeats.

Mrs. Stokes Wins, Mrs. Pray Beaten In Md. Amateur

Baltimore, July 13 (AP).—Mrs. Walter Stokes of Washington's Manor Country Club, one of the comedalists, scored a decisive 8 and 7 victory over Mrs. Adele Lewis of Annapolis Roads to advance in the women's State golf championship today.

Mrs. Maurice Glick of Baltimore's Woodholme, the defending champion, rallied late and carded a 3 and 2 victory over Mrs. L. G. Pray of Washington's Columbia Country Club.

That left Mrs. Stokes the only non-Baltimorean still in the running.

Mrs. Charles Nes, Jr., Green Spring Country Club, defeated Mrs. Herman H. Hoene of Elkridge Country Club, 1 up.

Mrs. Stuart Porwell, Rolling Road Country Club, defeated Mrs. M. Louise Ball of Baltimore Country Club, 4 and 2.

Mrs. C. Prevost Bovce, Elkridge, defeated Mrs. Cameron C. Barr, Country Club of Maryland, 4 and 2.

Mary Ann Downey, Baltimore Country Club, defeated June Vogel, Rolling Road, 3 and 4.

D. C. Tennis Delayed

Yesterday's rain postponed the D. C. Recreation Department's tennis tournament at 16th and Kennedy sts. nw., until today. The same pairings will follow the same schedule today.

Yank Pitcher Drives In 2 Runs; Musial Homers Off Masterson

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

St. Louis, July 13.—The healthy remnants of the American League's crippled cast bounced back from Stan Musial's two-run homer in the first inning today and batted out another chapter in the oft-told story of supremacy over the National League All-Stars.

At the finish, the two runs Musial delivered were the only runs the National League owned, and the American Leagues stars had a 5-2 victory, their eleventh of the 15-game series.

You could call it "the same old story of Yankee power" and not be amiss, but Yankee power took a strange twist today. Because it was Yankee Pitcher Vic Raschi who delivered the decisive swat—a two-run single with the bases loaded that ended a 2-2 deadlock in the fourth inning.

Eight Scoreless Innings

Before the whooping crowd of 34,009 fans whose yells sounded suspiciously pro-National League, Walter Masterson (Nats), Raschi (Yankees) and Joe Coleman (A's) shut the National Leaguers out in the last eight innings, permitting only one man to reach third base.

Masterson, victim of Musial's swat, moved out of the game at the end of three innings with the score at 2-2, and Raschi eventually received the self-delivered credit as the winning pitcher. But young Coleman, Connie Mack's right-hander, turned in the day's fanciest pitching job by slamming the door in the faces of the National Leaguers with a hitless stint in the seventh, eighth and ninth.

Johnny Schmitz, the Cubs' southpaw, let the game get out of hand for his side in the fourth after Cleveland's Ken Keltner thumped a single into left field that Musial held to one base by a fast recovery. With one out, the venerable George McQuinn singled to center and Schmitz loaded the bases with a walk to Birdie Tebbetts.

Joe Ends Scoring

Raschi worked the count to 2 and 2 against Schmitz and then worked him for the game's big hit. It was a solid smash into left field that brought Keltner and McQuinn skeedadling home, and Tebbetts racing into third on Musial's throw to the plate.

Manager Bucky Harris then wheeled out sore-footed Joe Di Maggio in a pinch hitting role. Durocher replaced Schmitz with Righthander Johnny Sain and Di Maggio delivered the third run of the inning. He banged a deep line drive to Musial, Tebbetts scoring after the catch to lift the American League margin to the final score of 5-2.

For Rookie Hoot Evers of the Detroit Tigers it was a notable debut in his first All-Star game. In his first time at bat he walloped a home run into the left field seats to cut the National League lead to 2-1.

At the end of those four innings, the National Leaguers were winning everything but the ball game. They were rapping Masterson and Raschi somewhat and had eight hits to the American Leaguers' four, but they were runless except for Musial's poke.

Unsold Tickets Swamp London

London, July 13 (U.P.).—The Olympic organizing committee was flooded today with hundreds of thousands of unsold tickets, mostly from the United States.

Reports of food shortages and difficulties in finding living quarters were blamed for discouraging potential tourists.

Return of the tickets only 16 days before the July 29 opening of the 14th modern Olympiad will not endanger the financial success of the games, however. Some 400,000 sterling ($1,600,000)—an Olympic record—already has been taken in. Promoters still are hoping for a complete sellout and a gate of 800,000 sterling ($3,200,000.

Under Olympic regulations, only one-third of the tickets can be offered in the host country when seats go on sale. Now that there have been returns, Britain is released from the ruling and tickets for all events, including track and field and swimming, are being sold to Britishers.

Rain Halts Trot Races At Laurel

The heavy shower late yesterday afternoon washed out last night's harness racing at Laurel Raceway.

It was a postponement that shouldn't make the track too unhappy. With only four more cards scheduled, it means that the meeting now will close on Saturday night instead of Friday night.

And last Saturday night the largest crowd of the meeting, more than 12,000, set the one-night betting standard when it wagered $236,474.

Entries for tonight's program beginning at 8:15 will be the same as those originally scheduled for last night.

Laurel still has one of its five rain dates left and if another program has to be called off the meeting may be extended to Monday, July 19.

Clowns Meet Grays Tonight

Washington's Homestead Grays oppose the Indianapolis Clowns at Griffith Stadium tonight with part of the receipts going to the National Council of Negro Women.

The Clowns, in addition to their top brand of baseball, feature a sideshow presented by a quartet of diamond entertainers, including Reece (Goose) Tatum, stringbean first baseman; Ted Strong, home-run-hitting outfielder; Juggling Joe Taylor, pitcher, and King Tut. All are regular players except Tut, a professional clown.

The Indianapolis aggregation, which lost a 2-1 game to the Grays in Pittsburgh last week, hopes to avenge that loss by sending Johnny Williams, veteran right-hander, to the mound. The Grays will pitch R. T. Walker or Red Fields.

Clair, former Ohio State star who played professional football with the Washington Redskins, will succeed Jim Feelle, who continues as director of athletics. Clair is 31.

Reigh Foray Finishes 2d To Filly

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., July 13.—G. M. Humphrey's Cubbing wasn't kidding today. The daughter of Fighting Fox took the lead early and ran away with the Colonial Purse, a test for 2-year-olds and the best offering of a rather dull card. The fleet filly led E. K. Bryson's Reigh Foray into the wire by a length and a half and was an additional length in advance of Mrs. M. Wood's Grain Market.

Rain began to fall just before the race, but failed to hinder the racing surface. It served a purpose, however, bringing some relief to a crowd of 7000 sweltering under high temperature and humidity.

Pays $4.60 Mutuel

Those who bet on Cubbing and Mrs. M. Owsley's Merry Risk, coupled in the wagering, as the Trainer J. P. Jones entry, collected a $4.60 win mutuel after the pair had been installed the favorite in the field of seven.

Cubbing, winner of one of five starts before today, was clocked in 1:06 for the 5½ furlongs and was well handled by Jockey P. McLean.

Snowflares, a first-time starter, went to the top at the break. However, this son of Flares didn't have too much punch and soon slipped back as Cubbing and Reigh Foray, along with Bucko, flashed to the front. Reigh Foray appeared to have a bit of trouble when caught in close quarters.

Double Pays $140.40

Approaching the stretch, Cubbing drew out. Reigh Foray made a strong bid to get to her but hung in the final drive. Grain Market was well placed throughout but tired under pressure in the closing test.

The daily double paid $140.40. J. H. C. Forbes' Viva Teddy, a rather consistent plater, turned back 11 rivals in the first race while under the handling of Jockey Beverley Hacker. Viva Teddy paid $10.80.

Young Trainer R. W. Fitzgerald saddled J. H. Wein's Eire for the son of Hard Tack's second victory of the meeting. The 9-year-old paid $18 and was capably handled by Jockey R. D. Scott.

U.S. Contenders in Olympics Sail for England Today

What a Tee Shot! But Let's Not Talk About Those Putts

Before yesterday, Odie Gantt would have been proud to shoot a par four on the 354-yard fourth hole at Fairfax Country Club golf course. But yesterday he was riled because that's all he shot.

Here's why.

He laced his tee shot onto the green and the ball rolled to within 25 feet of the cup. However, his putter was not as potent as his driver, and he three-putted to get a mere par four.

Mrs. Galento Sues Tony for Divorce

Orange, N. J., July 13 (AP).—Richard J. Fitz Maurice, attorney for Mrs. Tony Galento, said today the wife of the former heavyweight fighter was in Reno seeking a divorce.

The attorney said Mrs. Galento will file papers for a divorce on the grounds of incompatibility and will seek support and custody of the couple's 10-year-old son, Tony, jr.

Samuel E. Goldner, attorney for Galento, said his client will not contest the divorce.

A. L. Stars Rally to Win Again, 5-2

ball for three innings, was in some trouble in the sixth when the National League loaded the bases with the tying runs with two out. Singles by Elliott and Masi of the Braves put men on first and second with one out, but Kerr of the Giants grounded out harmlessly to Keltner. Pinch Hitter Eddie Waitkus of the Cubs batted for Johnny Sain and walked.

But in that crsis, Raschi took a hitch in his belt and confronted Rookie Richie Ashburn of the Phillies who had made two previous hits, and struck him out on a wicked curve that was unoffered at.

Sain of the Braves was rough. He permitted only one hit in his 2 2/3 innings, and in the fifth he hit the pitching jackpot. With his all-curve delivery he struck out Vern Stephens, Bobby Doerr and Evers in succession and sent them back to the bench numbling at the fickle doings of a baseball.

The Reds' Ewell Blackwell gamely tried to keep the National League in the game by following Sain's runless tour of duty with a shut-out pitching job of his own in the last two innings, but his pals could get scarcely more than a foul off Coleman after the sixth.

Masterson, the surprise starting choice of Harris and working with only one day's rest since pitching si: innings on Sunday, had a rough first inning. On the game's first pitch, the fleet Ashburn banged a high-hopping grounder to Joe Gordon and beat it out for a single with the help of Gordon's high throw to first.

Right away, Ashburn stole second and raced to third on Schoendienst's grounder to McQuinn. Those two last dashes were wasted effort, however, because Musial with a two-strike-no-ball count smashed a Masterson curve 400 feet to the top of the right center pavillion roof for his homer.

Evers jolted the National League out of any idea it was going to be a soft touch, though, when he came up with one out in the second inning. The hottest hitter in the American League in the last two weeks, Evers banged Branca's second pitch on a line into left field home run territory.

Th American Leaguers got the tying run off Branca in the third inning without the necessity of a hit. Mickey Vernon, batting for Masterson, led off with a walk and Pat Mullin also drew a pass from Branca. Henrich took a suspicious-looking third strike on a wide curve and it also fooled Third Baseman Andy Pafko.

Vernon and Mullin were under way on a hit-and-run play when Henrich fanned and Pafko failed to cover third, on the assumption it was the first ball to Henrich. It ended up as a double steal by Vernon and Mullin.

Vernon rode home on Boudreau's deep fly to Slaughter in right field and the American League had no worse than a 2-2 tie.

An inning later the aptly named Victor Raschi crowned himself the winning pitcher by the matchless method of driving in the winning runs himself.

Musial Proves One Strike Is All a Slugger Needs

St. Louis, July 13 (AP).—Stan Musial, noted as one of the best "two-strike" hitters in the game, gave proof of it in the first inning when he parked one of Walt Masterson's fast ones atop the pavilion roof. The count on him was no balls and two strikes. The crowd of 34,009 gave "The Man" a tremendous ovation.

It was the second time Sportsman's Park saw the Nationals get the jump on the Americans via a first run homer in the All-Star classic. Max West touched Red Ruffing for a 3-run homer in 1940. The difference was that in 1940 the Nationals held the lead.

When Vic Raschi singled across two runs in the fourth he probably drove in more runs than all pitchers combined have driven across the plate in the mid-summer classic. With so many players available, pitchers rarely bat for themselves when ducks are on the pond.

In their pitching selections, the two managers favored men who had never appeared in an All-Star game. These were Ralph Branca and Johnny Schmitz of the Nationals and Vic Raschi and Joe Coleman of the Americans. All the "freshmen" did well except Schmitz who was able to get only one man out, and was the losing hurler.

The Nationals missed a big chance in the sixth when they loaded the bases with two out, just as the wind and thunder came. But Vic Raschi slipped over a third strike on Richie Ashburn to retire the side.

When Hoot Evers parked one of Ralph Branca's pitches in the second he became the second All-Star freshman to hit a homer the first time up. Max West turned the trick here in 1940.

The umpiring was generally satisfactory. Buddy Kerr beefed loudly to Bill Stewart when George McQuinn was called safe at second in the sixth, and Birdie Tebbetts and Bob Elliot questioned Beans Reardon's call on strikes. Otherwise the friendliest of feeling seemed to prevail.

Hamilton, Ontario, July 13 (AP).—Skee Riegel, United States amateur champion from Upper Darby, Pa., was eliminated today in the first round of the Canadian Amateur golf championship.

The United States' other leading candidate for the honors—Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, the British amateur titlist—was an easy victor over Jack Nash of London, Ontario, 7 and 6.

260 Stars Depart on S.S. America

New York, July 13 (AP).—The final hurdles of finances and team makeup cleared, the United States Olympic squad of 341 picked athletes was ready tonight for the trip to London and the fourteenth modern Olympic games.

Avery Brundage, chairman of the United States Olympic Committee, announced that no one would miss the boat when the SS America sails at 3 p. m. (EST) tomorrow for the first Olympiad competition since 1936.

Although the full $512,000 budget had not been realized, he explained there were sufficient pledges and other funds in the mails to assure America's full participation in the games. Thus, all fears that some of the low-priority squads would be pared at the last moment were allayed.

The committee's executive body had been in virtual continuous session these past two days ironing out the last few wrinkles cropping up on these shores.

While the officials were in conference the young men and women of the 17 varied teams hastily went about their last-hour preparations on the eve of departure.

The high-keyed hours of practice and qualifying trials were temporarily forgotten, as were the two weeks of the Olympic games that loomed ahead for July 29 to August 14.

More mundane matters confronted these competitors. There were the problems of packing equipment and clothing, changing United States money into British pounds, seeing that their passports were in order and their measurements correct for the Olympic team uniforms.

On the America tomorrow will be 260 competitors and 44 coaches and managers; also 27 of the USOC staff. The others were either already in London, or going later by ship or plane.

Brundage said a rundown of the various squads showed this year's team to be one of the best ever sent to an Olympics.

British Title Bout Still in Making

London, July 13 (AP).—Promoter Jack Solomons said today it might take another week before details are ironed out for a British Empire lightweight boxing title bout here, featuring Arthur King of Toronto.

Benny Huntman, manager of Billy Thompson, British champion, who will meet King for the crown, previously announced he hoped to close negotiations today.

Military Services May Absorb Part Of Civilian Raises

The military services—Army, Navy and Air Force—apparently will be required to absorb part of the cost of recent pay raises given their civilian employes. It follows, then, that the expansion of personnel in these agencies won't be as large as was once planned.

The Budget Bureau, it's known, has sent the military agencies a "general guide" on the expenditure of 1949 funds. It suggests that money for public works, construction and other "highly flexible programs" be spent so that additional funds to meet the cost of pay raises "will not be required."

It was also recommended by the bureau that the services make every effort to bring about savings in their stabilized functions and activities—savings that could be used to offset pay raise costs.

Each of the military services has a dollar limitation on funds it can use for civilian personnel. The pay raise means the dollars will travel a shorter distance. However, Congress is morally obligated to raise the ceilings since the pay bill was approved only a few hours before it adjourned.

The Budget Bureau has asked the chairmen of the Senate and House Appropriations Committees for their views on how the pay raise cost should be handled. No answer has been received from either. However, they can be expected to urge absorption of the cost wherever possible.

FDIC: About 80 employes of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation are being transferred to the Federal Security Agency. They are employed in the credit union section which was ordered switched to FSA under a new law.

STATE: Its Institute of Inter-American Affairs has had to make a major lay-off. About 60 employes of its small staff here have been given dismissal notices because of a big budget slash. Some of the employes have permanent status and they will be offered reassignments in other offices in the department. In all, about 100 State employes here will be laid off.

RECLAMATION: The Budget Bureau is making an inquiry into the accounting system of Interior's Reclamation Bureau. A three-man committee is making the study. Members are: L. W. Hoelscher and William J. Armstrong of the budget staff, and Gilbert Cake, director of Treasury's accounts. Reclamation's accounting practices have been under fire from congressional committees.

ORDER: The President soon will issue an order which will give the State Department the authority to fix living allowances for all Federal workers who are overseas. The exception will be those employes who are now paid a differential for overseas duty. The differential can be a maximum of 25 per cent.

Oddly enough, State bases its overseas allowances on the cost of living in this city. Several months ago it cut its allowances with the explanation that the cost of living had risen in Washington. Naturally, State's foreign service people were bewildered by the "explanation."

CIVIL SERVICE NOTES: The exam for trainee patrol inspector will be given July 28 and 29. More than 23,000 have applied for it, some 900 in this city . . . Civil Service has a roster of eligibles for economist jobs with beginning salaries from $3397 to $5905 a year. Some 760 passed recent tests in that wage range . . . Civil Service soon will announce the results of the recent steno-typist exam for jobs in this city. Meantime, direct hiring of these people by the agencies has been suspended until the register is set up.

PEOPLE: Daniel Cox Fahey yesterday was given Army's coveted meritorious award for his work as chief of the planning branch of the Civil Affairs Division. He's now chief of the plans section of the National Security Resources Board. . . . With all of Interior's top brass out of the city, Solicitor Mastin G. White yesterday took over as Acting Secretary. . . . George E. Felton, a Boston industrialist, yesterday was appointed production director of the National Resources Board. . . . Chairman Reese of the House Civil Service Committee yesterday called for the resignation of Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing because of his political activity. Ewing is a member of the President's so-called kitchen cabinet. However, he is exempt from the Hatch "no politics" Act.

CIVIL SERVICE and officials of various agencies have been holding sessions to try to find some way to attract young blood to the Federal service. Fewer and fewer potentially able young college graduates, it seems, look to the Government for a career. And that's bad.

The commission had high hopes for its junior administrative technician exam. But that test has been a bust for producing good young men and women. The agencies simply aren't using the eligibles listed by Civil Service.

A group of agency officials has now suggested to the commission that it use "selective" certification on its JAT tests. In other words, that an agency that needs budget clerks be allowed to select them from the register in order of preference. Under the present system, the agency must take one of the three top persons on the list, and they all might be in the personnel field.

Verdict Due Today in Gaming Case Against 21

Prosecution Rests In Howard County Trial Involving Rocway Towers

Ellicott City, Md., July 13. "We don't want big-time gambling in our small-time county."

With that statement from Prosecutor Daniel M. Murray, State's attorney of Howard County, the two-day trial of 21 persons indicted on gaming charges in the June 5 raid on the Rocway Towers gambling casino, came to a close this afternoon.

Circuit Court Judge James Clark, who is trying the case without a jury in the historic courthouse here, announced that he will deliver his verdict at 10 a. m. Wednesday. If he announces convictions, sentences may be imposed at the same time.

None of the defendants, who include many with Washington addresses, were placed on the witness stand during the trial, which was featured by piles of alleged gaming equipment stacked in the courtroom, along with rifles, revolvers and ammunition.

In testimony today, a second witness, State Police Sergt. N. J. W. Lloyd, identified Theodore A. (Mike) Myers, of 4240 Branch ave., Silver Hill, Md., as a man seen cocking a Winchester rifle when State troopers descended on the roadhouse on Route 1, just north of Laurel.

A previous witness said Myers told him he had seized the weapon because he was afraid of "hijackers." Sergt. Lloyd told the court he unloaded the rifle which Myers had, and also unloaded another rifle, two revolvers and two sawed-off shotguns found in the place.

Bag Contained $20,000

Myers and Walter Novak, of 1205 Jackson ave., Takoma Park, have been described by the prosecution as operators of the casino, and Patrick J. Clarke, of Laurel, has been indicted as the owner of Rocway Towers. The 18 others were described as employes there.

Corpl. Thomas S. Smith testified today that Novak claimed ownership of a brown paper bag containing $20,000 which Smith found behind a radiator, 15 feet from a dice table.

"I asked him why he'd leave that amount of money in a paper bag," said Trooper Smith. "He said at first he thought it (the raid) was a hijacking . . . (Then) he admitted ownership . . ."

Lieut. William H. Weber, field force commander of the State police, said Trooper Smith turned the money over to him. Weber said he "counted it roughly," and wrote $21,900 on the bag, believing it to be that amount.

Other Cash Found

After cross-examination on this point by William Curran, former attorney general of Maryland and chief defense counsel, Curran said Novak told him there was only $20,000 in the bag and he was not trying to make it appear that $1900 had "disappeared."

"I bring it up only to show that in a very, very important phase of the case the police were mistaken," said Curran.

Novak was identified by Lieut. George E. Davidson as "manager of two crap tables" in the casino. In addition to the $20,000, also seized in the raid was $12,025 found in a suitcase in a second-floor storeroom, and $98 in a "money till" found on a dice table.

Trooper Smith testified that before he entered the Towers, a "watchman," William C. Quade of Cheltenham, Md., was taken into custody, and Smith was assigned to guard him.

"I noticed he was shaking, and told him he had nothing to worry about," said Smith. "I found out later that he was shaking to try to get rid of a .45 automatic—trying to slide it down his pants leg."

The gaming charges in the case are misdemeanors, with maximum penalties of $500 fines or 6 months to 1 year imprisonment. Clarke's attorney admitted Clarke's ownership of the Towers' property—declaring Clarke leased it to Novak, "which does not constitute a crime." Clarke is subject to two gaming charges under the indictment.

'Trade Restraint'

Sales Option Hit by Used Car Dealer

William D. Griffith, president of the National Capital Used Car Dealers Association, charged yesterday that repurchase options in the sale of new cars are "in restraint of trade."

Griffith's criticism came in the wake of a decision by Municipal Court Judge Thomas D. Quinn upholding such agreements.

Quinn had ruled Monday that Francis & Parsons, Inc., was entitled to $197.36 damages from Fred F. Allen, 200 36th st. ne., under a repurchasing agreement on a new Dodge coupe.

The evidence disclosed that Allen had sold the car to a used car dealer immediately after purchasing it and had made a $195 commission on the deal.

"We do not condone any arrangement whereby a used car dealer by predesign finances a purchase of an automobile by an individual in order to obtain title for resale purposes," Griffith stated.

"On the other hand, we condemn all arrangements entered into by new-car dealers which prevent the resale of automobiles legitimately purchased in good faith."

The statement emphatically denied the existence of a "gray market" in automobiles.

The statement asked: "What does the new-car dealer do with these automobiles which he repurchases at a discount, and at what price does he resell them to the public?"

The statement continued: "If the new-car dealer is seeking to wipe out what he claims to be a gray market, why isn't it possible for one trading in a used car to obtain the fair market value of that car rather than a value far below the current price?"

$28,000 Tax Sought From D. C. Attorney

Treasury Asks Lien on N. B. Frost and Wife; Court Actions Cite 13

A Federal income tax lien for $28,106.76 yesterday was filed against Norman B. Frost, Washington attorney, and his wife, Demova.

The lien, filed in District Court by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, covered the 1945 Federal income tax period.

Frost, who lives in Manor rd., Chevy Chase, was in Detroit on business yesterday and couldn't be reached for comment. Mrs. Frost said she knew "nothing about it."

The Atlas Club of Washington, 1349 E st. nw., and the Old New Orleans Restaurant, 1214 Connecticut ave. nw., were among 12 other concerns and individuals against whom liens were filed.

Gary Quinn, proprietor of the Atlas Club said he already had sent checks to cover a $518.30 claim for withholding tax covering January 1 to May 1, 1948, and the Federal Insurance contribution of $147.24 for the period January 1-May 10, 1948.

Quinn blamed "a change in bookkeepers" for the slip up.

Nicholas J. Gaston, proprietor of Old New Orleans was not available for comment on the $6954.61 lien against the establishment for 1944-1946 levies.

A lien for $3,452.26 for 1945-46 taxes was lodged against the Fussell-Young Ice Cream Co., 1310 Wisconsin ave. nw. Ford Young, company executive, would not comment.

Other Liens Filed

Others against whom liens were filed were William Chilton, 1717 P st. nw., $650.10, on 1947 income; Berndon Services, Inc., 930 F st. nw., $461.56, for 1946 withholding tax; William J. and Marian L. Burford, 1220 Buchanan st. ne., $922.31, for 1945 income; Ronald Lovell, 3647 New Hampshire ave. nw., $619.81 for 1945 income; Charles M. Grace, c/o Leo DeOrsay, National Savings & Trust Building, $1,574.08, for 1946 income; Northeast Management Co., no address, $2,721.25, for 1947 income; Charles Bien, 2520 14th st. nw., $692.34, for 1946 income; Ambrose Caliver, 1210 Lamont st. nw., $792.02, for 1946 income.

Board Asks Playground For Negroes

Recreation Body Holds Park View Can't Be Set Up As a 'Mixed Unit'

The Board of Recreation yesterday voted to recommend that the Park View Playground, Warder and Otis sts. nw., "be designated as a Negro unit" in the District's recreation system.

The recommendation added, however, that "so long as the adjacent school remains white, the playground be used by white children during school hours."

Board Chairman Harry Wender stressed that the board has no authority to designate the playground as a "mixed unit," open to both white and Negro children at the same time, although several citizens groups have urged such action.

He pointed out that most of the children in the immediate area are Negroes and said he believed the adjacent Park View Elementary School will soon be used for Negro children.

The board's recommendation will be passed on to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. One board member, Mrs. Alice Hunter, dissented.

At its regular monthly meeting yesterday the board also:

(1) Voted to ask the District Commissioners why they have denied a Recreation Department request for the use of property in the vicinity of the Dennison School for playground purposes.

(2) Recommended that the Rose Park playground be continued for the use of Negro children; the lower part of the Happy Hollow be continued as Negro, and the upper level as white until the nearby Kalorama playground shelter house for white children is built; that the Rosedale, Sherwood, New York ave. and Hoover playgrounds be continued for use of white children.

(3) Approved preliminary drawings for shelter houses at Watts Branch, Fort Greble, Kalorama and Ridge playgrounds.

The board is not scheduled to meet again until September.

Alexandria To Strive for Added Taxes

The Alexandria City Council last night approved a new method of taxing personal property that would add at least $100,000 annually to city revenue.

If the State Department of Taxation approves the council's action, the new method will be put into effect next year.

Chief changes from the present method are a simplification of the tax form and authorization for the Commissioner of Revenue to collect revenue from those who fail to make returns or who make returns they know are incorrect.

Property Separated

The new method separates personal property into two tax forms, one for business and professional property and the other for household effects.

In cases of false returns or failure to file, the assessed value of personal property of home owners would be fixed at ten per cent of the assessed value of their homes. For those who rent their homes, the assessed value would be set at 50 per cent of annual rent.

The council acted after receiving the report of a survey conducted by the Bureau of Public Administration of the University of Virginia. This showed that in 1947 only 23 people in the city reported personal property, including automobiles, worth over $2500.

Newcomers Do Better

Contrary to popular belief however, the survey showed that apartment dwellers and other newcomers to the city are more faithful in paying personal property taxes than are the old residents.

The bureau concluded that "the enforcement of the personal property tax is seriously inadequate."

The council also passed an ordinance providing for a $5,250,000 bond issue for the construction of schools, roads, sewers and recreational facilities. The council had indicated its approval of this bond issue last spring.

Arlington Board May Act Soon on Court House Plan

The Arlington County Board may act on Saturday on a proposal to expand courthouse facilities.

Before the board is a proposal submitted last week by County Manager A. T. Lundberg to spend $465,000 to construct a complete north wing for the courthouse.

The board did not act on the proposal because a full membership was not present for the meeting. Lundberg explained yesterday that the proposed wing was part of a program to modernize and expand county facilities at the courthouse, now badly overcrowded.

Other parts of the plan call for construction of a third floor on the south wing of the present structure at an estimated cost of $135,000, and reconstruction of the center portion of the courthouse.

$600,000 Deficit Threatens Capital Transit Unless PUC Raises Fare, Witness Declares

Approval of Proposed Rates Would Provide Operating Income of $1,800,000 in Year

Capital Transit will go into the red for $600,000 by next summer unless the Public Utilities Commission grants its request for an increase in fares, a company spokesman declared yesterday.

On the other hand, if granted the higher fares, Capital Transit will be enabled to produce an operating income of $1,800,000 by next July.

The specter of the deficit and the bright promise of a working income were held out by J. E. Heberle who, as vice president and comptroller, is the chief fiscal officer of Capital Transit. He made his forecasts at an open hearing before the Public Utilities Commission at the District Building.

The hearing was called to consider Capital Transit's request to raise streetcar and bus fares as follows: weekly passes, from $1.50 to $1.85; cash fare, from 10 cents to 15 cents. Tokens, now out, would be returned at two for 25 cents.

PUC Approved 7% Return

Heberle was on the witness stand for most of the day, going into great detail to substantiate the transit outfit's application for a boost in the rates.

He made it clear that even the new rates would permit the company to make only a maximum of 7½ per cent, which the PUC in 1945 declared to be a fair and reasonable return on the transit corporation's capital investment of around 30 million dollars. Actually, to maintain proper confidence in the company and to attract investors, CTC should be permitted to attain an operating income of 10 per cent, Heberle declared.

The 7½ per cent figure represents the income accruing to the company after all operating expenses have been paid, but before payment of interest on outstanding bonds. During the calendar year of 1947, Heberle pointed out, the company went in the hole for $90,000 after paying the interest on its bonds.

Fare Raise Wiped Out

Since January 1, 1947, according to Heberle, Capital Transit has operated with "grossly inadequate earnings, despite the increase in fares granted the company in May of that year. The anticipated increased revenue from that fare hike was wiped out, Heberle said, by the increase in wages given employes in October of 1947 by an arbitration board.

"We have instituted all of the savings that can be reasonably made and our sole remaining recourse is to an increase in the rates of fare," Heberle insisted.

Opponents of the increase in fares will be given their opportunity to speak out at the hearing today, which begins at 10, after company representatives are cross-examined by intervenors for the public.

James H. Flanagan, PUC chairman, yesterday ruled that three local organizations would be permitted to intervene and thereby have the right to crossexamine witnesses and call up their own. He recognized the Federation of Citizens Associations, Americans for Democratic Action, and American Veterans Committee.

The PUC chairman would not recognize as intervenor the Association to Oppose the Transit Fare Raise until its attorney, Alvin Gordon, presents authority from the participant groups the organization claims to represent.

Flanagan also turned down a request by George A. Corbin, representing the Federation of Citizens Association, that the hearings be delayed until November and that meanwhile the fares be raised to 12 cents, weekly passes to $1.65, and tokens be sold at 5 for 55 cents.

Spokesmen for a score of local civic organizations have indicated they will testify at today's session.

WOMEN PICKET TROLLEY OFFICE—Protesting proposed fare increases by the Capital Transit Co., members of the Washington Committee for Consumer Protection picket the firm's downtown office, 1416 F st. nw. ## Man's Body Washes Up From Potomac

The body of an unidentified man, about 60 years old, last night was found washed up on the Maryland shore of the Potomac, opposite Colonial Beach.

Maryland State police at Waldorf said the man had probably been in the water since Monday night or Tuesday morning.

About 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighing about 160 pounds, the man had reddish hair, heavy gray eyebrows, and an apparently broken right toe, police said. He wore steel-rimmed glasses and was dressed in brown trousers and loafer shoes, a white shirt and white socks and blue tie, which bore the label of The Mode, 11th and F sts. nw.

As he was fully clothed, police suggested that he might have fallen from a river steamer.

Airport Seeks Eviction of Air Transport

National Airport officials once again are trying to oust a guest no longer welcome, the Military Air Transport Service.

B. H. Griffin, airport administrator, has prepared a series of memos for top officials which maintain that the military's facilities are impeding expansion plans of the airport.

One memo was directed yesterday to Griffin's "boss," Civil Aeronautics Administrator Delos Wilson Rentzel. However, Griffin denied a report published yesterday that he had asked for intervention by Secretary of Commerce Sawyer.

Airport officials maintain that the permit granted by the CAA to the military, entitling them to establish facilities at National, has expired. It was granted for the duration and six months, with the proviso that military operations would not interfere with commercial transportation.

Five Hangars Being Built

National Airport is now engaged in a multi-million dollar expansion program, which includes construction of five new hangars and a 126-foot addition to the terminal. Airport officials fear that MATS flights will preclude full use of the new hangars and adjacent runways.

Then too, congestion at the civilian terminal has necessitated use of the military terminal for overseas passengers of five commercial airlines. This system of divided authority has proved unsatisfactory, some airport officials say.

Moreover, airport officials maintain that development of air cargo transportation has been hampered by lack of space for appropriate facilities.

Would Delay U. S. Officials

However, MATS claims it has no place to move. "Actual tests," according to one spokesman, indicates it takes only 20 minutes to drive from the White House to National Airport but 50 minutes to Andrews Field. And 50 minutes, they say, is too long for the vast number of Government and military officials flying in and out of Washington.

A MATS spokesman also stated that the military occupies but a small portion of the field, though it turns out "a lot of business." The last six months 47,676 military, Government, and civilian personnel were handled at the MATS terminal, the spokesman reported.

Zone Breaches Face Action in Montgomery

A large but unknown number of persons in Montgomery County violating the zoning ordinance may soon face criminal prosecution, it was revealed yesterday.

Steps leading to a crackdown on such violators were discussed yesterday by key nearby Maryland officials meeting with the Montgomery County Commissioners in Rockville.

J. Bond Smith, counsel to the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, said officials have "winked" at zoning infractions in recent years due to crowded wartime living conditions.

Smith cited as violations the cases of several families living in a single family residence and persons operating a business in a residential area. "There are a great many such cases," he said.

Besides the county commissioners, officials attending the conference included: Chairman Dwight Galt of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission; Commissioner Clarence Keyser of the planning commission, and Chairman Louis A. Gravelle of the Montgomery Board of Zoning Appeals.

After the two-hour conference, the group named a committee which would report before September 15 on methods of obtaining a zoning enforcement official.

F. Barnard Welsh, counsel to the county commissioners, spoke against sweeping enforcement of zoning laws without a survey to show possible need for rezoning certain properties now illegally used.

A smiliar conference is scheduled for next Tuesday with the Prince Georges County Commissioners in Upper Marlboro.

In other actions, the Montgomery Commissioners yesterday:

Transferred responsibility for the Montgomery County animal shelter from the health department to Dr. Robert E. Gibbs, county veterinarian.

Created a new post of public health administrator and approved appointment of Sidney I. Wolfson, health officer of Dover, N. J., to the position.

Took under advisement a proposal by Board President Brooke Johns that an inspector by appointed to visit periodically all county nursing homes.

Approved a request by Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission for guarantee of two million dollars in bonds to be issued for water mains and sewer construction.

Lexington, Va., July 13 (AP).—Dr. George Bolling Lee, grandson of Gen. Robert E. Lee and a prominent New York gynecologist, died early today in New York City.

Dr. Lee, who was 76, fell at his home in New York last week and broke his hip. His death came rather unexpectedly in a New York hospital, where he had been reported resting comfortably.

The body will be brought here for funeral services at 11 a. m. Friday in Robert E. Lee Memorial Church. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. Theodore H. Evans, rector of St. Paul's Memorial Episcopal Church of Charlottesville.

Burial will follow in the family crypt in Lee Chapel on the Washington and Lee University campus, where rest the remains of Gen. Robert E. Lee and other members of the Lee family.

Dr. Lee was born in Lexington in 1872, a son of Gen. William Henry Fitzhugh Lee and Mary Tabb Lee. He was graduated from Washington and Lee in 1893.

Soon after receiving his medical degree from the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Columbia University in 1896, Dr. Lee began practicing surgery in New York City, becoming prominent in the field of gynecology.

The body will be accompanied to Lexington by his widow and two children, Miss Mary Walker Lee and Robert E. Lee, 4th, the latter a student at Washington and Lee.

Pools May Spread Polio, Experts Say

New York, July 13 (U.P.)—Eleven experts agreed unanimously today that public swimming pools may be a source of infantile paralysis infection and should be closed down during an epidemic of the disease.

These experts, who represented various sections of the United States and some foreign countries, expressed their belief during a panel discussion at the first international poliomyelitis conference, sponsored by the national Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

(Dr. James G. Cumming, communicable diseases officer here, last night declared the conference experts' recommendations may cause the District Health Department to "reexamine" its policy on the matter.

(In past infantile paralysis epidemics here, notably in 1944 and 1945, the Department "did not feel it necessary to order the closing of swimming pools," said Dr. Summing. The possibility of polio infection from swimming, he declared, "has long been controversial."—Editor's note.)

Swimming Fatigue a Factor

The conference authorities took their stand on a question from the floor on whether children should be permitted to go into swimming pools while a polio epidemic is in progress. The late Franklin D. Roosevelt came down with polio after a swim.

One by one, the experts raised their hands, indicating their answer that the pools should be closed down.

They included: Drs. Rustin McIntosh of Columbia University; Irvine McQuarrie, University of Minnesota; David Bodian, Johns Hopkins University; Fritz Buchtal, University of Copenhagen; Waldo E. Nelson, Temple University, Philadelphia; Harold K. Faber, Stanford University; Gordon M. Martin, Mayo Clinic; Lewis J. Pollock, Northwestern University; W. Ritchie Russell, Oxford, England; Robert Ward, New York University, and Birger Kaada, Oslo University.

The doctors said that there was danger not only that the disease would be contracted from the water, but that the activity and resultant fatigue involved in swimming would make the child more ill and extend possible paralysis.

Exercise Highly Dangerous

Dr. Russell particularly stressed the fatigue angle, saying he had evidence to show that physical activity after onset of the disease contributes importantly to the severity of the paralysis.

"Once the headache and sore throat have begun," he said, "extreme physical activity is almost suicidal."

"Even if the patient continues merely average activity," he said, "it is highly dangerous." He pointed out that the degree and extent of paralysis resulting corresponds almost exactly to the amount of activity indulged in by the patient.

Dr. Russell emphasized the importance of the generally accepted theory: Mothrs should put to bed immediately any child who begins to run a fever, complain of sore throat, or show signs of stomach disturbance during the polio season.

Growth Rate Change Makes Child Susceptible

New York, July 13 (AP).—Discovery that certain changes in the rate of growth make children more likely to catch infantile paralysis was reported today to the first International Polio Conference.

The study, at the University of Minnnesota, was made on about 200 children who had infantile paralysis, abut 200 of their brothers and sisters and 600 of their playmates.

Among those who had polio, nearly 70 per cent had within the previous year or 13 months shown the growth change. They had slowed down and tended to veer to a thinner type.

Among the other 800, who had no infantile paralysis, this growth change appeared in only about 25 per cent. It was emphasized that the growth change was not a normal slowdown such as all children have from time to time, but a pronounced change in basis shape, such as chunky to average, or average to long and lean.

The doctors who made the study warned that feeding a child to ward off polio will not work because feeding seems not to be the cause of the growth shift.

The study was made by Drs. Berry Campbell, John Galligan, Walter Lueck, Wayne LeBien, James F. Bosma, Neil N. Litman, Allan Hemingway, E. B. Brown, G. S. Campbell, J. D. Elam, F. Gollan and M. N. Johnson.

Israel Discussion Slated

Israel and the Middle East will be discussed at a meeting at 8:30 p. m. Friday at the Arlington Methodist Church, Glebe rd. and South 8th st., Arlington, Va. The Rev. C. Fred Williams, pastor of Clarendon Methodist Church, who recently returned from a meeting of the American Christian Palestine Committee at French Lick, Ind., will be the speaker.

Doctor Studies Polio Agreement

DR. JAMES G. CUMMING, communicable disease officer, said last night that the District Health Department may have to "reexamine" its policy of not closing swimming pools during infantile paralysis epidemics. This possibility comes as the of the first international polio myelitis conference in New York at which eleven experts agreed swimming pools may be a source of polio infection

2 Wounded 'Robbery Victims' Turn Out to Have Been in Fight

This is the case of the double description and it just goes to show you shouldn't tell fibs to the cops.

It involves two hospital patients. Howard Wheeler, 22, of 3611 11th st. nw., at Casualty, and Roy Moore, 39, of 465 Delaware ave. sw., at Gallinger.

Moore appeared at Gallinger with severe scalp lacerations. He told detectives he was injured early Sunday when three men robbed him of $8 at 1st and D sts. sw. The detectives jotted down his descriptions of the three men.

The detectives then went to Casualty to pick up another robbery report. This time the "victim," Wheeler, was suffering from stab wounds of the neck. He declared he had been attacked and robbed of $2 by three men at Delaware ave. and Canal st. sw.

He, too, furnished descriptions, and then detectives started adding two and two. One of the descriptions given by Moore fitted Wheeler and vice versa.

Police charged both with making a false robbery report after they admitted they had been in a fight. Each forfeited $25 collateral.

Diplomatic Table Talk

Loy Henderson Slated As U. S. Envoy to India

NEW UNITED STATES AMBASSADOR TO INDIA is to be Loy Henderson who will succeed Henry F. Grady, recently appointed Ambassador to Greece.

I heard this yesterday from a diplomat's wife at a luncheon one of those small informal parties where table talk had as much substance as the delicious cold lobster entree.

MRS. MCNAIR

At present, Director of the Office of Near Eastern and African Affairs of the Department of State, Mr. Henderson was our first Minister to Iraq, previously had served in Moscow, Dublin, Latvia. In Riga he married a warm-smiling, bright young Latvian girl who's now spending the summer at Madison, Conn.

Regarded as one of the State Department's best minds, Loy Henderson went into the diplomatic service a quarter of a century ago after serving with the American Red Cross in France, western Russia, the Baltic states and Germany, following World War I.

FOR SPEAKING his mind freely and often at the United Nations General Assembly, Sir Carl Berendsen, the New Zealand Minister, has had to make periodic visits to a throat specialist for a stubborn irritation that refuses to leave.

Sir Carl, one of the most forthright of delegates, is fearless in standing by his convictions. He puts in grueling hours of work with the Assembly and in New York, and in his job as Minister here. In fact he's worked so hard and so long that he's notified his government that he'll have to quit. As matters stand now the Minister will keep on in New York through August, with relief probably forthcoming then.

TOWN TOPICS:

On a flying visit to this country from Quito is Galo Plaza, President-elect of Ecuador, former Ambassador from his country to the U. S. A.

Senor Plaza is back in New York where he once sold apples during the depression, for a check-up on an arthritic condition, before he takes the oath of office on August 30.

Kathleen Bell, smart daughter of former Undersecretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Daniel W. Bell, is on her way to Switzerland for a job with the State Department in Geneva. She has been with the department four years. In August when her special assignment ends, Kathleen will go to England for a visit before returning home.

Add deb dates: December 29 at the Chevy Chase Club, the debut of Beatrice MacArthur—Muffin to her friends—daughter of Mrs. Littlefield MacArthur and Bowman MacArthur, and great niece of the general.

Mrs. Mesta Fetes Democrats

Philadelphia, July 13 (AP).—A midnight party that ran on, and on, drew the cream of the Democratic National Convention crowd last night. Mrs. George Mesta, Washington's number one party-giver, was the hostess and almost everybody who was anybody was among her 400 or so guests. The party was televised and broadcast.

The satin-upholstered Mirage Room of the sleek and police-guarded Barclay Hotel was full to the bursting point with celebrities: politicians, big names in journalism, radio and at least one movie star. Champagne flowed, waiters hustled around with fancy food and a three-piece band played constantly for the dozen or so couples the dance floor would accommodate.

Former Postmaster General James A. Farley dropped in to pay his respects. Postmaster General Jesse Donaldson and Attorney General Tom Clark represented the Cabinet. National Committee Chairman J. Howard McGrath was surrounded by a gay group.

Former Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins arrived—after her convention address—with several women friends. There was Senator Tom Connally and House Minority Leader Sam Rayburn, both of Texas, and Senators Millard Tydings of Maryland and James E. Murray of Montana. Mrs. Clark Clifford, wife of President Truman's special counsel, dropped in.

Gov. John O. Pastore of Rhode Island—Mrs. Mesta is a delegate from that State—was another guest, and so were former Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Clinton P. Anderson of New Mexico. Edward Arnold of the films attended.

Dinner Honors Peruvian Visitor

THE Ambassador of Peru and Senora de Ferreyros entertained last evening at a small dinner in honor of the Naval Commissioner of Peru, Comdr. Leon de Vivero, who is leaving soon for Lima.

Other guests were Capt. and Mrs. J. Barbero, the First Secretary of Peru and Senora de Fry, the First Secretary of Peru, Fernando Schwalb, the Second Secretary of Peru and Senora de Castro, and Miss Elena Gassros.

For Summer Beauty

By Peggy Preston

MOST of us tend to forget our old established beauty routine in the summer. It's too hot to be bothered with creams and lotions, we tell ourselves. . . . Let's just sit out in the sunshine and let old King Sol do the work for us!

Well, we're right up to a certain point. The sun's rays, carried directly to the skin, can be beneficial. If you are under 25 you can probably take the sun in fairly large doses with little or no harmful effect to your complexion. But if you are out of that age bracket, watch out. No creams or protective makeup bases this summer can mean crows feet and wrinkles next winter.

There are certain summer beauty aids that most of us know are essential. These are, for instance, a sun tan lotion for use on the beach to give protection against painful sunburn; sun glasses to shield the eyes from glare and a light, wide brimmed hat to protect the hair from discoloration.

BUT if you would keep a smooth, fresh skin for fall, you must take further precautions. Never neglect a nightly cleansing of the face and throat with a good, rich cream, no matter how hot or humid the weather. For a more freshening effect, try dipping a pad of cotton into cold water, and form a compress of it by squeezing out all excess water. Apply cream with the pad which picks up dust, surface oil and makeup. Remove cream with tissues. The final step is the use of an iced skin freshener, on a fresh cotton pad, to whisk away the last traces of cleansing cream, leaving your skin clean and cool for the night.

A touch of eye cream at the corners of the eyelids will help scare away the little lines that develop after a long day in the sunshine. And a stiff nightly brushing of the hair will go far to eliminate the dry, brittle effect that comes to tresses which are exposed too long to the ravages of salt water, sun and wind.

If you have definitely decided to forego a makeup base and powder for the summer, then at least use a colorless cream lotion over your sunburn. There are dozens of old, familiar brands on the market, as well as many new ones. Choose one and pat a handful into your skin before you dress for dinner. You'll be surprised how well this simple, inexpensive beauty aid will prevent the persistent drying and flaking of the skin which is always associated with sun and wind burn.

A FEW other pointers for the girl who would be well groomed this summer and fall:

Use wax preparations to remove superfluous hair from arms and legs; a granular pack once a week to remove dry, dead skin; carry a light chiffon scarf and wrap it around your hair whenever you find you will be in the sun for any length of time. In this way the sun and air can reach your scalp, yet the hair will be protected from the drastic rays.

Baby-Sitting Included

Democratic Women Learn How to 'Get Out the Vote'

Philadelphia, July 13 (U.P.).—Those women Democrats are going to get out the feminine vote this fall, even if it takes baby-sitting and other personal services to get the females to the polls.

Over coffee and doughnuts, 250 women delegates and political leaders knocked off from Democratic Convention business today to attend the first session of the party's campaign school.

While the ladies were learning the facts of political life, including the importance of getting out the housewife vote and collecting campaign money, Mrs. Charles W. Tillett, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, served up a few ideas.

The Democrats, said Mrs. Tillett, will extend their "personal services" in this campaign.

"Our aim is to have baby-sitting volunteers ready in every one of the 130,000-odd precincts in the Nation to take over while mothers register and vote," she said. "It will be much bigger than in 1944."

Mrs. Charles F. Brannan, wife of the United States Secretary of Agriculture and one of the speakers, went further. She suggested a "runner" be sent along in every auto on duty shuttling women to registration booths or to the voting polls. Any home chores that couldn't be dropped would be turned over to the runner while mother did her political duty.

It is a "typical feminine clear-the-road tactic," the Cabinet wife said.

Mrs. William H. Davis, national chairman of Women in World Affairs, talked money. "It will take every bit of personal effort and every dollar we can muster to defeat the opposition," she said, urging the delegates to have "no timidity in collecting these dollars."

There was a bit of hard talk addressed to the Republicans. Mrs. Brannan said the GOP was "organized into an efficient and ruthless machine driven by high pressure tacticians and shrewd manipulators."

Other speakers dealt with the ins and outs of effective public speaking, publicity, and facts and figures. Mrs. Tillett promised that "no Democratic or independent door" would go untapped in the campaign.

First Lady Returns To White House

When the President goes to the Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia to make his acceptance speech for the Presidential nomination, he will be accompanied by his wife and daughter. Mrs. Truman and Miss Margaret Truman interrupted their visit to the family home in Independence, Mo., to return to Washington yesterday morning.

President Truman motored over to Silver Spring to greet the First Lady and Margaret when they stepped from the train.

Miss Anne Francine was the guest in whose honor Mr. and Mrs. Roy St. Lewis entertained last evening at a small dinner party at Rancho Rio, their home in Rockville. During the past two weeks, Miss Francine played at the Olney Theater in "Philadelphia Story."

Fall Fashions Feature Skirts Long, Flared

New York, July 13 (INS).—New York designers are being as secretive as Bluebeards.

They're keeping doors locked on new fall styles, prior to the opening of official press showings next week. But a sneak peek through keyholes gives a capsule lowdown on trends.

Moderately flared skirts, plunged to about 11 inches from the floor, look good through the keyhole.

High collars or notched lapel necklines will once again be modish. Collars will range in size and shape from the wide wing-type to the straight, upstanding mandarin versions. High, round and tiny collars with small bow ties in front will be smartly conservative on frocks for every woman.

Shoulders to Slope

Sloped shoulders will be a pick-up from last season. But in most dresses there will be small, flat shoulder padding.

All-around pleats will be featured on some skirts. They will fall, not from a waistband, but from a wide horizontal banding at the hipline.

Skirts will receive their moderate flaring effects from gores, unpressed pleats, tucks, and insets of fullness over the hips.

Slim, three-quarter length sleeves probably will dominate other sleeve types, although the full-length bloused sleeve with turn-back cuffs will be popular.

In sportswear, fabric contrast is a new trend worth watching. Wool or rayon crepe, for instance, will be coupled with gabardine to make unique jacket-dress combinations. Other frocks will feature sheer wool crepe skirts, topped with bodices of rayon crepe. Plaids and checks will be paired with plain fabrics which pick up the principal color in the print.

Coat-Dresses Favored

Coat-dresses again will hit the fashion picture for fall. They are primarily fitted models, with princess coat-dress combinations especially for women with figures slim enough to wear them.

"Back interest" will be present everywhere.

In most cases, skirts with back interest will be almost severely straight and slim in front. Fullness will flare out from a snug-fitting yoke effect over the hips in back. Bustles will make a modified reappearance, and rear hip pockets will be featured on tweedy-type sport skirts.

Back-to-school dresses for the teen set will be patterned after yesteryear. But not as recent a yesteryear as last season's "Gibson Girl" styles. Next fall's version will date back to the 1880's—the period about which Louisa May Alcott wrote in "Little Women."

Plaids will be the most popular fabrics in which the little women of '48 step out. Plaids are to be offered in an expanded range of colors, with dark shades heading the list. They will be, largely, the deep tartan types, or in shades inspired by antique ribbons.

Open Friday evening until nine.

Lemonade Mixture Hurries Cool Drink

It's easy to have quick refreshments this summer if you keep lemonade mix in your refrigerator. Try this de luxe lemonade base suggested by Better Homes & Gardens Magazine.

Combine 2 cups sugar and 2½ cups water. Cook 5 minutes. Cool slightly. Pour over 1 cup mint leaves. Add the juice of 2 oranges and 6 lemons, and the grated peel of 1 orange. Cover and let steep, like tea, for 1 hour. Strain brew into glass container. Label it Lemonade Base, cover and keep in refrigerator—ready to revive and refresh the wilted guest.

Allow 1/3 cup Lemonade Base for each glass. Fill with ice cubes and water. Put a fresh mint sprig in the center of a lemon slice as a floater for each glass. It's pretty, and the mint is nice to sniff as you drink.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Aware That Her Father Is Financially Hard Pressed, Girl Engrossed in Wedding Plans Asks Whether to Insist on Costly Reception

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am to be married this summer to a fine young man of modest income, a college graduate, and my problem is the wedding reception.

Our friends and relatives number in the hundreds, our wedding is to be an evening ceremony in church and then we want a reception.

The church has parlors which could be used for a reception, but I have wanted a reception in a leading hotel or dining place, where champagne could be served, as wouldn't be possible in the church parlors.

Our families are in moderate circumstances and my present plans call for an outlay of nearly one thousand dollars, which my father would provide even though it might hurt; but I wonder if I ought to expect him to spend as much as $400 on a gala reception, when he is paying off a mortgage that is pressing him somewhat.

She'd Spend Savings For Memorable Show

MY FIANCE and I have been trying to save towards a home of our own, and to get it will mean a sacrifice on our parents' part, too; and sometimes I think my elaborate plans are out of line with our circumstances, but even so, I would dip into our savings to have a bang-up wedding and reception.

Jim, my husband-to-be, feels we should have a nice wedding, but show more restraint in expenditure. However, I want my wedding to be lovely, with everything "just so." Incidentally, some people say my plans are "show-off," which mother resents. What do you think? Your advice may mean a lot. E. B.

Foolish Spending Ends in Headache

DEAR E. B.: In view of your circumstances, your elaborate plans make so little sense, when weighed in terms of good taste and good judgment, that one hardly knows how to begin to clear your head.

Obviously your father is not in a position to spend $400 on a gala reception; and this, plus the fact that you and Jim are facing lean rations in marriage, too, means that a grand-scale send-off would be a preposterous flourish, from which all of you would waken next day in somewhat the plight of Cinderella after the clock struck 12.

Emily Post's "Etiquette," now in it's 71st printing and completely rewritten to meet modern changes in forms of living, says in effect (see page 190 of the 1947 edition): Have a simple wedding if your means are small. Nice people don't strain for effect not in keeping with their way-of-life.

Read Emily Post; She Knows Ropes

MRS. POST packs 75 pages with pointers on perfect planning of all kinds of weddings, to suit every purse, and you could study her round-up with profit, taking special note of her remarks (see page 191) about a friendly charming substitute for a formal reception, to wit: the custom of bride and groom waiting after the recessional in the vestibule of the church to greet and receive the good wishes of the company.

This suggestion of Mrs. Post's seems to me a vast improvement upon your idea of staging a make-do reception in the church parlors where the effect of family hospitality just couldn't be achieved; and also I think it a more praiseworthy courtesy than throwing a champagne party in a public place, when the family is financially hard pressed.

In the region from which you write, evening weddings in formal dress are a tradition, the reason being that your summer days are so oven-hot that people there choose to wait on "the cool of the evening" to congregate for major social functions; but an elaborate shindig after the church ceremony isn't necessary. Cake and wine at home for the wedding party, members of the immediate families and closest friends is quite sufficient; and my advice is to plan accordingly. M. H.

Women 'Frittering Away Power at Polls,' Says Susan B. Anthony

The American woman movement, which once packed political dynamite, has collapsed because women have frittered away their power at the polls, Susan B. Anthony 2d, grandniece of the nineteenth century's champion of women's rights declares.

"The crusade for women's rights, launched with a shout a century ago, has subsided to clubroom murmurings and a few pieces of commemorative statuary" Miss Anthony says in "We Women Throw Our Votes Away," in the current Saturday Evening Post. "The stupid tradition that political-party action is unwomanly has been kept alive by the inept tactics of major women's organizations. There are exceptions, but most clubs shrink from practice politics . . . American women haven't formed a voting block, nor have they joined political parties in enough strength to the men's game. Consequently they haven't won their economic and legal rights'.

If the 48,000,000 women in America voted together, "we would make the much feared veterans vote look like political popcorn," Miss Anthony declares.

"We probably could name the next President of the United States," the Post author says. "But we won't. Women have had trifling influence, if any, on decisions made this summer at the Republican and Democratic conventions."

Women have done little with the ballot to write "equal pay for equal work" into law, Miss Anthony says. Housewives have no more economic independence now than they did 100 years ago. Women still meet formidable obstacles in entering the professions. Women are still the victims of old, discriminatory property and civil rights laws. And they are losing out in public education, their traditional field, according to Miss Anthony, who has spent eight years in research on the status of women.

She proposes that women get into political parties with the men, because that is where issues are decided.

She urges a new woman movement campaign for adequate and universal nursery schools for preschool children and co-operative housecleaning services, and prepared-meal services that would deliver hot cooked dinners to homes of double-earner families. Another reform should be professional shopping services; the average woman is just as unskilled in buying as the average man, and the work wastes her time.

"These are basic steps to be taken if women are to be free for development as politically potent citizens and intelligent wives and mothers. A new woman movement should not ask identical rights with men. It would ask for rights predicated on the fact that most women are mothers, or expect to be. This means that the Government must insure women's right to have children, through maternity benefits. Families shouldn't have to go broke when a working wife takes time off for child bearing. Nor should women have to worry about job security while they are nursing infants."

Exercises Will Aid Stocky Girl in Reducing Her Waistline

By Ida Jean Kain

When the extra calories homestead at the waistline, other curves are crowded out—particularly on the short-waisted figure. Waistline whittlers are needed, but short, stocky girls should take as little exercise as they can get away with—just enough to keep the midriff 7 to 8 inches smaller than the bust measurement. The idea back of exercise is to get a smaller waist, not a bigger appetite.

Today's calisthenics are planned to keep the stocky girl's waist clearly defined and the muscular girdle in good tone. Coupled with a bit of calorie clipping, these exercises take one-half inch off the waist in a couple of weeks.

First, get supple . . .

Position: Standing, feet apart, arms arched overhead.

Movement: Stretch slim through the middle and bend to the side, back to position, and bend to the other side, always keeping the uppull through the midriff. Six times to alternate sides will be enough for beginners. There is nothing to be gained by making the waistline muscles sore. The points to be watched in this exercise: keep the shoulders relaxed, center the action through the middle of the figure, and don't let the hips jut out to the side as you bend.

Add resistance . . .

Position: Standing in doorway with one side pressed against the door frame and with hands gripping the frame above head and at shoulder height, feet together.

Movement: Pull up with the lower abdominal muscles and hold hips tipped under. Slowly pull away from the door frame and bend to other side. Keep it up until a strong pull is felt along the waistline muscles. Come back to position and repeat three times. Change sides and bend to other side. Later the exercise can be repeated a dozen times on each side with a pause for relaxing between each six counts.

To tone the muscular girdle . . .

Position: Lying on back on floor, arms down at sides, knees bent, feet on floor. This position relieves all strain from abdominal organs.

Movement: Draw both knees toward chest, at the same time pressing the small of the back against the floor. The pull should start with the lower abdominal muscles. Repeat 12 times, later relaxing after every second exercise. Otherwise, the tendency is to rush through one exercise after another, and that is a waste of nervous energy.

Now relax—clasp hands around knees and "rest" in this position. It's a good plan to make a point of relaxing after every second exercise.

BETTY CROCKER'S PIE CRUST IN A PACKAGE! Just add water. Crisp, tender, flaky pie crust . . . pie crust like Betty Crocker's . . . for apple, lemon, every kind of pie. Crustquick is Betty Crocker's new pie crust mix. Gold Medal Flour, salt, pure shortening, blended according to pastry method perfected by Betty Crocker and her General Mills staff. Try Crustquick!

'Bad Words' Are Child's Way of Acting Big

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

When the child is four, or thereabouts, and wanders farther from the family doorstep, he is certain to pick up some "bad" words.

It is inevitable that children will hear new and tantalizing words. If they try them out and discover that some can cause the family to shudder and cast deploring glances at each other—or snicker furtively—these are the words they tend to repeat.

The parent should be cautious about her reception of these shocking words. She must know that as words they are relatively meaningless to the child. She must recognize, too, how seductive they can become, if the child finds their use adds up to a real adventure in disturbing the parent.

Profanity consists of words. Quite often they represent pure imitation of others and a desire to talk big in order to be big. Seldom do they illustrate a child's depravity. It is acts which are censorable, not just words.

Of course, it wouldn't be natural for a parent to welcome ugly words on the lips of an innocent child. There must be explanations of why these are ugly and how distressing they sound to persons who know their meaning. Children should know that adults in general deplore the use of profanity by children, and that other mothers may refuse him the companionship of their own children unless he can control his language.

But dramatic behavior such as washing a child's mouth out with soap, or drastic punishments, merely lend allure to the words. All this is exciting and incites the child to further use—if not at home, then elsewhere.

Better to accept that words are adventures, that children copy what they hear from other children, and from daddies, uncles, big brothers and many others. While we make it plain that such words are as unbecoming as garments unsuited to their size, we do not give them the idea that their speech indicates an enchanting wickedness. If they talk that way, we say, "Not in my presence," and banish them, or if the word is an accidental slip we try to be accidentally deaf.

Ask Anne — About Finish For Leatherette

I have a kitchen table with red plastic top and red leatherette chairs to match. Will you tell me how I can clean, protect, and preserve the leather on these chairs as there are small children about and they are continually climbing in or putting sticky hands on them. Also, if there is any kind of finish I can put on the table top to prevent scratches? I have tried waxing, but does not do a lot of good.
R. J. N.

When soiled, wash the leatherette with a mild soap and warm water. Use a well-wrung-out soft cloth or sponge to apply the soap and don't allow the leatherette to become really wet. After washing, buff dry immediately with a soft cloth and apply several thin coats of wax, buffing each coat thoroughly before applying the next.

There doesn't seem to be anything which can be used on plastic to prevent scratches. If scratches should appear, going over the top with a good furniture wax will help to make them less noticeable.

Can you tell me how I can remove grease spots from my husband's sun tan Army pants?
F. C.

Spots of heavy grease, such as road oil or axle grease, can often be removed by the following method: Scrape off excess with dull knife or spatula. Rub lard into spot, leave it a little while, then scrape off. Repeat, until lard will pick up no more of the grease. Then either sponge with dry cleaning fluid or, if washable, launder in very hot water. With greasy washable pants, soaking in very hot soapsuds, then laundering in fresh hot soapsuds, is advisable. Rinse afterward in several very hot waters.

A baby's innerspring mattress was given to us in good condition except for a strong odor. It has been stored for a good many years. I have washed it with soap and water, bleach and water, sprayed it with DDT, poured deodorant on it and have had it in the sun for three days, still the odor remains. Is there anything short of having the mattress restuffed that I can do to remove the odor? If not, would it be possible for me to restuff and recover the mattress myself? R. C.

Since the odor has been in the mattress for so long, I'm afraid it's there for good. As for recovering and restuffing it yourself, that is a real undertaking for a nonprofessional without adequate equipment. And having it done professionally would come near costing as much as a new mattress since so little of the old will be usable. So, it seems, the most sensible solution would be to abandon the mattress. The only other suggestion I might have would be to completely enclose the mattress in one of the plastic mattress protecting covers which zip shut. The odor should not penetrate this covering and might make the mattress usable.

NO MORE BABY FURNITURE FOR MARLENE . . .

But a bargain for some Post reader

Enjoying a Walt Disney book with her mother is Marlene Collinet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Collinet, 3404 Gunston Road, Parkfairfax. Marlene's a big girl now, old enough to give up her crib and the other furniture she used as a baby.

That furniture's serving some other child now, because Mrs. Collinet took a wise step. She advertised Marlene's crib, a chest of drawers and a wardrobe in The Washington Post, and sold all three items within two days. The buyer was glad to find those articles at a reduced price and the Collinets were happy to have the $50 the sale brought them.

Post readers are anxious to buy your used baby equipment. Get cash for that crib, carriage or playpen stored in your attic. Advertise it tomorrow. To place your notice call NAtional 4200 and ask for an ad writer.

Three Planes Believed Bound For Israel Detained by U. S.

By The Associated Press

Detention of three Constellation transport planes at Millville, N. J., and at Rome, Italy, on suspicion they were to be flown to Palestine to join Israel's fighting forces was reported yesterday to the State Department, officials said.

Two of the planes were held by customs agents at Millville and the other was detained at Rome on request of the State Department, it was stated.

An embargo, which went into effect last December 5, bans the shipment of munitions of all kinds, including aircraft, to Palestine and neighbor Arab lands.

Officials said all three planes came from Burbank, Calif., and were registered as owned by a firm whose president they identified as I. R. Shindler. This was the name given by the pilot of a fourth plane—a former Army B-17 bomber—which was detained yesterday at Halifax, Nova Scotia, by Canadian authorities. Eight other men were aboard the B-17.

The nine occupants of the B-17 detained at Nova Scotia asserted they were on a navigational training flight when they were forced down. They specifically denied they were Israeli recruits.

Crew Works on B-17 Impounded by Canada

Halifax, N. S., July 13 (U.P.).—The nine-man crew of an impounded Flying Fortress, which made an emergency landing here yesterday without required documents, worked on their plane today, hoping for Canadian permission to fly back to New York.

Customs and immigration authorities placed the fate of the battered war-surplus B-17 before the Federal Department of External Affairs.

Jimenez Still Runs Panama As Assembly Ouster Fails

Panama City, Panama, July 13 (U.P.).—President H. Enrique A. Jimenez was still in control of Panama tonight despite action of the National Assembly ousting him and naming Henrique Obarrio as the new President.

Col. Jose A. Remon, who as chief of the national police, heads Panama's armed forces, announced he would not support the "new order" which the assembly sought to set up last night by a 26 to 25 ouster vote. Panama has no army nor navy.

Remon informed Obarrio at 4 a. m., after night-long conferences, that he was still supporting Jimenez. This appeared to have nullified the coup.

Panama City and the rest of the country remained outwardly calm but there was an undercurrent of expectancy and the air was full of rumors.

The National Assembly, holding constituent powers until August 1, when it is slated to revert to a purely legislative role, voted to oust Jimenez and to void the contested presidential elections held last May.

Ouster Illegal, Embassy Here Says

The Panamanian Embassy said here last night that the National Assembly's ouster of President Enrique Adolfo Jimenez is "an unusual, illegal procedure."

"The judicial power, the military forces and the immense majority of the country has not approved of this movement and are backing the government," the embassy said in a statement.

Rabies Inoculation Order Protested by 50 Residents

The District Commissioners yesterday were asked to either rescind or postpone their order, now in effect, for compulsory inoculation of dogs against rabies.

Robert W. McMillan, an attorney, who filed the request in behalf of some 50 area residents, claimed the inoculation program was a "useless and totally ineffective and expensive endeavor" on the part of the District government.

John Russell Young, president of the Board of Commissioners, laid the plea before Health Officer George C. Ruhland in a morning conference.

Emerging from the meeting, Dr. Ruhland recalled that when smallpox vaccinations were first introduced people opposed them in fear they'd develop "horns."

Later in the day the Health Department revealed that 927 dogs were immunized when antirabies vaccination stations were opened throughout the city Monday.

The stations will operate on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, from 4 to 6 p. m., for the next five weeks. All dog owners are urged to have their dogs vaccinated free at one of these stations as soon as possible, Chief Health Department Veterinarian R. R. Ashworth said.

Hacker Is Held For Grand Jury In Woman's Death

Frank Jones, 20-year-old Chevy Chase (Md.) taxi driver, was held for action of an Arlington County grand jury yesterday on a manslaughter charge in the death of Miss Audrey Martin last March.

Hearing on the charge was held in Arlington County Court before Judge Harry Thomas. The next regular term of circuit court is in October.

Police said Miss Martin, who worked as a waitress and lived at 5534 Wessing lane, Bethesda, was riding with Jones about 2:30 a. m. March 28, when the cab Jones was driving crashed into the side of the Cherrydale Cement Co. building at 3436 Lee hgwy. in Arlington. Miss Martin was pronounced dead at Arlington Hospital.

In Hawaii It's The 'Old Look'

The Washington Post

MRS. BLAKE CLARK, beauteous wife of the well-known writer, shows Ad Club members yesterday how the hula is done in Hawaii. Make no mistake about her costume. It has nothing to do with the "new look." It's an authentic copy of a dress made for Queen Emma of Hawaii in 1865 and is known as the "holoku," which means "run-stop." It was named by natives who were fascinated by the sewing machines of early missionaries in the islands

Joseph Kaufman Heads Judaism Council Unit

Joseph D. Kaufman, retired president of the D. J. Kaufman Clothing Store, yesterday was named chairman of the board of directors of the Washington Chapter of the American Council for Judaism.

Other officers elected were Gilbert Hahn, vice chairman; Wallace Luchs, jr., treasurer, and Alfred M. Lilienthal, secretary.

On the Town

LIFE in the great outdoors, even if it's on a hotel roof, has its little emergencies. No one knows that any better than Sammy Seymour, the batoneer of the Roger Smith roof garden . . . An example of what can happen came up the other night when a Greek organization took over the place to raise funds for medical equipment for Greece. The evening was rolling along when one of the organizers handed Sammy some Greek numbers to be played. Of course Sammy couldn't read the words, and it's lucky that musical notes are an international language or the boys wouldn't have been able to play the songs, either. The name of one was "Po! Po! Po!" (Pronounced Pooey Pooey Pooey, or any other way you'd like to twist it.) At any rate, the party went off well and the money for the equipment was raised.

* * * *

One of Sammy's main complaints about the nature boy surroundings is that fire engines have a habit of whizzing by on Pennsylvania ave. right in the middle of a number. Now fires do have to be put out, but Seymour's sorrow is that the sirens are never on key. Perhaps Petrillo could do a bit of organizing.

Some odd song requests find their way to the bandstand. A couple were for "The Jolson Story" and "Kiss Me Once, Kiss Me Twice" ("Anniversary Waltz" and "It's Been a Long, Long Time.") Sammy likes to play requests, but his third correspondence course lesson in clairvoyance won't be in for a few weeks.

Disregarding rain, odd requests and fire engines, there's a lot of fun to work on the roof. Nothing gives Sammy a bigger kick than to play the wedding march or "Happy Birthday" for one of the patrons, and the customers all like the songs of the trio, Hugh, Nini and Sammy. Of course, the fresh air is nice, too, and the boys usually wind up the season bursting with enough health to carry them through the smoke-filled rooms they work in in winter.

IT'S orange blossoms for Kathleen Quinn, vocalist with Cass Harrison in the Wardman Park Metronome Room. The bridegroom is George F. O'Neill, a New York real estate man. They'll be tying the knot today. Lots of luck, Kathleen; you're a great trouper.

A NOTE of thanks to Barnee Breeskin for writing this column while we were out chasing a golf ball around the hills of Pennsylvania. Speaking of vacations, we had to act like the traditional busman and see what was happening in the night spots of other cities. The main difference is that prices are definitely lower. One spot we hit served the better drinks along with top notch music from a combo for 55 cents. The Coral Lounge in New Castle served a half pound hamburger for a very low price.

The war must be over for sure, because cab drivers in Pittsburgh are hopping for fares, and we even had one trot into a railroad station to check the schedule for us, a bit of kindness that left us nothing short of shocked for several days. Some of the restaurants and clubs are serving that prewar extra cup of coffee gratis. Yes, the night club world is changing.

Rear Admiral R. H. Cruzen, senior member of the Navy review and sentence clemency board, will address members of the Volunteer Naval Reserve Brigade at the Reserve Training Center, Naval Gun Factory, at 8 p. m. today.

Greenbelt Council To Decide Gobbel Leave Pay Status

The retroactive vacation pay status of James T. Gobbel, Greenbelt town manager who leaves his post July 19, will be decided by the Town Council at a special meeting at 8 p. m. Friday.

Gobbel has applied for vacation pay based on leave accumulated since he first began serving the town as a part-time manager in 1944, but several residents have protested any proposal to grant him retroactive leave beyond his service as full-time manager. According to the town manager, he is due to be pai dfor a total of 98 days.

Mayor Thomas J. Canning said yesterday the town had received a ruling from Town Attorney John S. White upholding Gobbel's claim on the ground that a resolution adopted by the council in 1946 gave the manager "all leave benefits given regular employes of the town."

Canning said a check of personnel records would be necessary to determine the amount of leave Gobbel has accumulated in the event the council upholds the 1946 resolution.

Printer Voices Opinion Of Nuclear Report

The General Electric Company recently asked its printers to run off some booklets describing the giant atom-smashers which it is now manufacturing.

When the booklets arrived, G-E officials wondered whether there had been a typographical error in the heading or whether one of the printers had turned commentator. The caption read:

"Unclear Physics."

In similar vein, it's been at least two weeks since I last saw this country referred to as the "Untied States".

TREASURER'S REPORT

Twelve-year-old Minna Newman of 3834 Garrison st. nw. tells me that the girls in her neighborhood recently held a July Festival for the benefit of Children's Hospital.

Ten-year-old Jean French was Queen of the festival, and her train-bearers were Suzanne Stafford and Ellen Smith, both 8 years old.

Joan Colbert, 9, was crown-bearer, and her sister, Carol, 6, was flower girl. Minna carried the Queen's bouquet.

The girls charged adult spectators 10 cents admission and let the children in for half-price. The sum of $2.10 was raised by the show, and is being duly forwarded to the hospital.

Out in Arlington, Buckingham youngsters found another way to help Children's Hospital.

With school out for the summer, Bobby Qualls, 9, and Susan Letzler, 8, opened a "store." Stock in trade was an interesting collection of used toys.

One of the grownups suggested that money raised from the sale of the toys be given to the hospital, whereupon the enterprising storekeepers quickly fashioned a sign saying: "Auction sale. All money goes to Children's Hospital."

The sign attracted not only customers but other children bearing more toys. Patty McChesney and Sarah Scheleen, both aged 9; Kenny Letzler, 4; Kay McChesney, 8; Ellen Friedman, 7, and several others whose names I couldn't get pitched in and went to work.

Most toys were priced at 1 cent, with top quotation for choice items ranging up to 15 cents.

A total of $4.60 was raised for the hospital—and many a Buckingham mother sighed in relief to see bulging toy closets emptied a bit.

I NEED HELP, MEN

For more than a dozen years, I've been trying to work out a practical method for keeping a reserve package of cigarettes in our apartment.

When a fellow runs out over the weekend, it's nice to be able to fall back on the pack he's been saving for a rainy day.

But at our house that doesn't work. I invariably find that my reserve pack has been discovered—and smoked—weeks before.

It doesn't do any good to change hiding places. I've tried the top shelf of my closet, behind the encyclopedia, among the innermost workings of the radio, and (in desperation) even her sewing basket.

It just doesn't do any good. I've gone through more dodges than an alcoholic trying to hide his bottle, but it's no use. She finds them, and smokes them.

Is there any solution? In times of crisis, we men must stick together. Where do you fellows hide your cigarettes?

AIN'T IT THE TRUTH!

David B. Harrison of 900 19th st. nw. muses that what this country needs is a good $5 wedding present.

STICK TO PLANETS, DOC

The press associations recently carried a story about Dr. Roy K. Marshall, director of the Fels Planetarium.

In pointing out that sun spot activity is now at an 11-year peak, Dr. Marshall warned that human behavior is sometimes affected by these disorders. He added that during the last such period, in 1937, "Adolf Hitler started on his destructive plan of world conquest."

Mrs. Ernest D. Seiden of 717 Atlantic ave. se. thinks we'll have to find a better explanation than sun spots for Adolf's behavior.

She reminds us that Hitler started to plan his conquests in 1918, wrote "Mein Kampf" shortly afterward, took over control of Germany in 1934, and marched into Austria in 1938.

You can't argue those dates with Mrs. Seiden—because she lived through those troubled days in Germany.

OVERHEARD

Mrs.: I certainly wouldn't wait for a streetcar; I'd grab a cab.

Mr.: Yes, I guess you would—but you've got a hard-working husband and I haven't.

MOVIE NOTE: In London last week, at a dinner given by J. Arthur Rank, Jean Hersholt presented six Oscars to British technicians. Academy Award-Winner Clemence Dane was among those invited. She had won it for "Vacation from Marriage," and when the Oscar arrived at her house she glanced at it and told the maid: "I didn't order it. Send it back to the store." Then she inspected it more closely, and discovered that this was the prize mentioned in letters she had received from the Motion Picture Academy. She stored it away in the attic . . . Recently, when a new radio was installed in her house, the radio man needed a piece of metal around which to wind the aerial. She retrieved the Oscar, and now it serves as the aerial loop for her radio.

ART DEPT.: When the late Isadora Duncan needed money and started selling some of her possessions, the one thing she was determined to save was the precious bust which Rodin had made of her . . . One day a friend who was visiting Miss Duncan's apartment accidentally brushed against the bust. It fell from the table and was shattered on the floor. The visitor started to wail her apologies . . . "Oh, don't worry about it," Miss Duncan reassured her. "I always told Rodin that life would outlast art."

NEWS DEPT.: Lee Sabinson, producer of "Finian's Rainbow," was in a labor-negotiating session with a representative of Actors Equity. The actor made a statement which the producer deemed offensive—and Sabinson hung a right on his jaw . . . MacKinlay Kantor, whose last assignment for Sam Goldwyn was the story from which "Best Years of Our Lives" was adapted, has been signed by Goldwyn for another movie . . . Ashton Stevens, dean of American critics, has had to return to Passavant Hospital in Chicago . . . Jimmy Gardner, the show-backer who coproduced "Are You With It," is becoming a night club singer. He'll join a quartet that will include Wynn Murray.

DRAMA DEPT.: The venerable Constance Collier attended the London premiere of Sir Alexander Korda's production of "Ideal Husband," in which she appears on the screen for a brief moment . . . When the premiere was over and Miss Collier left the theater, she saw a group of young movie fans, who rushed to her with autograph books and pencils. "You darlings," beamed Miss Collier. "How sweet of you to remember."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Anti-Truman Huddle Revealed

By Drew Pearson

Philadelphia.—The smoke-filled room that put Harry Truman into the White House was Ed Flynn's suite at the Blackstone Hotel in Chicago in 1944. The so-called smoke-filled room "that tried to take Harry Truman out of the White House in 1948" was the club room at the Drake Hotel in Philadelphia. Only it was filled with Coca-Cola bottles rather than cigar smoke.

FLYNN

In Chicago, Mayor Kelly of Chicago, Mayor Hague of Jersey City, Ed Flynn of the Bronx and Bob Hannegan gathered to chart the Truman strategy, and to talk long distance to FDR on his special train en route West.

In Philadelphia, Kelly, Flynn, Hague and Hannegan were all unhappy about Truman's insistence that he run again. But the real plotting against Truman was charted by Bill Ritchie of Nebraska, Harry Carlson of New Hampshire, Barnett Hodes of Chicago, August Scholle of Michigan, Carl Rice of Kansas, Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, George Gooch of Florida, and Jack Kroll of Ohio.

Whereas the pro-Truman bigwigs met late at night and in strictest secrecy at the Blackstone, the anti-Truman plotters at Philadelphia met with half a dozen newsmen banging on the door demanding to be let in. They were not admitted.

Bill Ritchie, Democratic National Committeeman from Nebraska, presided. He said he was tired of "phantom candidates," such as Eisenhower, and wanted one he knew was ready and willing to run.

Jimmy Roosevelt's representatives—Irving Schulman and Joe Di Silva—reported that Jimmy had phoned Justice Douglas asking him to run not for Vice President but for President, and had urged Douglas to make a forthright statement publicly that he would resign from the court.

Why Pick a Loser?

Several present did not think Douglas would do that, and meanwhile they proposed Senator Pepper of Florida.

"Truman's renomination without a fight guarantees another five million votes to Henry Wallace," warned Jack Kroll, head of CIO-PAC, who is also a delegate from Ohio. "The party is certain to lose with Truman," he continued, "so why pick a loser?"

The only man willing to run who could take several million votes away from Wallace, Kroll continued, is Claude Pepper.

"The Democratic Party will be out of power for at least 20 years," Kroll warned, "if Truman goes unchallenged."

Also present was Leonard Finder, New Hampshire publisher and initial booster of General Eisenhower.

Daniels' Diagnosis

The late, much-loved Josephus Daniels, Woodrow Wilson's Secretary of the Navy, gave this description of the Democratic Party in 1944; "We are a party of minorities. There is the South, where the party is strongest. Yet no Southerner can be elected President. One of the biggest Democratic groups is the Catholics, yet no Catholic can be President. Another group is the Jews, and no Jew can sit in the White House. Finally there are the Negroes, and they are excluded from being President. Thank God," concluded Daniels, "for Franklin D. Roosevelt."

That description explains the confusion at Philadelphia, for Roosevelt is no more.

Merry-Go-Rounds

First thing the South Carolina Democrats did when they moved into the Adelphia Hotel was to rip down all pictures of Truman and hoist the South Carolina State flag instead . . . Democratic leaders tell you on the Q.T. that Truman will swing more than a million votes to Henry Wallace in New York State alone. The right-wing liberal party in New York will do its best for Truman, but won't be able to stop the overwhelming tide to Wallace . . . Frank Palumbo, Philadelphia restaurateur, was the height of hospitality to the Democrats. He also bought an airplane, which he placed at the disposal of delegates for emergency trips home . . . After the Eisenhower boom fell to pieces, South Carolina's Senator Olin Johnston coined this phrase to describe the confusion: "Organized inertia."

Convention Sidelights

The Illinois convention train was about as good as its candidate, arrived seven hours late . . . Chicago's Former Mayor Ed Kelly claims to have a $300 "atomic medical gadget" which will cure anything from rheumatism to gallstones . . . One newsman, reporting the dullness of the convention, wired his editor: "I hope you won't deduct my time here from my vacation." When Clint Anderson was Secretary of Agriculture, he gave an occasional ride in his Government car to one of his assistants, Charles Brannan. Now that Brannan is Secretary of Agriculture, Anderson promotes rides from his successor.

We Make Mistakes

As time goes on there will be words . . . And actions to regret . . . And there will be some other things . . . We wish we could forget . . . But it is only natural . . . To know the pains and aches . . . Of being somewhat foolish and . . . Of making more mistakes . . . We seem to think the hands of time . . . Are all we ever need . . . To help us harvest wisdom for . . . Our every word and deed . . . We feel that our experience . . . Will sort of pave the way . . . To all the golden glory of . . . A more successful day . . . And now and then we may receive . . . Some unexpected breaks . . . But usually our goal is gained . . . By learning from mistakes.
